The University of Oregon has the only Delta Tau Delta in Oregon and several Ashland boys are members.

An Ancient Art.

The implements and methods of fishing have hardly changed since the earliest times. In the days of Pharaoh, the fishermen on the Nile used nets fastened on the end of long Y-shaped poles—not unlike the modern landing net. Paintings on Egyptian tombs show fishermen at work using drag-nets, hooks and lines and also bronze harpoons. The Old Testament speaks familiarly of fish hooks. Deep-sea fishermen are the product of medieval times. They were rough, primitive and superstitious. They fished in advance of traders, "skrimished ahead of the church," naming islands, rocks and shoals. Still these fishermen depended on nets just as men had thousands of years before. Even today, the men who put out of Gloucester still use implements almost identical to those used by primitive man.—The Mentor.

Bamboo Poles as Water Jugs.

I took notes while we were at Epa of a rather curious method of drawing water from the communal spring, half a mile from the village. Twice a day the women went down in chattering groups to the spring, carrying bamboo pipes twelve feet long. These pipes are made by forcing out the pith at the joints, and held about five gallons apiece. When full, the drinking and was plugged with leaves, the pipe being stood in a shady spot near its owner's house and used when needed. Incidentally, drinking from these weird receptacles was a rather hazardous business, care being necessary lest a too copious supply should gush out when the pipe was held to the mouth.—H. C. Pratt in Wide World.

Ancient Greeks Played Ball?

An ancient Greek sculptured relief recently discovered in Athens, according to the London Times, gives evidence that the Greeks played ball games other than with the hand. The relief represents six naked youths taking part in a game bearing every resemblance to modern hockey. The curved stick used may possibly supply an explanation of the singular objects carved in relief on some of the votive offerings found at Sparta. These have been called "sickles." It is difficult to say why this implement should have been dedicated to Artemis, but the word "sickle" may have been the current slang for a boy's hockey stick.

Galapagos Islands.

The Galapagos Islands lie under the equator off the coast of Ecuador. The air is frequently chilly, due to the cold antarctic currents which fan the coast of Peru and strike seaward toward the island group. Wild goats, cattle, cats and dogs, as well as hidden treasure, bear evidence of pirates. The soil is rich, fertile loam, nearly stoneless. There are but 3,500 head of cattle at present on Cristobal Island and it can easily support 50,000. It is said that a three-year-old steer brings $100 (gold) live weight, at Guayaquil on the mainland—when a steamer can be induced to call and take the stock off.

Queer Uses for Coal.

Coal has been found to have many unexpected uses. Cheap white celluloid combs and fasteners, decorated with insets of "black diamonds," have a great fascination for the dusky beauties of the Congo, where they are used by traders for the exchange of goods with the natives. A shovelful of coal dross is a familiar sight in many pigsties. The coal grit is a valuable aid to digestion and reduces food costs. Miners do a profitable business in carving coal signet rings and ornaments, the finished article having the appearance of ebony; they are popular as souvenirs of mining regions.

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN TO CLOSE SATURDAY; INTEREST INCREASES

The annual Red Cross drive closes next Saturday after a campaign that has grown steadily since last week. Mrs. A. B. Wick, chairman, wishes to announce that anyone who has not already subscribed and wishes to do so, may leave their money at the State Bank of Ashland or at the Ashland Furniture Company. Booths have been taken from the two banks.

Talent Needs Help Anyone who has a car and is willing to volunteer to solicit Talent, should respond early to Mrs. Wick. No one has been designated to cover that territory and the visiting city has asked that someone from Ashland come to solicit their residents.

More District to Hear From Several districts have not been heard from. Valley View and Bellview are expected to turn in more than their last years quota within the week. The drive in both outlying districts has met with enthusiasm and people have responded readily, according to those in charge.

High Goal Set The goal of one thousand has been set as the zenith for this year's drive. To date, $652.75 has been turned in as the lump quota. Membership figures have increased with the week and more than half a thousand members are hoped for at the end of the drive Saturday night. All donations are allowed to remain in Ashland for local Red Cross work.

Interest Has Grown Despite the fact that the drive in Ashland got away with a bad start, donations have swelled the funds and given the committee's heart. Few solicitors were sent out in Ashland as the bulk of members were reached thru the booths and the few captains are to be complimented on the manner in which they have cooperated with Mrs. A. B. Wick, chairman.

FOREST DEPARTMENT WILL AID MOUNT HOOD LOOP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—After a conference with Col. Greeley, chief forester, Senator McNary, of Oregon, announced that the Forestry Service had agreed to construct the extension to Mt. Hood loop road to Cloud Cap Inn next year. The cost is appropriated from funds of the Forest and will be $90,000 and will be appropriated from funds of the Forest.

Skeen Slayers Are Guarded

A pathetic scene was enacted last Saturday when George Hard, Vernon policeman, father of William Hard, sought out Mrs. Skeen, mother of the slain man, introduced himself and expressed his deep sympathy.

Appreciates Hospitality

"I am the father of the boy who stayed at your place and who you have every reason to believe was implicated in the slaying of your son," the senior Hard said. "I am almost as broken-hearted as I know you are. I want to thank you for sheltering and feeding my boy. He has spoken to me of you, and says

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS OF THE ASHLAND TIDINGS

On and after December 1, 1923, all display advertising will be charged at the flat rate of 30c the inch, unless there is an annual contract for regular service. This is not an increase in rates but will result in advantage both to the advertiser and the Tidings. Under the annual contract, rates will be as follows: One time a week... 27 1/2 c; Twice a week... 25 c; Three times a week... 20 c. This move is necessitated by the lately added cost of production and will apply alike to all advertisers.

GIVE BOOST TO WINTER FAIR

made in each and every department and with proper co-operation from citizens in general, the coming fair will bring together a class of exhibits that will reflect unusual credit on this district.

Arranging Program

H. K. Tomlinson, chairman of the program committee announced that a program of exceptional merit and powers of entertainment is well under way, but stated that the exact nature of the program is not to be divulged until a later date.

Blames Erno

"I told Erno I did not want to do that, that I wanted to stay at the Skeen home," said Hard. "I knew that if I fled I would be blamed with Erno for the murder."

to him while he stayed at your place." "Yes, I fed your boy," said Mrs. Skeen. "I gave him shelter, and Frenchy, too. I befriended them—and they killed my baby while he slept, I am sorry for you, Mr. Hard, and glad to meet you. You have shown that you are a man by presenting yourself to me. If your son was blameless and was led to accompany Erno through fear, then I hope he will escape punishment, but I can't understand how either Erno or your boy can claim innocence—when my baby is dead, shot in the back of his head while he slept."

Discuss Tragedy Members of the Skeen family and Hard discussed the tragedy for an hour, and tears came to Hard's eyes the same as they did to the grief-stricken mother of the dead youth, and the sisters.

Hard says that his boy lived at home and was a model son until the Hards became estranged, the boy going with his mother when the family home was broken up.

Young Hard has clung steadfastly to his claim that Erno killed Skeen and then told him he would have to drive the car in the flight from the scene.
