OBSERVATIONS

As picked up here and there
By Lithianius

I have observed that The Fred Holmes, whom I used to know, spelled it with an "L" in it, and what I'm wondering is, who took the "L" out of Ashland's Fred Holmes—
That had I not persisted in applauding, Dr. Phetteplace would have not received an encore at the reception for the delegates to the Parent Teachers association convention—
That the bed of beautiful geraniums in front of the hotel has disappeared from view, taking with them a lot of beauty—
That a long bladed jack knife is a dangerous thing with which to attempt to settle an argument—
That visiting delegates to the state convention of the P. T. A., who moved up from Medford for an afternoon and evening expressed regret that they didn't come earlier in the week—
That Bill Day is good for another fifty years—
That two members of the school board were at the tail-end of the "bread-line"—
That J. H. Fuller has had a sore throat, yet sang, pathetically, "A-round Her Neck She Wore a Yellow Ribbon"—
That the identity of one Ashland young woman is known, who belongs to the safety-pin club—
That an Oregon salesman committed suicide because of "two" many women—
That civic beauty demands the use of more paint—
That it was no fault of the shots directed at the Ku Klux Klan that they got into the midst of the P. T. A. Convention—
That if Ashland is not a good place to spoon it is not the fault of the moon—
That the Winter Fair is among events meriting the support of every citizen—
That Chief McNab can qualify as a tailor—
That as the fall leaves come down rolled stocking go up—
That the former P. M. has gone chasing bandits—
That Vicar Hammond knows what kind of price to exact for re-performing a wedding ceremony—
That the frost is on the pumpkin—
That the wedding of H. D. McNair must have been a myth—
That the public opinion has been after Principal Forsythe the greater part of his life—
That a crowd of women standing in front of a millinery store does not necessarily mean that anything has happened—
That a half of a pumpkin pie is better than a quarver of the same pie—
That Ed. Gowland attended the masquerade—
That it is a mighty small dog that has no bark—
That V. D. M. was not at the C. C. luncheon Tuesday—
That there are a lot of "four square" men in Ashland—
That when one is boasting he comes nearer being in harmony with all his surroundings than when knocking—
That many improvements are being made throughout the city—
That support is due the new music club—
That the Hallowe'en spirit will be abroad tonight—
That the highway across the Siskiyou affords a pleasant Sunday afternoon drive—
That Dr. Gregg was out to the luncheon yesterday noon—
That W. M. Wright is always on hand—
That Fred Engle regretted appearing at the luncheon bearing a 24-hour growth of hirsute adornment—facial—
That many a bald head is covered by a toupee—
That someone said that Dr. Burdick's was slipping—
That a marble top is never seen on poor furniture.

THE Sorbonne.
The Sorbonne is a famous college of the medieval University of Paris, founded in 1253 by Robert de Sorbon, chaplain and confessor of Louis IX, and devoted exclusively to the study of theology. As an institution of learning it enjoyed a European reputation from the Fourteenth to the Seventeenth century, but with the revival of learning its influence gradually declined. The Sorbonne was suppressed in 1790 and its property confiscated, but in 1808 it was reorganized by Napoleon I and became the seat of the Academie de France and subsequently (1816-21) of the faculties of science, theology and literature. In the chapel of the Sorbonne may be seen the tomb of Richelieu, designed by Lebrun, and executed by Girardon in 1694.

Tarpeian Rock.
Tarpeian is a precipice on the south side of the Capitoline hill at Rome, from which state criminals sentenced to death were thrown headlong. It derived its name from Tarpeia, the vestal virgin and daughter of Spurius Tarpeius, the governor of the citadel, who agreed to open the gates to the Sabines—then at war with the Romans—on condition of receiving from them what they wore on their arms (meaning their bracelets). She was rewarded for her treachery by being crushed to death by the weight of the shields cast upon her by the soldiers, who shouted as they hastened by: "These are the ornaments we wear on our arms." According to the legend, Tarpeia ever sits in the heart of the rock, adorned with gold and jewels, and bound by a spell.

St. Peter's Built in 176 Years.
From the time the foundation of St. Peter's in Rome was laid in 1450, under Pope Nicholas V, to the dedication of the completed church by Urban VIII, November 18, 1626, 176 years were spent in building the magnificent basilica, says the Detroit News. During that period 28 popes reigned. The cost of the basilica proper, exclusive of bell towers, statues, mosaics, etc., has been estimated at nearly $47,000,000. The sacristy added by Pius VI raised the cost almost $1,000,000. One of the strangest facts relating to St. Peter's is that with one or two exceptions all its pictures are mosaics. So perfect are they that they seem to be oil paintings. Yet there are only one or two oil paintings in the whole basilica.

