Christmas Trade Show—Christmas mailing has not started with the rush that was anticipated by postal authorities, according to Don Spencer. The postal department has been set and prepared for the usual heavy use of the mails, but people are evidently waiting until the last minute to send their gifts. That practice is discouraged by the mail service.

Lyceum is Appreciated—The Larcher-Smith duo last night gave one of the prettiest, well prepared and easily appreciated concerts of the winter season. The Civil War costumes and music were especially fine and made a hit with the older people. Every musical number and the funny acts of their program was high class. A fair crowd attended the second number of the lyceum, which is sponsored by the American Legion.

Attractive Ads—The Christmas ads by Ashland merchants this year are more than ordinarily attractive. Part of this is the recognition of the fact that illustrated ads tell the story, and create the impression of desire. The Tidings feels somewhat a part in this for the neatness and taste with which the ads are arranged, type used, and contrasts produced. Advertising is as much a part of a man's business as his merchandise, especially in his own town paper.

Returns from San Francisco—Mrs. L. H. Klum, who resides at 773 Boulevard, returned this week from San Francisco, where she visited with her son Otto. Klum who came to the states with the football team from the University of Hawaii. He is coach of the college team, but was defeated by Pomona in their game here.

Slides Are Interesting—During the past week the students of the biology classes of both the high and grade schools have been shown an interesting group of lantern-slide pictures. The pictures included the cone-bearing trees of Oregon and Oregon birds, shown in their natural colors. The slides were from the University of Oregon Extension Division and were loaned to the school by Mrs. Rosa Dodge Galey, who had obtained them for her work in the Study Club.

U. T. Myers was born in Marion, Iowa, May 8, 1850 and passed away at the family home on Church street December 14, 1923 at 4:30 o'clock. He was 73 years 7 months and 5 days old. Neuralgia of the heart is said to have caused his death.

His illness was not long, as earlier in the week he complained of heart trouble and after visiting a local doctor was informed of the seriousness of his sickness. He suffered intense pain, but died quietly.

The first few years of his younger life were spent with his parents in Iowa, later he moved to Idaho and lived there a short time and returned again to the east. Not satisfied with life in Iowa he returned to Idaho and lived there the major portion of the remainder of his life.

In that state he became an influential citizen and engaged in the stock business. The rugged characteristics and abstinence from personal weaknesses probably developed during his life in the west.

In 1913 he was married to Frances Swan Pinson at Weiser, Idaho. Following their marriage they resided six years in Washington and came to Ashland in 1919 where they have lived continuously since that time.

He is survived by his wife, four sons and one daughter, all step children, and an adopted daughter, Lois 6 months old.

Scores of friends will be shocked to hear of the death of Mr. Myers. A great love for children characterized his life and many children played an important part in his career as a benefactor. He was always insistent for the welfare of others, but voiceless in his wants.

Funeral services are tentatively planned for Sunday afternoon at 2:30 from the Baptist church. Rev. B. C. Miller will officiate. H. C. Stock has charge of other arrangements.

Mrs. Merle Walters is visiting at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Rogers on Oak street. She is here from Grass Lake, where she and her husband have been living for several months. Christmas shopping is responsible for her visit at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Holm, of Medford, are guests at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Farris Stanton today.

Daily Fashion Hint

JUST AS PARIS DECREES

Artful and new are the frocks pictured here, the fashionable wood brown shades of heavy silk crepe de Chine having been selected for their development. The first model pictures the circular flounce at the bottom of the plaited apron front so greatly affected by well-dressed Parisiennes. The long, waisted blouse falls gracefully over a belt of self-material to which the plaited apron is attached. A sectional collar finishes the round neck, while the short sleeves are trimmed with plaited frills of self-material. Medium size requires 6 1/2 yards 36-inch material. Becoming alike to slender and stout figures is the second model, with a deep circular flounce at the bottom of the skirt. It is trimmed with fancy silk braid stitched on to emphasize the coat effect of the front of the dress. Surmounting the revers is a collar of self-material. A narrow belt holds in the fulness at the waist. Medium size requires 6 1/2 yards 36-inch material. First Model: Pictorial Review Dress No. 1795. Sizes, 34 to 48 inches bust. Price, 45 cents. Second Model: Dress No. 1801. Sizes, 34 to 52 inches bust. Price, 45 cents.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

It is hardly necessary to mention the necessity for breathing pure air, and especially when taking deep-breathing exercises, if you wish the very greatest results. Take these deep breaths when in the open air, or else before an open window. It is a good plan, for instance, when rising in the morning to stand before an open window and inhale perhaps a dozen full, complete breaths. This will help greatly to brush cobwebs from your brain and brighten you up for the day's duties and responsibilities.

