Hood River Apple Truck Here—

The immense auto truck in care of one man traveling over the coast and will eventually land up in New York passed through Ashland Monday morning going south. The truck is striking in appearance. Huge red apples are displayed on the buff exterior of the cab, hitting the palate and causing the mouth to water for the juicy, red fruit turning the person in his course tempting him to make a bee line for the corner grocery to lay in the winter supply. The truck did not tarry longer in Ashland than to fill the gas tank and pay respects to garages.

PICKLING TIME

A delicious pickle that is well liked by those who are fond of olive oil is:

Oil Pickles—Take one hundred small cucumbers, finger-length in size, three medium-sized onions, two quarts of vinegar, two-thirds of a cupful of mustard seed, one tablespoonful of celery seed, one tablespoonful of freshly ground pepper, one cupful of olive oil. Slice the well-washed cucumbers without peeling, add the sliced onions—a small onion will make a better looking pickle—one may use a dozen or more; sprinkle with salt and set aside to stand over night. In the morning rinse off the salt and drain the cucumbers and onions. Place in a jar, add the seasonings, oil and vinegar, mix well, let stand for a day or two, then put into jars and seal. Keep in a cool place.

Cucumber Catsup—Peel and grate ripe cucumbers, squeezing out as much of the juice as possible. To a pint of the unsqueezed pulp use a cupful of good strong vinegar, a grated onion, one red pepper finely chopped and salt to make palatable. If the pepper is not hot add a half-teaspoonful of cayenne pepper. Bottle and seal. This is delicious with fish in the winter when such foods are high in price.

Wild Grapes With Orange Rind—Put the peeling of two oranges through the meat chopper, add three times as much water as ground peel, let stand over night. Simmer for two hours the next day and let stand again over night. Simmer one quart of wild grapes, adding all the green ones. Put through a fruit press to remove seeds. Combine the pulp with the orange rind and to every three cupfuls of the mixture add two and one-half cupfuls of sugar; simmer until it jellies, then pour into glasses.

Mustard Pickles—To a gallon of vinegar add one-half cupful of mustard and one cupful of salt, two cupfuls of brown sugar. Mix cold and drop in the well-washed cucumbers as they are gathered; cover with horse radish leaves.

Thin-Model Watches Old Staffs.

The small, thin-model watches of modern times are nothing new, declares a writer in the Popular Science Monthly, showing how timepieces no larger than a dime were produced entirely by hand in the Eighteenth century.

A Lot About Abraham.

Being required to give an account of the patriarch Abraham, a youngster wrote: "Abraham was the father of Lot and two wives. One was called Ishmale and the other Hagar. He kept one at home and he turned the other into the desert where she became a pillar of salt by day and a pillar of fire by night."—Boston Transcript.

Gas From Wood Waste.

Utilizing wood waste for generating gas is claimed by a Swedish sawmill operator to save 75 per cent of the fuel used when the chips and sawdust are burned directly under the boiler. Added to this economy is a large production of valuable by-products, including acids, wood alcohol, and tar.

Thorn Tree Cure for Ills.

The May blossom is the subject of some curious superstitions. Both the black and white thorn are said to be descended from the thorn of India, which, being sprung from lightning, is not only immune from danger in a thunderstorm, but possesses many magical gifts, a recent writer says, according to the Detroit News. The leaves from it are believed by many people to be a cure for all cases of inflammation, while a bough of blossom hung at the door is a safeguard against witches, but the blossom should not be taken into the house lest it bring disease with it. Many old countrymen will not cut down a hawthorne bush. They do not know why, though actually they are perpetuating an old belief that the bush is sacred, because from it, it is said, the crown of thorns for Christ was made.

The Virgin of Guadalupe.

