the sentiment which inspired the nomination of Calvin Coolidge at Chicago four years ago. That confidence grew as he modestly performed the duties of the position to which he was elected, and strengthened prodigiously as he met and handled in thoughtful, sympathetic and courageous fashion the many difficult and trying problems presented to him in the presidential office.

Confidence in President Coolidge is the most important and outstanding act in the political situation today and in the presence of inevitable differences of opinion on questions of moment, this confidence is as fine a compliment to the American people as it is to the president; a spontaneous tribute to sincere faith, high courage, and honest and unselfish purpose.

Never was an administration confronted with more difficult and perplexing problems than those presented to the Republican administration and congress elected four years ago and the marvelous record of legislative and administrative accomplishment which followed is without parallel in the annals of government.

Never before in our history has the need and necessity of dependable party majorities and of definite party responsibility been so clearly demonstrated as in the very recent past. Legislative control by shifting and changing combinations, resulting in majorities having no common faith and recognizing no united responsibility, cannot, in the nature of things, produce legislative results beneficial or satisfactory to the people of the country. The inevitable effect of such legislative control is confusion and paralysis and a legislative product satisfactory to no one.

"Every serious fault of recent legislation and every failure to complete and round out a satisfactory legislative program could and would have been avoided had there been dependable Republican majorities in the congress. The one certain and assured remedy for such a condition is the election of a congress, Republican, by a goodly majority, both in name and principle.

"This is the open season for weird claim and wild assertion on the part of our friends, the political enemy. Only recently emerged from beneath a political landslide of four years ago they attempt to appear as confident as they were just before being engulfed in that over-whelming catastrophe.

"In the moments they can spare from their fierce family feuds and rivalries, they make a pretense of assuming to believe that they successfully laid down a smoke screen through which their transparent partisan purposes shall not be discovered and in the contemplation of which all of their sins of omission and commission, of discredited policies and discreditable administration shall be overlooked and forgotten.

IN CONSTANT PAIN; HEALED INSTANTLY

A man comes from Portland to the revival tent where evangelistic services are being held by Evangelist May Turner in a big tent, is prayed for and receives his healing. He lifts his voice and gives God the credit as stated by him before the audience.

Many people all over the world are now trusting God as their great Healer; tired and worn out people are learning to come to the feet of Jesus and trust in Him as their great Physician.

The revival that is now being held in Ashland is meeting with great success and is being well attended. Many of the people of the churches are cooperating in the meetings with the evangelist for a campaign for souls.

Thursday night of this week will be another divine healing service.—Communicated.

To the People of Ashland

More than fifty (50) families have availed themselves of the opportunity in the community co-operative plan to secure for themselves a permanent resting place.

Why continue the barbarous, harrowing and disagreeable old customs? Why not take advantage of the progressive modern, sanitary and beautiful and civilized means of burial, with the greater conveniences and economy?

Throughout the country, with the progressive development in thought and evolution of custom, more than 2,000 cities and communities are adopting the mausoleum system to eliminate expense, inconveniences and waste, and against unsanitary conditions; a structure that is dignified, impressive and architecturally beautiful, by a permanent endowment.

Why not get a clear understanding of this subject? Get Mr. Mason to call, and explain in detail, by phoning to Miss Georgie Coffee, Tidings Office, Phone 39, or Mayor Loomis, Phone 97, for appointment.

ment; of unwise and indefensible policy when in control and utter lack of fixed and definite principle or policy, save that of muck-raking and obstruction, when in minority.

"As we proceed to the nomination of our candidates and the drafting of our platform, we may find inspiration in the fact that ours is the only national party in America that can and do point with pride to each and every candidate nominated at its conventions and every declaration made in any of its platforms. All human experience justifies faith and confidence in an organization with such a history. The record of wise leadership, sound policy and faithful public service in the past affords the best possible guaranty of the future.

"A tree is known by its fruits; not by the showy flowers of promise or the occasional defect in bud or branch, but by the normal harvest through the running of the years—and the harvester is the Republican party and leadership is shown in the faithful growth and faultless glory of the Republic."