These suggestions apply with equal force to both sexes. Because of the fashions of dress usually in vogue the breathing of women is much more restricted than that of men. Furthermore, they are generally less inclined to athletic pursuits involving exercise which compels deep breathing.

It is a curious fact that until recent years the world generally, the medical profession included, held the opinion that there is a fundamental difference between men and women in breathing. Observation of the natural breathing of boys and girls would soon prove the absurdity of this opinion. Owing to the universal use of the corset, thoracic breathing, or chest breathing, the result of the artificial constriction of the body at and below the waist line, appeared to be the natural method of breathing for women, whereas diaphragmatic breathing was recognized as proper and natural for men. Only in recent years have medical authorities recognized that this difference was really due only to artificial methods of dress and that natural breathing in women and men is absolutely the same.

If you wish to ascertain more exactly whether or not your breathing is entirely satisfactory, stand up, take a deep breath and observe not only the expansion in the region of the stomach and abdomen but also at the sides and in the back. If you place the palms of your hands upon the lower ribs at the sides, just above the waist line, you should feel the expansion of the body in this part pressing upward through the action of the diaphragm as a deep breath is inhaled. Also by pressing the hands upon the lower ribs at the sides, just above the waist line you will feel the lateral expansion in this region at the same time that the expansion is noted in front of body.

MILLIONS ARE FACING STARVATION

(Continued from page 1) ren and the elderly people of the middle class, whose savings of a life time have been swept away by the collapse of the currency. As a result of first-hand evidence brought from Europe by church leaders of all denominations, confirmed by information received from the most authoritative sources in the government at Washington, it is clear that before the winter is far advanced millions in Germany will be confronted with starvation to a degree quite beyond anything which has yet been imagined in this country.

"The Federal Council will carry on this campaign for the relief of the suffering in Germany in thorough co-operation with the American Friends Service Committee and the various denominational agencies."

Hollow Log Is Wireless Set of Wild Jungle Tribes

Long before the first modern radio set came into being the wild South American tribes that live in dense forests and grass-covered plains near the equator, had "wireless" outfits made from the trunks of hollow trees. For years the jungle and tundra have echoed the booming of these huge drums. By means of code systems, each tribal chieftain keeps in touch with his people, calling his warriors, ordering raids against enemies, warning of marauders, or announcing the approach of strangers. The sound emitted by one of these instruments which, it is said, can be heard for many miles, is like the dull, distant boom of a cannon.

Flying Fur-bearing Animal Reported Found Without wings and heavier than air, a newly discovered type of fur-bearing animal, or bird that can fly, was reported recently to the French Zoological Society from the wilds of French Cochinchina. About the size of a cat, the creature is said to rise to a height of several yards by distending its stomachs until they appear like small

Useful Clamp-for Stepladder

A simple and useful clamp for the stepladder, that serves as a rest for holding windows while setting the panes or painting, can be made from two pieces of oak about 2 1/2 ft. long, with a bolt passing through the center of both as shown; a wingnut is provided on the bolt. It is not necessary to remove the wingnut to attach the clamp. Merely push the clamp over one leg of the stepladder from the inside, and then over to other leg, after which the wingnut is tightened. This tool can be used equally well on a common ladder.

Filling Auto Vacuum Tank

If a funnel and small gasoline can are at hand, the simplest way to fill the automobile vacuum tank is to remove the plug at the top of the tank and pour in the gasoline. If no funnel is available, the best method of filling the tank quickly is as follows: Close the throttle and shut off the ignition, then press the starter switch. It may be necessary, with some starters, to switch on the ignition for a moment, in order that the starter gears may mesh. The action of the motor will then cause enough suction to draw the gasoline from the rear tank into the vacuum tank. The throttle must be kept closed, as otherwise the engine simply draws most of the air through the carburetor, and not enough through the vacuum tank.
