DECEMBER 6 WHY NOT?—O ye simple, understand wisdom: and ye fools, be ye of an understanding heart.—Proverbs 8:5.

THE PEST OF THE HIGHWAYS

While modern highways have brought almost innumerable blessings and advantages to Oregon they have also produced a condition that has assumed dangerous proportions. We refer to the pest that infests the highways in the shape of hoboes, bums, tramps, thugs, and desperadoes.

The instance of the Idaho resident is only one of many that have been recorded in Oregon and the Northwest during the past year or two. Oregon people have even been criticised for their apparent uppishness towards the pedestrian. The criticism is unjust and the fact of the matter is Oregonians will do well to pick up no man on the highway, irrespective of his appearance, condition of the weather, or distance from town.

With the coming of the modern highway many undeserving skunks have set out to see America at the expense of the once kindly disposed motorist. They reason that there is no occasion to pay railroad fare or spend money for a car of their own when the motoring public is so simple minded as to extend them a "lift" at every turn of the road.

The kindness extended the first adventurers resulted in their multiplying by the thousands, until now an average of fifty tourist-tramps and thugs pass through Ashland daily over the highway. The numbers will increase from year to year unless the tourist and motorist take it within their own hands to prevent it.

LOST

Modern man is often bored and irritated by society, yet he cannot comprehend a state of absolute isolation from human life. With the railroad, automobile, aeroplane, telegraph and telephone wires, world-vibrating radio and land and water highways, the human being reared in civilization accepts the story of Robinson Crusoe as highly imaginative fiction.

From the north woods of Ontario comes a simple, moving tale that is to the point. Merrill Faro left the comfortable lumber camp at early morning and went out into the forests to fell trees for pulpwood.

The love of life runs strong though the light of home burns dim. When Merrill Faro had been cut off from civilization and from the rough and cheerful camp he might have chosen, in a cold cradle of the forest, a sleep that knows no waking.

fastly clung to the resolution that the black hour would end in the rose of the dawn. He clung to life with the characteristics of the strong man. He persisted and help came in the morning.

Have you bought that season ticket to the Winter Fair?

Let's go to the Winter Fair. What's more, let us see to it that our neighbors and friends attend.

Berlin has imposed a jazz tax. How congress could swell our national treasury by such an imposition.

Football is injurious to the mentality, a psychologist says. This will be news to those who never could see the slightest connection between the two.

Magnus Johnson has at last found a "modest bungalow" in the suburbs of Washington. With a nice grassy steet out front for the cow to graze in, just possibly.

There are some classy chickens at the Winter Fair. Take it either way you want to, and it will not be a mis-statement of facts.

The New York Health Department says there are 1500 medical quacks in the city. He would be an ambitious man indeed, who tried to take a census of all the other kinds.

In the merry-go-round of movie marriages, a headline announcing "Screen Star Reported Married Since August," has raised the languid question: How many times?

New Senators Who Are Sitting In Upper House

Senator W.C. Bruce

There is one man of whom it can be said that he, more than any other, is responsible for the general and widespread antipathy in Maryland to the prohibition amendment that man is Senator Bruce.

Rallying around Bruce, the so-called liberal forces in Maryland went before the state legislature and opposed the ratification of the amendment and, later, the proposed state enforcement law.

When the battle against the current proposal was at its height Bruce prepared and submitted to the legislature an extensive and scholarly brief setting forth explicitly why, in his opinion, the dry law was unconstitutional.

Bruce comes from an old Virginia stock and is regarded as one of the leaders of the Maryland bar.

He is an Independent Democrat, much of the Grover Cleveland type of democracy. While he has been active in reform work in Maryland, and more especially in his home city of Baltimore, Bruce's reformatory work has been from within rather than from without the party.

Bruce has held city office in Baltimore and has served in the state senate.

During the campaign he was bitter against the high rates in the Fordney-McCumber bill and promised to aid in seeking a reduction on duties along the line Bruce believes in the Democratic principle of a tariff for revenue only.

Senator Ferris (D.) of Michigan, the first Democratic Senator from Michigan in more than 70 years, is one of the few men in high public life who has made politics his avocation rather than his profession.

He is the founder of Ferris Institute unique industrial and educational school, at Big Rapids, Michigan, which started with two classrooms and 15 students, but which since has graduated more than 60,000.

Ferris was born January 6, 1853, in a log house on a small farm near Spencer, New York. He and later studied medicine at the and later studied medicine at the University of Michigan, which he left in 1874, the same year that he married Miss Helen Gillespie, of Fulton, New York.

His first ventures in politics were unsuccessful, he being defeated for Congress in Michigan in 1892 and for Governor in 1894.

Ferris's second try for the governorship, in 1912, elected him by a plurality of 24,000 votes. He was re-elected in 1914.

During his tenure of office the great copper strike occurred in the northern peninsula of the state and for his handling of that difficult situation admirers gave him the sobriquet of the "Good Gray Governor."

In 1920 Ferris again tried for the governorship, but lost. When the so-called "Newberryism" issue was at its height in Michigan, in 1922, friends prevailed upon Ferris to re-enter the political field as a candidate for the Senate.

Numerous educational honors have been bestowed upon Ferris, but there is none that he values more highly than that of Doctor of Laws, conferred by the University of Michigan.

In addition, he has been a bank president and an associate in various successful commercial enterprises, particularly in connection with the founding of business colleges in the Middle West.

Senator Ferris has been married twice, the second marriage after the death of his first wife, being to Miss Ethel McCloud, of Indianapolis, on August 14, 1921.

BILL WILL PROPOSE INCREASE IN DUTIES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Senator Jones, of Washington, announced yesterday that he will introduce a bill to increase duties on goods and merchandise imported into this country on vessels not under the American flag.

NEWS LETTER

PARIS, Dec. 6.—Paris is going to be quieter—but not until 1926. The heavy solid tires which are to be found on most of the large omnibuses, lorries and trucks will be prohibited after June 1, 1926.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe; and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound."

The "Little Green Ribbon Club" for lonely maids and bachelors celebrated its first anniversary recently and rejoiced over the one hundred and twenty members. The little club was founded to give an opportunity to single persons of both sexes to enter the blissful state of matrimony.

The Republic is certainly kind and full of indulgence to the famous family of Orleans, which would like to sit on the next throne of France, if there ever is one. Monsieur, the brother of the King, has just been decorated with the Legion of Honor.

"To fat to fight," was the verdict of the Military Examination Board at Troyes, who found that Henri Coulon of the class of 1924, weighed 285 pounds and exempted him from service.

Along comes another kill-joy. Love in its various forms is not the chief cause of suicide, according to the statistical gentleman who has been investigating 4,000 cases of recent suicides in France and finds that only 306 were those of people crossed in love.

this is over now, and you can sit down in any chair you find empty. Anyone caught retaining the chairs in the old manner will be turned over to the police authorities.

The lone camel which is one of the principal sights in "Theodora," at the Corpa Laparcerie Theatre, is causing a little excitement in the streets of the capital. His contract does not cover board and lodging; so, like many other Parisians, he is forced to go to the suburbs to live.
