MAY 29
O LORD, THOU ARE MY GOD; I will exalt thee, I will praise thee; for thou hast done wonderful things . . . Thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in his distress, a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat.—Isaiah 25:1-4.

"WITH ASHLAND TRADE IS ASHLAND MADE"

The foregoing slogan was adopted and featured in a campaign carried on some time ago by the Chamber of Commerce to drive home to the citizens of Ashland the importance and advantages of patronizing local merchants and industries and while it is admitted that the campaign was beneficial to a degree there is yet a great demand for further education along this line and it is a question to which attention must be directed before Ashland can attain the prestige to which its loyal inhabitants aspire.

"Trade at home" is a rule that is applicable to the farmer, mechanic, and laborer not only, but to the business man and the factory owner. The resident, no matter what his occupation or profession, who discriminates against his merchant is only adding to the weight of the millstone with which his community is struggling and of which he is a part. The man or woman who persists in the practice of ordering merchandise from outside his community is laboring under an obsession. True, he is imbued with the idea that he is saving himself and family, and while the Tidings may be charged with reiterating it can again well be said that he is laboring under an erroneous impression.

The dollar spent at home is much like the pebble tossed into the placid pool. Its range extends out and out as each ripple forms on the still water, growing larger and larger in their circumference until, finally, their range covers the entire pool. A lone dollar that reaches the till of a firm in a town other than your own, creates only a ripple, but as dollars are added and multiplied until they reach a sum running into the thousands the ripples grow correspondingly wider and eventually affect every line of business and industry, and every individual in the community from which they were forced to make their exit.

The silver dollars and paper bills that are conveyed from your community to the coffers of business men in other cities and in other states are reducing the volume of sales in your home community and therefore reducing the working capital of your city and community. In this you are affected no less than your neighbor and the various lines of business and activities represented in your district are equally affected.

It is well to remember that every dollar permitted to leave our trade circles reduces to that amount the volume of business transacted by our stores, shops and factories. It means smaller and less varied stocks of merchandise. It means slower turnovers, consequently higher prices. It means fewer clerks and employes in stores and factories. It occasions diminishing bank deposits, and reduced community capital. There is less money available for fostering and developing industries. It is responsible for diminished payrolls, retarded building and results in fewer homes and a dwindling population.

Frankly speaking, neighbors and friends, it is time that local citizens awake to the importance of the slogan, "With Ashland Trade Is Ashland Made." Let us develop a civic pride that will forever shame us out of spending our money with the other fellow to the detriment of those whom we are glad to call our friends and neighbors, and who are sharing the cost of our institutions of government and learning. Let us keep constantly in mind the importance of the growth of every firm in Ashland and of the desirability of still other firms. Then, when we have fully developed this spirit let us broaden it to the great state of Oregon and at all times give preference to Oregon-made and Oregon-grown products. In doing this we will assist in making Oregon a great payroll state. We can make Oregon a state of many millions of happy and contented souls, and the transition will be reflected in our home community in a greater demand for the things we produce.

"With Ashland Trade is Ashland Made," and "With Oregon Trade is Oregon Made" as our slogans we can view the future with confidence for both our city and our state.

WOMEN VOTERS AND EQUAL RIGHTS

Action by the National League of Women Voters at the convention in Buffalo, N. Y., in deciding to oppose the proposed constitution amendment providing equal rights for women, was probably in accord with the prevailing, though not the unanimous, sentiment of the delegates present. There has been increasing opposition to any action which might, as it was believed endanger in any way the special legislation enacted for the protection of women in industry, and which might tend to prevent or discourage further similar provisions by the several states. There is undoubted logic in the arguments advanced by those who succeeded in preventing an indorsement of the full equality plan at the Buffalo meeting, just as there are convincing logical arguments in support of the proposed amendment. What would appear to be the controlling consideration is the acknowledged ability of the women voters, both in the states and in the Nation as a whole, to choose those members of the legislatures, and even of Congress, who will bring about the enactment of whatever special legislation may be deemed wise or necessary for the better protection of their rights. While sympathizing with those ambitious women who resent any imputation that the representatives of their sex fail, because of this, to attain the highest standards of equality before the law, it cannot be forgotten that heretofore there have been enacted laws granting to women special rights and advantageous privileges, and that the progressive women of the country have generally welcomed such concessions as distinct victories.

