NEWS LETTER

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 22—Motor car dealers always get the first check.

A canvass of the largest financial institution of this city, handling the bulk of the transactions for the Mid-Continent oil industry revealed this to be the unanimous opinion of bankers who negotiate with those having newly found wealth in Southern Kansas and Oklahoma.

"In nine cases out of ten," one banker said, "the first check to be drawn on the new bank account, after the pipe-line company makes the first payment, goes to pay for an expensive automobile."

Only one exception to the rule was found. That was where the newly wealthy was bearing a mortgage on the home. There the first check went to pay off the mortgage, the second caring for the car.

The haberdasher comes in for his share of the success of the oil well, too, it was learned. Usually his is the second check. Travelers' checks are then obtained, and the newly wealthy, in the expensive automobile, clothed in "up-to-the-minute" styles, start out to see the world.

In the oil fields of Kansas and

Oklahoma stand approximately 200 derricks—alters of hope upon which are heaped countless prayers for riches—idle today, but ready to begin work again "when times are better."

Knowing not whether "better times," meaning resumption of drilling, will make them millionaires or mendicants, the multitude whose lives are to be regulated by the outcome of their "wildcat" wells, always assume the result will be success and make preparations for the future accordingly. It was said.

A very large percentage of those who become wealthy by reason of oil are the men who owned the land before oil was found. Others are promoters of schemes to block the acreage and drill the test. Few if any, records show have ever made a single dollar through the purchase of stocks in "wildcat" companies, but millions continue to place confidence in such concerns daily.

Such promotions now are barred in many States by strict "blue sky" boards, which investigate oil stocks, royalties and such other schemes using oil as a cloak to separate the credulous from their money. These laws were passed only after millions were filched from the unsuspecting.

Before the inauguration of these laws it was possible for the unscrupulous to promote all sorts of questionable enterprises in the oil game. Lurid advertisements depicting gushers belching forth countless barrels of the black fluid measured only in dollars never failed to gain the attention, if not the confidence, of persons who had "a little stored away for a rainy day."

If the well "came in," as it seldom did, stockholders were advised to hold their stocks, the price of which was advanced, while additional thousands were netted by the men behind the scheme. Fake oil stock promoters have their field so well covered persons are becoming skeptical of all oil enterprises.

On the other hand, the legitimate promoter has pursued fortune or failure evenly, drilling the twenty-five feet daily and always praying for the well to "come in." Sometimes they have gone broke; in many instances adversities clouded their future, but others made fortunes. They are the ones whose checks were deposited with the automobile dealer.

ROSEBURG TURKEYS SELL LIMIT IN COOS COUNTY

ROSEBURG, Nov. 22.—The Thanksgiving turkey market was opened Monday at a price of 30 cents. A special lot of birds were brought in to fill a particular order and the grower received 30 cents a pound, with the raise clause, which will entitle him to additional money in the event the market goes above the price paid. The bulk of the birds will come in Thursday, as that is the day that most of the buyers have advertised that they will receive the fowls.

The turkeys seen so far this year are in excellent condition and will bring top prices. The second-grade birds in today's sales went for 25 cents.

SCOTTISH BOROUGH VOTE TO STAY WET

EDINBURGH, Nov. 22.—Returns today from 10 Scottish boroughs which had conducted local option elections Tuesday, showed all voted "wet." Two of them had previously voted "dry" by revised the earlier stand on prohibition.

ed by many as unwise, bankers who mildly criticised the judgment of the newly rich for early expenditures on motor cars admitted that these fortunate persons rarely invest money in securities foolishly or carelessly. "We have a great many customers who have made the wisest investments with money so suddenly brought them by the Goddess of Fortune," a financier declared.

COHON MUSICAL COMEDY, MEDFORD ON MONDAY EVE.

"So Tis Is London", George M. Cohan's great international comedy production, the most successful humorous play in many years, comes to the Page theatre Monday night, Nov. 26th.

Mr. Cohan will present this laughing hit of two continents with a superb cast headed by Mr. and Mrs. Cohan, and the same company of clever Cohan comedians who scored a phenomenal success in the piece last season notably during the record breaking run of over four solid months at the Cohan's Grand in Chicago. In this captivating comedy of international appeal, we see ourselves as others see us and, amid whirlwinds of wholesome laughter, at the vagaries of the Britishers, we see the always good-natured satirical humor turned upon the other fellow, and get the English view point as regards their American cousins, only to find that under the surface, there are the same sterling qualities that prove the English speaking race, on both sides of the broad Atlantic, virtually very much alike. It is the continual contrast of the Briton's idea of what he thinks Americans are like and our erroneous notion of what we have pictured the English, that provokes the endless chain of laughs. Besides the Cohan's—the cast includes: Lumsden Hare, Marjorie Campbell, Berta Creighton, Chester Morris, Iseth Munro, Frank Merlin, Pacie Ripple and other talented players.
