NOVEMBER 26

ADMIT THE MASTER:—Behold I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith.—Rev. 3:20, 22.

TIME FOR SOMEONE TO MOVE

Jackson county is again in the limelight because of the fight revolving around the office of the district attorney. The first clash was witnessed when Governor Pierce appointed O. C. Boggs special dry law prosecutor for Jackson county. Rawles Moore was district attorney at that time and considered the appointment of Boggs as a direct slap at him. The appointment was made, so Governor Pierce says, at the instance of not a few good people of Jackson county, who urged that the prohibition laws of the county were not being properly enforced. Moore waxed warm and declared war on the governor and others. Finally he resigned from the office of district attorney and N. W. Borden was appointed his successor, but no disposition was made of Boggs, who still clings to his special position.

Borden, the new district attorney, apparently expected the removal of Boggs soon after assuming the office. A month has passed and Borden turns hot because he sees in Boggs a grim spectre, and says that his retention in the position is a direct slap, creates duplication and unnecessary expense.

The result of the fight in the district attorney's office is not the character of advertising sought by Jackson county. The spectacle of the governor having to appoint a special prosecutor was not complimentary. Governor Pierce felt that he had sufficient grounds for the appointment, or it would not have been made. But now that a new attorney has been appointed to the office it seems only fair that he be given a fair trial in prosecuting dry law violators. Undoubtedly Governor Pierce considered Borden worthy of the office, and if so, he is worthy to carry out the duties of the office without assistance from Boggs. It is only fair to say that Boggs ought to be removed from the position of special prosecutor. The affair is not complimentary to Borden and justice demands that the new official be given every opportunity to make good. If he fails, the governor can again enter the scene and resort to whatever recourse conditions may require.

NO LITTLE MUSSOLINIS WANTED IN THIS COUNTRY

Ousted from office by the unanimous vote of the Oklahoma senate, and denied redress by the United States District Court, which held the federal judicial authority did not extend to his case, Governor Walton has announced he will appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

There is practically no chance he will be given a hearing. Impeachment of a governor is so clearly within the authority of the states, that the action of the Oklahoma senate can be taken as final.

Walton's incumbency is ended. Walton has attempted to make it appear that his ousting was solely the result of the machinations of the Ku Klux Klan.

But therein he is mistaken. Strong as the Kookoos may be in his state, they cannot control every member of the state senate.

His discomforture is due to his own autocratic and violent methods. Just as was his cause in the first place, and sympathetic as general opinion may have been toward his courageous defiance of the Ku Klux Klan, he sowed the seed of his own downfall when he established and attempted to maintain a military dictatorship; to censor and suppress any newspaper which disagreed with his methods; to abolish by fiat the writ of habeas corpus and by violence to prevent a legal election in his state.

Thereby he not only placed in the hands of his enemies weapons which they were but too ready to use; he drove from him public opinion, the backbone of his strength.

In effect Oklahoma has said she wants no miniature Mussolini, no matter how right and just the measure he may be espousing.

That is the real reason why Walton finds himself a private citizen to-day.—Sacramento Bee.

THE REDUCTION OF TAXES

There can be no questioning the fact that, in undertaking to assemble a tax revision program as rapidly as possible in order that its provisions may be thoroughly crystallized and clearly defined before his message is delivered to congress. Mr. Coolidge is evidencing considerable wisdom.

No outgiving from the White House has indicated commitment to any particular scheme but it is known the Coolidge program is approaching completion. The Mellon proposals and the recent recommendations of the War Finance Corporation have met neither with expressed approval or opposition, but it is natural that the secretary's ideas which involve a general downward revision, including a reduction in surtaxes, be given very serious consideration.

It is, of course, essential that the proposals be grounded as completely as possible in equity, but it is just as essential that a thoroughly conceived plan accompanied by estimates of reductions in figures calculated as closely as possible to sensible expectancy be presented congress at the very beginning of its life. Congress, then, will be confronted at the outset with clear alternatives either to effect the reductions estimated or to spend them in the various fashions familiar to congresses. Since the public will be as amply apprised of the possible reductions as congress itself, that body will hardly be able to adopt any unjustifiable spending program without strenuous opposition from an informed public.

It would help in the statistics, just possibly, if we were to limit the deer hunter, by legislation, to one guide a season.

Letting an immigrant in on parole may be harmless enough, but his baggage ought to be thoroughly ransacked for lectures.

Isn't it possible that great grand-mother herself knew something about vamping? Otherwise how did she land great grandfather?

For the next thirty days practically everyone in this country will determine daily to get after this matter of Christmas shopping tomorrow.

The California professor who says snakes aren't emotional will probably admit that they associate at times with very emotional people.

The old-fashioned couple who ran away in the buckboard to get married have descendants now who take the boat to Paris to get a divorce.

CRANBERRY COBBLER

A cranberry cobbler makes a nice cold weather dessert. For this use a plain cranberry sauce put about one and one-half cups of the sauce in a buttered baking dish; make a batter of one well-beaten egg, to this add one-half cupful of sugar, using the egg beater and beating until mixture is creamy. Measure one cupful of sifted flour and sift again with one teaspoonful of baking powder; add some of the flour to the egg mixture, then one-fourth cupful of milk or water. Mix thoroughly, add remaining flour, beat until smooth and add two tablespoons of melted butter or substitute and one teaspoon of lemon flavoring. Pour this batter over the cranberry sauce and bake in a moderate oven about thirty-five minutes or until cake batter is cooked. Serve with a foamy liquid pudding sauce.