The women of the United States are in no danger of taking a backward step. They have gained, or are gaining a clear conception of their status as citizens and as workers in a common cause. They have not been over-assertive in demanding that there be accorded to them a full share in the responsibilities of government. It has seemed best perhaps that they bide their time and prepare themselves for the tasks before them. This preparatory process is progressing. In the campaign upon which the people of the United States are just now entering it seems certain that the women voters will have a larger voice in determining the result than ever before. They are beginning to realize that the privilege which they have at last gained cannot be wrested from them, and that with the acceptance of that privilege they have also enlisted in the performance of an important duty. Many of them seem convinced that the equality which has been demanded has in fact been accorded with the right to make, as well as to repeal, laws, and the power to choose those who shall be entrusted with the administration of the laws which they enact.—Christian Science Monitor.

ALL ENTRANCE ROADS OPEN TO CRATER LAKE

Continued rapid melting of snow in Crater Lake National Park has resulted in a very early opening of Park roads. As a result, all 3 entrance roads are open to automobile traffic clear to the Rim. The road from Government Camp to the Rim opened May 27, about four weeks earlier than normal. The official opening of the Park is set for July 1, as usual, but visitors with camping equipment are permitted to enter. A travel checking station has been opened at Anna Spring.

SUGAR HITS NEW LOW LEVEL IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, May 28—Raw sugar prices today established a new low level for the year, with a sale of 41,500 bags of Porto Ricans at 4.96 cents, but the market rallied at the close to 5.02 cents on purchases of 45,000 bags of Cubans and Porto Ricans by refiners and operators. The recent break in fine granulated to 6.80 failed today to attract buyers, and the market for the refined products continued dull.

Daily Fashion Hint

TYPIFYING THE PARISIAN MODE

Both pleasing and appealing are these frocks for the vacation wardrobe. To the left is a cape model in moss-green flat crepe, which may be reproduced in flannel, alpaca, wool crepe, etc. The detachable cape is an especially attractive feature of the dress, which is fashioned upon straight slender lines. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards 40-inch material.
As the original of the second design was carried out in Chinese red flat crepe, one could not make a smarter suggestion for its reproduction. Powder-blue, almond green, cinnamon, cocoa and dawn are other colors in which this dress could be effectively carried out. The fronts are underfaced and turned back to form revers, and the collar has tab ends. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards 36-inch material.
First Model: Pictorial Review Dress No. 2179. Sizes, 16 to 20 years and 34 to 48 inches bust. Price, 40 cents.
Second Model: Dress No. 2176. Sizes, 16 to 20 years and 34 to 44 inches bust. Price, 40 cents. Monogram 544. Any three-letter monogram, 3 inches high, 60 cents.

Artistic Magic at Chautauqua

McDonald Birch Will Make Last Night "Joy Night."

Artistic magic—alluring allusions—bewildering mysteries—will open the eyes and ears and minds of Chautauqua fans on Joy Night. When McDonald Birch waves his magic wand strange things begin to happen. Mr. Birch is the youngest professional magician on the stage and through his natural artistic talent and ability has elevated his exhibition to the level of real art. He is a mind reader, too, and has bewildering surprises for people of every age and taste. A vein of genuine humor runs through Mr. Birch's program. He is a born humorist and keeps up a running chatter of witty sayings, stories and personal remarks to the audience that is infectious. Special scenery and stage equipment are carried for "Artistic Magic." It will be a clean, clever exhibition of the very latest in everything magical and mysterious.
