SLIDES HINDER OPENING OF NORTH BANK ROAD
VANCOUVER, April 21.—Mountain slides will prevent the opening of the North Bank highway, 4 miles west of Stevenson, until June 1, according to the state highway district engineer stationed here. The road was closed about two months ago at Government Slide. Continuing slides have materially hampered the work and necessitated the delay in opening the road.

RECORD TIME MADE INSTALLING TURN TABLE
ROSTBURG, April 21.—All records for rapid installation of railroad turntables were broken here Wednesday by Southern Pacific employees, when a 70 foot table was replaced by a 100 foot table and placed in operation in 1 hour and 46 minutes. The new table, electrically operated, was installed to accommodate the 18 new 275,000 pound mountain type locomotives which will be placed in service out of Roseburg.

J. W. RILEY HEADS MEDFORD CHAMBER
J. W. Riley was elected president of the Medford Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of the board of directors last evening, says the Mail Tribune. Ed M. White was elected vice-president and Fred E. Wahl treasurer. None of these men have ever served the chamber in an official capacity and they have been pledged the earnest support of every director toward a successful administration.

TO GIVE HEARING TO CALIFORNIA COMMITTEE
SALEM, April 21.—Oregon will give a respectful hearing to the committee from California now en route to Salem to protest against this state's embargo against California products, but there will be no relaxing of the quarantine until the epidemic in the southern state is stamped out. This was the answer of Governor Perce today to telegrams from California interests urging that further embargoes be held in abeyance pending a conference with the California committee. "Glad to confer with California committee, but California must stamp out foot and mouth disease before Oregon will consider lifting embargo," the message from Governor Pierce reads.

The Ideal Radio Set for Hikers
Henry Farkouh, a Brooklyn amateur, is the designer and builder of a novel radio set that should prove ideal for the hiker. It is a three-tube receiver, operating on small batteries and is complete in all details. The instruments are fastened to a canvas web belt, and each tube has its own rheostat; a potentiometer is also provided. The set has sufficient power to operate a loud speaker, and it is said that stations as far away as Chicago have been heard on it. The antenna consists of fine wire sewn between two canvas sheets so that it may be carried under the shirt, or in a pocket.

Monkey's Bites Test Money
Owing to the spread of counterfeit coins in Siam, monkeys are being employed in the banks to test the spurious currency, it is reported. Installed behind the counters, monkeys test the coins between their teeth. If good, no marks are left on the metal, and the coins are thrown into a box at the animal's side. Should the coins be bad, the metal bears visible marks and is thrown on the floor, later to be swept up and destroyed.

Strange Animal Being Sought in Heart of Jungle
Deep in the depths of East African jungles, the "Nandi bear," depicted by natives as a ferocious species of man-eating hyena with striped skin, is being sought by scientists. The tales of frightened villagers and fragmentary reports from hunters indicate that the animal is taller and much more powerful than the ordinary hyena. In the last ten years, extensive explorations have resulted in the discovery of many new animals, among which the okapi, a large zebra-like creature, is regarded as the most important. Smaller animals are constantly being found and the old Roman adage, "Out of Africa, always something new," is almost daily proved true. Scientists believe, however, that there are few of the larger species that have escaped identification.

Radio Beacon Guides Aviator on Hundred-Mile Flight
Guided only by signals spoken over a radio beacon, an aviator recently flew from Dayton, Ohio, to a point one hundred miles distant, arriving there without mishap and without losing his course at any point. In his receiver he heard the letters A and T (—) repeated over and over. As he flew along the correct course, both letters were equally loud, but the moment he got off the course to one side or the other, one letter became noticeably louder than the other and showed him which way to turn.

Auto Death in U. S. Every Thirty-Five Minutes
Every time the clock recorded thirty-five minutes during the last year, a person was killed on the highways of the country, and each minute, approximately three persons were injured, delegates to the convention of the American road builders were told. In twelve months highway accidents claimed a total of 15,000 lives and caused 1,700,000 injuries, according to the figures given. Uniform traffic regulations, established by all states, strict enforcement of these laws, systematic maintenance of roads and safety education in schools were urged to curb the ever mounting number of fatalities. In Wisconsin, a survey of accidents during the past two years was said to have proved that most of them occurred on straight roads, largely due to attempts of drivers to pass one another. Railway grade crossings, however, were declared to be the most dangerous.

Cottage Built on Auto Givest Tourists Home Comforts
Fitted upon the chassis of a small touring car, a miniature cottage supplies an Iowa contractor, his wife, and two children with luxurious quarters while on motor tours. Electric lights throughout, the house provides ample protection from dust and rain, there is space for a cradle for the baby and other comforts of home. The front window in the roof gives the driver a full view of the road ahead and glass in the rear makes it possible to see behind. Entrance is provided by a side door and one at the rear. The radiator fills the screened-in "porch" which has one side on hinges so that the engine can be reached easily. The cottage weighs but little more than the inclosed body of standard type and proves an effective advertising device.

THE COAT FREES THE DRESS FROM ITS LONG EMBRACE

The first flare of Spring is nothing to the first flare of the dresses that bloom therein. Released from the close embrace of the heavy fur wrap, or its sister, the long tight cloth coat of the past winter's mode, which allowed the concealed frock about as much liberty as a strait jacket, the spring dress has burst forth in a paean of praise and pleats. In the pictured frock, just relayed from Paris, by M. Henri Dreange, the fashion authority, pleats are the beginning and the end of the frock. More than that they are placed where they will do the most good. In it the lady with leanings towards pedestrianism on May afternoons may stride to the full limit of her exuberance without fear of splitting a narrow silk skirt. And since the pleats merely form the border of the skirt she may sit down to rest without the premonition that the dress will have to go to the presser the next day. Polka dot Cheney crepe, with the gay red printed dots a little smaller than a dime in size makes the frock. The border, its half inch pleats very close together, ends about six inches above the knee. The rest of the dress is a mere straight sleeveless sheath bound at the hips by a very long sash of white crepe Chenette with its own private border of pleats to correspond with those on the dress. Since the material is white it is a good idea to snap the generous bow instead of making a fresh knot at each wearing. The same course should be followed in making the sashlike collar which finishes the neck and whose ends fall, one in front and one in back, over the left shoulder.
