THIS DRESS HAS JOINED THE UPLIFT MOVEMENT

“EXCELSIOR” is undoubtedly the motto of this little flock of crepe de chine, for each one of its pleated panels is a step higher than the other until they are finally stopped by a decided bow, which may or may not suggest a comparison to the attentive reader. It is confirmed to us by Henri Creange, the French fashion authority, that pleats are still very much liked. This dress has even more than its share of the agreeable variations in the sartorial landscape. Not only the aforementioned regiment of irregularly pleated panels, one side of which are sewn, the other flying, but also a pleated scarf, one end of which is attached to the collar of the dress, the other floating. This, by the way, was the original form in which the scarf started, and from which the separate scarfs have been developed. This particular scarf effect is cleverly designed to carry out the panel idea of the skirt. An embroidered motif with touches of black marks its inception and adds a note of emphasis to the delicate green in which the dress is developed. Greens, by the way, have sustained the popularity which they have enjoyed for some time, and at the Paris openings, were surpassed in favor only by black, red, and white, according to a Cheney chart analysis of colors and materials recently compiled. Fagoting adds a further charm to this little dress, which has an elegant conservatism which will commend it to many who prefer to mix their modernity with discretion.

BILLION DOLLARS A MONTH WEALTH GAINED IN AMERICA

By S. W. STRAUSS, President American Society for Thrift. VARIOUS authorities who have made surveys of the fraudulent investment situation are agreed that the annual losses thus sustained by the people of the United States amount to $1,000,000,000. One way of looking at this situation is to remember that the sum lost through illegal investments is just about equal to the total amount of our annual savings bank deposits. And there is still another way of looking at it. An eminent economist estimates that the total yearly savings of the American people amount to $12,000,000,000. This includes all net additions to our national wealth through the saving of money, through investment in durable goods and through increases in values. It is the net annual profit of the great American family. A third of a century ago the total wealth output of our nation was not greater than our annual net accumulations of wealth today. England and Germany before the war added only about one-sixth of this great sum to their material resources. The fact that we thus are able to pile up $12,000,000,000 in new wealth each year is sufficient proof of the opportunities for financial progress that are held out to the individual in this country. Where there is such opportunity for legitimate advancement, it is all the more deplorable that so many of our people should seek advancement through methods that result in loss and disaster. The situation is due partly to ignorance and illiteracy, partly to the gambling instinct of many, and partly because of the abnormal desires of thousands of our citizens to get rich in a hurry. No one should lose sight of the fact that a billion dollars a year flowing through illegal channels means not only that legitimate business has been deprived of that much money, but that a heavy burden is placed on the public through impaired business activities and added costs of living. The rightful earning capacity of money has its limitations, and when representations are made otherwise it should be borne in mind that such representations either are willful efforts to defraud or spring from business principles as unsound as the shifting sands of the sea.

U. S. TREASURY STOPS CERTIFICATE SALE

Rate of 4 1/2 Per Cent Is Held Too High; Interest Rates Down. WASHINGTON, July 14.—The treasury Saturday ordered suspended all sales of treasury saving certificates and stamps, effective July 15. Acting Secretary Winston said the present money market did not warrant the treasury paying 4 1/2 per cent interest on the savings securities when funds may be obtained at much lower interest. Further sale of the certificates it was announced, will be held in abeyance until conditions have changed. Call money was quoted at 2 per cent in the New York money market yesterday and it was announced at the treasury that the last issue of treasury certificates of indebtedness was floated at a rate of 3 3/4 per cent, compounded semi-annually over a period of five years. $400,000,000 Outstanding More than $400,000,000 in treasury certificates now are outstanding. The first sales—in the form of war saving stamps—were made in 1918, but those have been retired and each subsequent year has seen a new issue. Almost $100,000,000 of the issue of 1924 have been sold. Sale of the certificates was suspended in 18 states last February 3, on account of the financial condition in some of the northwest sections. Objection then was raised to the federal government continuing to take money out of areas where banks were failing and conditions generally were regarded as poor.

