Greatly Improved Here—

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Towne of Tacoma who recently visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Lamkin were camped in the park during their stay here. According to Mr. Towne he has suffered from asthma a good bit and could hardly breathe when he left Tacoma. After being in Ashland an hour he felt better and would have liked to have stayed longer. They intend to spend the winter in Los Angeles.

It costs nothing to get my insurance rates. Yeo, of course. 21-1f

Winter Has Descended—

Pull the comforts higher and shut your eyes while the wood is heaved into the furnace for the first real twang of winter covered Grizzly and the nearby hills with snow that makes you begin to think of Christmas and Thanksgiving. Yesterday afternoon about four o'clock the "snowy" feeling drifted in the air and old timers prophesied a white Thanksgiving.

Dyrude's Return—

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dyrude and son Carl have returned from an extended trip in the east where numerous relatives were visited.

Artist is Interesting—

In the November issue of the Woman's Home Companion another of the beautiful color plates painted by John La Gatta is reproduced. Many such colorful creations have attracted feminine admirers to turn to the fashion department at once to see what is there this time. John LaGatta is the husband of Miss Florence Olds, who graduated from the Ashland High school a few years ago, but who is remembered by moderately young high school people. Friends of Mrs. LaGatta hear from her occasionally and she tells interesting stories of their travels and the work that Mr. LaGatta has made himself famous for. For the lovers of quaint bits of news and who will have something to look for, this may come as an acceleration to their scrap books.

Contest Grows—

You have until Thursday evening at 6 o'clock in which to submit automobile contest answers. Twelve were received Tuesday, more this morning and others are expected to come in tomorrow to give the judges ample ground in which to make their awards.

Demonstrator Arrives—

Miss F. Witherspoon from San Francisco arrived last night and is a guest at the Hotel Ashland during the days she is demonstrating S&W canned goods. Miss Witherspoon spent Wednesday at the Sayles Grocery on the Boulevard, Thursday at Dennis Grocery, and two days at the latter part of the week in Holmes Grocery.

Window Decorations Beautiful—

H. P. Holmes has prepared one of the prettiest windows in Ashland in celebrating the S & W demonstration soon to come to his store. Mr. Holmes is known for his artistic decorations and many compliments have come to him through his tasty ideas and careful execution. Pale green streamers are the foundations for the pedestals and tricky red and green combinations. Unique and attractive in every sense of the word are Mr. Holmes' adornments in the store.

In Medford Tuesday—

J. K. McWilliams and A. C. Williams, representing the Ashland Winter Fair Auto Department, spent part of the day in Medford and attended the Medford Chamber of Commerce Forum at noon.

Time Strengthens Suspicion

It was 19 days ago that the sensational holdup occurred, and in which four trainmen were killed, yet no trace of the perpetrators has been found, at least none has been announced. Today makes 31 days since the D'Auremonts left their home in Eugene for a hunting trip in southern Oregon. During the 31 days no word has been received of or from them. Not the slightest idea prevails as to their whereabouts. The news of the crime and the information that they are suspected in connection with it, has been heard far and wide yet they have failed to appear and announce their innocence. The perplexing question among officials and public, alike: if the D'Auremonts had no connection with the crime, where can they be that they have failed to receive information concerning it? Although officers do not make a direct statement to the effect, it is evident that as each day passes their suspicion grows as to the possibility of the D'Auremont brothers being the perpetrators.

Daily News Letter

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 31.—Motion picture comedies, in which policemen are depicted in contemptuous and would-be humorous roles and situations, are really incubators of crime. At least Chief of Police August Vollmer, of Los Angeles, is out with that statement and proposes to secure better treatment for policemen on the screen, where the copper will no longer be hurled into four bins, plastered with custard pies or unceremoniously dumped into mud holes.

Vollmer, who gained fame for himself and his city as the "scientific cop" when he was chief of police of Berkeley, California, is a student of psychology as a means of crime detection.

The chief not only hopes to see the end of such misrepresentations in pictures which bring the law and those who enforce it into contempt and disrepute, but he hopes for the day when the policeman will appear before the public as a shining angel of right and justice, regarded as a friend of the public, always ready to protect it and look after its every interest.

Chief Vollmer bitterly assailed the motion picture comedy in which members of the police are held up to ridicule and contempt by casting them as clowns and the "goat" of everything.

Besides the injustice of heaping ridicule upon a particular element of the community, the effect was serious and evil in its result, the chief said.

"Such comedies are harmless in their intent," he said. "They are in reality an incubator of crime. Through a psychological process they sow the seed of contempt of authority. What is first viewed through the light of comedy by repetition becomes the means of causing contempt of the men who are to enforce the laws. From this state of mind a contempt of law and authority follows as a natural corollary. "When there exists a state of mind that holds contempt for the law and its representatives it is but a short step to the violation of the law."

"The young mind is very susceptible to such influences, and after seeing policemen plastered with custard pies and otherwise poked fun at, the boys will in time come to regard the policeman as a legitimate object for prey and regard themselves as heroes if they are able to impose upon the officers."

"I look forward to the day when the public will be educated away from the movie comedy policeman into a new conception of the law, in which the officer will appear as always ready to help and protect the public."