The Virgin of Guadalupe is the patron saint of Mexico, and more especially of the Mexican Indians. According to the legend, the Virgin Mary appeared to a converted Indian, named Juan Diego, in 1531, on the hill of Tepeyacac, near the City of Mexico, and, addressing him in his own language, told him that she wished a temple built to her on that very spot. At the foot of the hill is the church of Nuestra Señora de Guadalupe, completed in 1709. It contains an exquisite picture of the Virgin, said to have been miraculously imprinted by her on the surface of Diego's blanket. Guadalupe Hidalgo, with the sanctuary of the Virgin of Guadalupe, is situated about two miles north of the City of Mexico.

An Artist's Problem.

Of course, an artist's whole problem must be, as Carlyle wrote to me, the expressing with articulate clearness, the thought in him—I am almost inclined to say that clear expression should be his only work and care, for he is born, ordained, such as he is—and not born learned in putting what was born in him into words—whatever can be clearly spoken out to be. But "bricks and mortar" is very easily said, and some of the thoughts in "Sordello" not so readily. . . . I sin forty times in a day by light words and untrue to the thought.—Robert Browning.

Washable Paper.

Many possible uses suggest themselves for a special paper recently produced and patented by a Japanese inventor. The paper is said to be reasonably strong and can be crumpled up and washed with soap and water. So durable is this paper that it can be used as a covering for umbrellas and, when soiled, can be easily cleaned at home. As a wrapping paper, it could be used over and over, being washed when soiled. It is said that the product can be made at a reasonable price. It has a texture somewhat like cloth, and is not to be confused with oil paper.

A Stride of Twenty-Five Feet.

The average ostrich can outrun the best Arab horse. If the bird will continue on a straight-away course. The fact that wild ostriches like to run in circles invariably leads to capture, as a well-trained Arabian horse will follow the shortest course, knowing that ultimately the fleeing ostrich will turn in his direction. In full flight the adult ostrich often shows a stride of 20 to 25 feet, which affords one explanation of its remarkable speed.—Nature Magazine.

Tied Fast in a Knot.

There was a half-distress look on the face of the recently arrived Scandinavian as he slowly discussed the new language he had been learning. "Aye tank," he said, "dis country have funny language. Wan Aye get here my sister she say she too fat; she must 'fast'. I go store to buy cap, and the clerk he say the color in dis cap it ban 'fast'. A man tell me to tie my horse 'fast', but the man Aye bought him from he say he already ban very 'fast' horse!"—Pathfinder.

Bill for Burning Martyrs.

The bill for burning the three eminent martyrs of England is preserved in the British museum, and is as follows: "Charge for burning the bodies of Cranmer, Latimer and Ridley: For three loads wood fagots, 12s; item, one load furze fagots, 3s 4d; item, for carriage, 2s 6d; item, a post, 2s 4d; item, two chains, 3s 4d; item, two tables, 6d; item, laborers, 2s 3d; total, £1 8s 8d."

A Lot About Abraham.

Being required to give an account of the patriarch Abraham, a youngster wrote: "Abraham was the father of Lot and two wives. One was called Ishmale and the other Hagar. He kept one at home and he turned the other into the desert where she became a pillar of salt by day and a pillar of fire by night."—Boston Transcript.

COTTON MILLS GAIN IN ASIA

They Are Multiplying Rapidly, but the Mortality of Mill Workers in Japan is High.

The people of densely populated Asia are clothed in cotton, says the Living Age. That continent produces large quantities of this useful staple. Asiatics are fairly competent and remarkably cheap mill operatives. Naturally, therefore, cotton mills are multiplying rapidly in Japan, China and India, where they create new social problems almost as quickly as they supply the local market with yarns and fabrics.

The industry already gives employment to more than 100,000 operatives in China, and more than 230,000 operatives in Japan. Four-fifths of the workers in Japanese mills are women or girls; but in China and India male labor is principally employed. It has long been known that the mortality among Japanese spinners, especially from tuberculosis, is very high. Their hours of labor are long, and the annual turnover approaches 100 per cent.

Bible's Only French Word.

The only French word in the Bible is "bruit," meaning a noise or disturbance. It occurs in Jeremiah 10:22, and the reason it got there was because Norman-French was the official language at the time of the Bible's first translation into English.