Who the Schoolmen Were.
The name is given to certain theological teachers of the Middle Ages, so called because they originally lectured in the cloisters, or cathedral schools, founded by Charlemagne (768-814) and his successors, for the education of the clergy. The schoolmen attempted the impossible task of reconciling the dogmas of faith with the dictates of reason, and indulged in metaphysical discussions of the most subtle and hair-splitting kind. Among the most famous may be mentioned Roscellinus, Abelard, Anselm, St. Bernard, Thomas Aquinas, Alexander of Hales, Duns Scotus, Albertus Magnus, William of Ockham, and Jean Gerson.

Naboth's Vineyard.
Naboth's vineyard was a vineyard in Jezreel, greatly coveted by Ahab, king of Israel. Naboth, the owner, declined, however, either to sell the vineyard to the king or exchange it for another, and was, in consequence, cruelly murdered on a false charge of blasphemy, trumped up by the infamous queen, Jezebel. Ahab thereupon took immediate possession of the vineyard, but was met by the prophet Elijah, who denounced the wickedness of the king and queen and foretold the awful doom that awaited Jezebel and her children. The phrase "Naboth's vineyard" is sometimes used to denote any possession greatly coveted by others.

Friends of Job.
"Job's comforter" is the expression ironically used to denote any person who, under pretense of sympathizing with another's afflictions, attributes them to his misdeeds and thus aggravates his sorrow. The allusion is to Eliphaz, Bildad and Zophar, friends of Job, who visited him in his distress and declared that his misfortunes resulted from his sins and iniquities. "Then Job answered and said, I have heard many such things; miserable comforters are ye all."—Job 16:1-2.

"Keep Your Powder Dry."
The saying, "Keep your powder dry," is attributed to several historic persons. It was probably first used by Oliver Cromwell, says the Detroit News. On one occasion, the story goes, when his "Ironsides" were about to attack the enemy on the opposite side of a river, Cromwell concluded his address to them: "Put your trust in God; but mind to keep your powder dry." Since that time several great soldiers, including Napoleon, have used the words.

First Armored Tank.
The earliest patent for a caterpillar armored tank was granted in Germany, February 28, 1912, to Gunter Burstyn of Austria. The number of this German patent is 252815 and copies of it are on file in the United States patent office. The tank illustrated in this patent has long adjustable arms extending from the front and from the rear to enable it to cross ditches that are wider than the length of the body of the tank.

Interesting Reflections.
Franklin came of a line of sturdy blacksmiths who live for two hundred years in England, only twelve miles from the manor house of Washington's ancestors. It is interesting to reflect, in the light of subsequent history, how the pink-coated huntsmen of Washington's aristocratic family may have had their horses shod by Franklin's kinsmen.

Out for Business.
Hanging on a strap in a crowded street car to the music of the conductor's sonorous voice at frequent intervals bellowing, "Step forward in the car, please," a negro remarked, "Dat boy sho' mus' be workin' on comshun."—Columbia Dispatch.

Nest of Confetti.
A lady writes from Boscombe, Eng., to "Bird Notes and News": "I wish you could have seen a chaffinch's nest that one of the cadets showed me. It was built near the railway station, and a cat had pulled it down. We thought at first it had the usual lichen and moss on the outside, but closer examination showed the lichen to be white confetti, with jagged edges, and the moss was the green bast used to tie up flowers, all woven in and wrinkled up to resemble moss. There had evidently been a wedding party at the station."

Settlement 7,000 Years Old.
Numerous flint implements, bone harpoons, arrowheads, grindstones, chisels and tooth-headed spears have been discovered in the remains of a settlement at Halmogardsmoos, Denmark. It is estimated the settlement is at least 7,000 years old. Although no human bones have yet been found, the excavators uncovered skeletons of elk, reindeer and other animals under a layer of peat several yards thick.

Best Swanadown.
The best swanadown for making powder puffs comes from Norway. The young birds are hatched out in late May or early June, and are killed early in the following winter. It takes about 40,000 birds to satisfy the demand for swanadown, and the price of the commodity has risen so greatly since the war that many fresh swan farms have been established in Sweden and in the Baltic islands.

Geysers Harnessed.
For the first time in America a group of geysers has been harnessed and is now producing electrical energy. The geyser field is in Sonoma county, California, where deep wells have been sunk to tap the hot water strata. The steam thus developed is used to operate turbines, which in turn run enormous generators.

How "Fireflies" Work.
"Fireflies" are really not flies, but beetles. The light-producing organs are just inside the lower wall of some of the last segments of the abdomen, the segments involved depending on the species. The "lamp" consists of a substance termed luciferine, and the light is produced by the oxidation of this substance.