SPECIAL HALLOWE'EN PROGRAM FROM CLEVELAND TONIGHT

A special Halloween program will be broadcast from station WTAM tonight at Cleveland, Ohio. Departing from general practice, the Willard station will be on the air continuously from 8 p. m. to 1 a. m. This is being done with the idea that there will be a large number of parties and dances on Halloween and the program will consist mainly of dance music by the WTAM orchestra.

NORTH POWDER WHEAT GOES 50 BUSHEL TO ACRE

NORTH POWDER, Or., Oct. 31.—Everette Pearson is the champion wheat raiser, so far, in this vicinity. On one field containing approximately 50 acres he threshed 2600 bushels of wheat, or an average of 50 bushels to the acre.

This is the best yield reported in this section. As the threshing is not yet done, larger yield bears out the contention of some of the ranchers that the Hard Federation is the best spring wheat for this section.

SPECIAL ELECTION WILL COST STATE $25,000

SALEM, Oct. 31.—The cost of the special election November 6 to determine the fate of the income tax law enacted at the last session of the legislature will exceed $25,000 according to estimates made by the officials here today.

Although the income tax law is the only issue on the ballot it will be necessary to press into service the same machinery used at a primary or general election. In many of the larger precincts the double election board system will be used at the November contest.

SACRAMENTO SEEKS NEW POST OFFICE BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—An appropriation of $180,000 with which to purchase additional land and build at Stockton, will be requested in bills Representative Charles Carey today announced he will introduce when congress convenes. Carey said he does not believe congress will pass an omnibus building bill, but will put in these two measures to assure protection for his district in the event such legislation is adopted.

MCCORMICK CRITICIZES FOREIGN POLICY OF ADMINISTRATION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—Senator McCormick, republican of Illinois, issued another statement today criticizing the Coolidge-Hughes plan for aiding Europe. He advised the White House to quit trying to bolster up European markets of doubtful value, instead, cultivate friendship and new trade opportunities on this side of the Atlantic, in South and Central America.

CANDIDACY OF MCCAMMANT TO BE FORMALLY PRESENTED

PORTLAND, Oct. 31.—The candidacy of Wallace McCamant, Portland attorney, for appointment to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco will be formally presented to President Coolidge soon. McCamant's candidacy will be backed by a voluminous petition signed by members of the bench and the bar of Oregon. McCamant nominated Coolidge for Vice-President at the republican convention four years ago.

HILL INTEREST MAY ABANDON OREGON ELECTRIC RAILWAYS

PORTLAND, Oct. 31.—Indication that the Oregon Electric is to be abandoned by the Hill railways was given today when W. Turner, president, announced that the railway was financially unable to meet its semi-annual bond interest payment due November 1. The Spokane, Portland & Seattle Railway advanced the money for the payment of interest due six months ago, but it is doubtful whether it will do so this time or not.

GRANGE WINS IN BOUT WITH C. G. BROWNELL

PORTLAND, Oct. 31.—Cyril Brownell, an editor of the Oregon State Income Tax Referendum League, lost the second round of his bout with the state Grange today when Circuit Judge Knowles overruled Brownell's demurrer to the Grange's mandamus action demanding that the books of the league be made available to the inspection of the Grange. The court also ordered Brownell's attorney to file an answer to the mandamus suit within a day so the suit may be heard on its merits Thursday.

By Air to Panama Canal Over Mexico

RESUMPTION of relations with Mexico makes possible the establishment of the direct air route from the United States to the Panama canal. Plans for such a route, as an important part of the defense system of the canal, have been held up for more than two years because of severed diplomatic relations. The Mexican government, it is said, has indicated its willingness to permit American planes to fly over that country and will not be averse to the establishment of an aerial mail service between the United States and Mexico City.

In mapping out plans for an air route from the United States to Panama, three possible courses have been considered. The first of these, and the one which is regarded by experts as the most desirable, is the Central route, leading from Kelly field, San Antonio, Texas, to Laredo, and through the central part of Mexico, following in general the line of the railway. This route not only has the advantage of being the shortest, with stops at some of the most important cities of the southern republic, but it also would afford a number of good landing fields already have been established at some points along this route.

The second route is along the eastern coast of Mexico and the Gulf, with a flight across the Yucatan peninsula. This route has the advantage of being very much shorter than that followed by Capt. Thomas G. Lanphier, in charge of a squadron of six army planes, last April, when they flew from San Antonio, Texas, via Florida, Cuba, Haiti, San Domingo and Porto Rico. While this expedition did not attempt to complete the flight from Porto Rico to the Panama canal, all army air service experts were confident that the distance could be easily negotiated.

"From a military point of view," said Captain Lanphier, "the importance of this flight hardly can be over-estimated. It is evident at once that the island of Porto Rico forms the logical base of action for an air force against any possible enemy fleet approaching the Panama canal from the Atlantic."

"Aside from military aspects, this flight suggests interesting possibilities for future commercial air lines. It has been shown to be entirely practicable to fly from the southern portion of the United States to Venezuela in approximately 12 flying hours."

While Secretary Weeks concurs in this view as to the importance of the route, he is of the opinion that the Porto Rican route, and the Porto Rican base in the defense of the canal, he and practically all army air service experts recognize that the Mexican route would be much shorter and preferable in making a quick flight from the United States to the canal.

The third route suggested is from San Diego, Calif., along the west coast of Mexico.
