BOGGS IS REMOVED BY PIERCE

Governor Says Need for Special Prosecutor Exists No Longer.

HAS FAITH IN BORDEN Boggs is Praised for His Aid in Enforcing Dry Laws of Jackson County.

SALEM, Dec. 1.—Explaining that there is no further reason for the employment of a special prosecutor in Jackson county, Governor Pierce today announced the removal of O. C. Boggs, who was named to have charge of the prosecution of liquor cases in that county.

Retention of Boggs as special prosecutor has been objected to by Newton W. Borden, recently appointed as district attorney for Jackson county.

"With a district attorney prepared to fully enforce the law, and with no evidence of conditions that would call for the services of a special prosecutor, I have no right or reason to ask the people of Jackson county to pay the additional expense of a special prosecutor," the governor declares in his letter to Boggs notifying him that his services in that capacity are no longer needed.

Commenting upon the fact that he has been asked to appoint an assistant to the attorney general for Jackson as well as other counties, the governor declares in his letter to Boggs that in his opinion there is no "extreme case" in Jackson county to justify such action.

"In fact, there is no evidence whatsoever that the present prosecutor is not or will not fully enforce the law," the governor states. "Under the circumstances just as in the case of the special prosecutor, I have no moral right at least and certainly no reason to saddle an extra expense on Jackson county taxpayers when there is every evidence that the law is now being and will be effectively enforced."

The governor in his letter to Boggs, thanks him for his "aid as a special prosecutor and for your stand in behalf of law enforcement."

Boggs was appointed special prosecutor by Governor Pierce at the time Rawles Moore, since resigned, was district attorney for that county.

NEWS REPORT CAUSES STIR IN LONDON

Report of Military Activity in Germany Develops Sensation.

SOME SCOUT REPORT Foreign Office Disclaims Official Authority for the Statement.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—A sensation which threatens to develop into a scandal has been caused by publication of an article sent to British newspapers by the Reuters News Agency stating the government is concerned over military preparations in Germany. The article said "rapid military training of large numbers of men in excess of Versailles treaty stipulations has been progressing" and that the government is cognizant of the facts.

As the agency is often credited with being "semi-official," the familiar declaration about Germany's misdeeds was taken seriously and caused general alarm.

The foreign office immediately disclaimed official authority for the statement, but the facts was in the fire.

The papers controlled by Lord Rothermere today evidence the greatest concern over the report. Others point out it was nothing but repetition of claims often made by Premier Poincare of France. The Daily Express declares the statement "possesses the elements of propaganda," and adds:

"The British government is entitled to demand that the agency disclose the source of the information."

The Manchester Guardian declares the agency statement to be at variance with official opinion regarding Germany and says:

"Whoever inspired that statement was palpably bent on mischief."

The Times, which does not publish the agency dispatches, heads at length leading articles on the subject, "Spurious Sensation."

The Times' editorial laments the effect the statement is likely to have in the United States, and says it probably originated with some retired member of one of the disbanded British missions to the continent.

COOLIDGE URGES OBSERVANCE OF GOLDEN RULE DAY DEC. 2nd

It is with a good deal of satisfaction that I commend your proposal to observe an International Golden Rule Dinner Sunday on the second of December, 1923. I feel sure that this suggestion will meet with very widespread approval and will bring more closely to mind the charitable requirements of those who are prosperous to those who are in adversity. It suggests not only a practical method for help, but the highest expression of sympathy by starting for a time the privations of others.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has written to the Near East Relief headquarters in New York commending the idea of International Golden Rule Day to be observed all over the world on Sunday, December 2nd, as a means of providing food for the orphans in the Near East and urging the widespread observance of the day, both as a practical method of help and as an expression of international goodwill.

FAVOR COOLIDGE PLAN FOR ORGANIZATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Administration program for organizing the senate passed the first test when the caucus of republican senators re-elected all party officers without a dissenting vote.

GOP CONTROL OF CONGRESS IS IN SECURE

One of Largest Groups of New Senators in Years and Most "Complex."

PARTY LINES VAGUE Most of Them Were Born of Progressivism; Many New to National Politics.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—The Senate of the Sixty-eighth Congress, which convenes on Monday, presents a complexity of membership which probably is without parallel in the annals of the American Senate.

Not only is the group of 18 new senators one of the largest in years, but the personnel itself includes a type that is new and strange to the upper chamber of Congress. For the first time the Farmer-Labor Party is represented.

With some notable exceptions the new senators bring into the senate little or no experience in national political affairs. Few have held other than minor and relatively unimportant state offices.

These men, for the most part, and more particularly those from the middle and far west, have been thrust into national prominence through what commonly is referred to as the "progressive appeal to the voters." Regardless of party affiliations many of them can be classed together in that new belief in politics that is supposed to the conservative and the reactionary. Many cannot be labeled or pigeonholed as Republican, Democratic or Farmer-Labor, despite what party flag they flew at the time of election.

Party Lines Vague Never has the senate seen such a large influx of members who cannot be counted upon always as "being within the party reservation." Most of them were elected on the stand that they would vote for principle rather than for party.

In this connection consider for a moment a few new Senators: Dill of Washington; Wheeler of Montana; Adams, of Colorado; Frazier, of North Dakota; Johnson and Shipstead, of Minnesota; Howell, of Nebraska, and Neely, of West Virginia. These men represent the three parties in the senate, and yet it is a safe bet that party leaders will worry about their votes whenever there is a show-down on strict party lines. It is not at all unlikely that any or all of them would "bolt" at the slightest provocation.

Progressives Rule This very fact has made the numerical advantage of eight by the Republicans over the Democrats most uncertain. It has placed, in fact, the control of the Senate in the hands of the Progressives, headed by Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin.

Another interesting sidelight about the new senators is that most of them come up direct from private life, and not step by step in state office, as usually prevailed in other days, but by a jump from the farms and the professions to the Senate. That is true particularly of Minnesota's new members. Johnson was called from a harvest field to make the race.

G. O. P. Majority The Senate now has 51 Republicans, 43 Democrats and 2 Farmer-Labor. Of the 18 new members 11 are Democrats, 5 Republicans and 2 Farmer-Labor.

What is the nature of these new men? What do they stand for? What have they done in private and official life that earned for them seats in senate?

This is one example of the service being rendered daily by Classified ads in the Tidings. They are making money for others and they will make money for you.

The regular Tuesday forum and luncheon of the Ashland Chamber of Commerce to be held at Hotel Ashland Tuesday, December 4th, will be one of the most important of the year, due to the fact that Arthur S. The Chamber of Commerce was advised this week that Mr. Dudley would be here for the occasion and the announcement is hailed with pleasure by officials and members of the local chamber.

Mr. Dudley recently returned from a trip through the East, where he made a rather comprehensive and intelligent survey of marketing conditions as applied to our action, and will have something of particular interest to say along that line, as well as regarding other matters of utmost importance with respect to the era of development that will undoubtedly sweep over Oregon during the next few years.