Silver Panned Editor Makes Hot Tongued Sandwich

L YON Mearson, editor of the Metropolitan Magazine and whose book, "The Whisper on the Stair" will be published this fall, believes that sandwiches are suffering from a lack of imagination. So Mr. Mearson, as seen in the picture, has turned some of his creative powers to the task of bringing a little originality into the life of the sandwich. He has started his missionary work with a hot tongue sandwich which, even more than the proverbial soft answer, is guaranteed to turn away wrath and make the heart (if you like to put it that way) glad. Here is Mr. Mearson's formula: 6 slices Bread 3/4 cupful Crisco 1/2 teaspoonful Salt 1/2 teaspoonful Mixed Mustard Chopped Tongue 1 Egg, beaten light 1/2 cupful Milk 3/4 teaspoonful Salt Cut the slices of bread one third of an inch thick, cut in half and remove crusts. Cream the Crisco, beat in the salt and mustard and use to spread the bread rather lightly. Then spread half the slices with the tongue and press two pieces together, sandwich fashion. Add the milk and salt to the egg and mix thoroughly. In this dip the sandwiches, first on one side and then on the other. Melt

Wear on Gold Coins Results in Loss of Millions

What becomes of gold? It has many channels of disappearance, according to experts. Figures show that more than half of the annual output is employed in the fine arts and jewelry trade. Thousands of pounds also are used by dentists, one estimate being that over a ton is needed every year for the filling of teeth. Then money is worn away in handling, this loss being placed at $1,250,000 annually. Bank of England sovereigns are often tested and found to have lost much of the original weight. Of the immense quantities of the precious metal that have been buried away in the earth, it is believed comparatively little has ever been recovered. The priests of Peru are said to have buried approximately $10,000,000 worth of treasure to preserve it from the clutches of their persecutors. None of this has been found. It has been estimated by historians that Alexander the Great became the master of great hoards of gold, all of which, so far as is known, has vanished.

A Kink for Paperhangers

When hanging wall paper on a side wall it is necessary to see the edge of the paper from top to bottom in order to get the correct lap. This is very difficult to do when wearing spectacles, for it is impossible to see through them as well as with the naked eye. It has been found that this difficulty can be eliminated to a great extent by driving a small nail slightly into the wall on the edge of the paper as far from the edge as is necessary to get the correct lap, and at a point about one-third of the length from the top. The nail can readily be seen and the paper hung against it. Only the slightest fraction of an inch lap is needed in lapping, and this lap can be rolled down so as to present the appearance of a perfect butt joint.

Cleaning and Peeling Potatoes

In some parts of the southern states, a novel and interesting method of cleaning and removing potato skins is used. The potatoes are placed in a pail half full of water and a number of rough stones are added. By stirring the potatoes and stones around in the water, the skins soon wear off due to the abrasive action of the stones, and the potatoes are washed clean.

Hyena Strong but Cowardly, Runs from Small Dog

Although it is one of the strongest mammals, the hyena is a notorious coward and will often flee when pursued by a small dog. Only when cornered will it offer fight but then it defends itself desperately. Because of its skulking nature and its habit of living from refuse on village dumps and carrion left by other beasts, the hyena is held in contempt among the natives of Asia and Africa, where it is most commonly found. The strength of its jaws is sufficient to crush the shinbone of a horse.

Hats for Wear in Next Century Are Displayed in Paris

Designed for wear in the spring of 2000 A. D., styles of millinery shown at a ball in Paris were composed of massive arrangements of feathers and large clusters of leaves. One of the most popular models consisted of a decoration of gorgeous feathers that towered above the wearer's head and drooped gracefully to her shoulders. Gaudy headdresses of blossoms and foliage also were displayed as fashions that would be the mode during the first years of the next century.

The Smallest Radio Set?

What is claimed to be the smallest radio set in the world has been built by an amateur in Providence, R. I. Spurred on by accounts of what others had accomplished in building small sets, he first built a set 2 in. long, 2 in. wide, and 1 in. high. This contained a fixed crystal, a phone condenser, and a single-slide bank-wound coil. His next attempt resulted in a set 2 in. long by 1 in. square, containing everything but the phone condenser, which was discarded as unnecessary. Slider bars on top of these sets permit tuning up to 500 meters. Even the second was not small enough, so a third set was built, which can be covered completely with four postage stamps, one on each side. It is 5/8 in. in diameter and 1 1/4 in. long.
