UNUSUAL EVENTS ... COMMANDING ... YOUR INTEREST

BOOTLEGGING ADDED CAUSE OF "HELP" SHORTAGE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 19.—Municipal Judge J. J. Beckham has given a new cause for the servant problem. Negro women, to whom most of the Jacksonville homes look for help in domestic duties, have found bootlegging much more profitable and consequently have rejected the broom and scrub mop in order to sell liquor, Judge Beckham said.

"Negro women have gone wild on the subject of money-making," he said. "Court records show that two-thirds of the bootleggers in Jacksonville are composed of this class of people. I presume that in most cases these women are hirelings of higher-ups, although I have no way to tell this because we are seldom able to secure such evidence.

"The women themselves won't squeal when arrested and brought up for trial because they have been told that they will serve only a few days on the prison farm and then can go back into the game. It's a nasty problem, this servant-bootlegger question, but we're knocking the props out from under them as rapidly as we can."

Here For Summer—

Jackson Burke, of San Francisco, is spending the summer with his grandmother, Mrs. M. E. Wood, of Laurel street, and is so delighted with Ashland that he would like to make his home here.

To Portland—

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Elhart and little son, Billy, left for Portland Friday evening for a visit combining business and pleasure. They spent the first evening in Gold Hill at the home of Mrs. Elhart's mother, Mrs. Perry Wait, a sister of Mrs. Elhart, will accompany them to Portland, where they will visit another sister, Mrs. Sutherland. They plan to be gone a week or ten days.

6000 Have Seen Caves—

Tourist traffic at the Oregon Caves is increasing rapidly, says the Grants Pass Courier. Manager George Sabin, of the resort, was out today and states that by tonight 6,000 persons will have gone through the caverns during the present season. Yesterday 24 persons went through. Quite a number of tourists are staying overnight at the resort.

Will Investigate Strike—

J. T. Logan intends to investigate the reported gold strike at the headwaters of the Rogue. Reports are to the effect that a regular gold rush is being staged, and Mr. Logan does not intend to pass anything up. He places some credence in the reports which have been sent out concerning the rich strikes because of early stories circulated during the Indian war, to the effect that a miner found a ledge of gold that was later lost.—Courier.

HOME WEDDING IS HELD IN TALENT

Two Well Known Young People Married Last Wednesday; On Honeymoon

(By Mrs. Grace Andrews)
A very attractive home wedding took place at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Adamson near Talent, at eight o'clock Wednesday morning when their daughter, Miss Marjorie Adamson, and Ted Ge Bauer were united in marriage, the Rev. P. K. Hammond, the officiating clergyman. The impressive ring ceremony was used.

The bride was charming in a white silken gown. There were 10 attendants. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present: Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Adamson, Mrs. Raymond Badger and baby, Mary Adamson, Mr. and Mrs. Max Ge Bauer, Oma and Harold and Henry Pace.

Following the ceremony an elaborate wedding breakfast was served the bridal party at the Blue Flower Lodge in Phoenix.

A color scheme of pale pink and white was carried out very artistically in the centerpiece of sweet peas and in dainty candles.

Mr. and Mrs. Ge Bauer left by motor for Portland. Upon their return they will be at home in their own new bungalow in Medford where the groom is in business.

Miss Adamson is a graduate of A. H. S. and has attended O. A. C. Mr. Ge Bauer graduated from Eugene H. S. and attended U. of O.

Mr. and Mrs. Ge Bauer are well known popular young people and the best of good wishes are extended from their many friends for a life of happiness.

NEWS LETTER

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 17.—Last of what was once a vast industry, the New Haven Carriage Company has closed its doors and is liquidating. "We are too far from the center of the auto industry," say the owners, who have plenty of money, are not greatly in debt, and find themselves ready to retire from active business. The concern has been going along swimmingly of late years, building special bodies for high-grade cars and upholstering other bodies to special order. "Every time a woman has a new gown she wants her car upholstered to match" — so the tale ran in company circles until just lately.

Huge factory buildings, now used as manufacturing or storage lofts, once housed New Haven's carriage trade. Sailing or steam vessels brought wood to wharfs that now handle nothing but coal, and then took away finished carriages destined to ports

Baling Hay for Market

By BERT BALL
(National Crop Improvement Service.)
THE price of hay is lowered nearly every year by a bunch of careless shippers who make loose, imperfect bales containing rank mixtures of weeds and foreign matter.

The National Hay association is making a determined campaign to improve the quality and price of hay.

There are many things to be observed in baling hay: First it must be properly cured, of a good color,

By BERT BALL
(National Crop Improvement Service.)
"IT PROBABLY IS a mistake to select the very largest ears for seed corn, because too often the frost comes so early that they may not mature," says Dennis A. Merriman of the American Steel and Wire Co., and the seed ears selected for one latitude may not be the best for sowing even a hundred miles away.

"I have attended corn shows where the exhibitors seemed to be pleased at the immense number of varieties shown. This seems to me all over the Seven Seas. Fortunes were made out of carriages and New Haven prospered. As available lumbering land retreated farther and farther west, the carriage companies pulled out and followed the timber. Some liquidated and their owners retired to enjoy life in a college town. Now the day of the last of the carriage makers is over.

Yale is to have an indoor skating rink as large as any in the land. When fire wiped out the Arena late in June and took away the place where for a dozen years Yale hockey teams have had historic battles on ice with Harvard and Princeton—here Hobey Bayer first reached high points at hockey—plans were drawn at once to rebuild the structure. Harry F. Walker, known as the "Ice King of New England," will furnish the money, close to half a million, and Yale's athletic department will take a long lease on the structure, which is to be ready by November 15.

The lately burned Arena, incidentally, was once the site of a great carriage-making plant.

Those students at Yale who inhabit the dormitory rampart along College street and whose rooms overlook historic Central Green, will have a new proposition to detract them from their studies when "college opens in the fall." The City Fathers are to install a radio set with loud speakers beneath the Liberty pole on the green to entertain the citizens whose relaxation is to park on the grass or benches of the green's eighteen acres. An experiment, this. If it succeeds every park in the city is to have like equipment.

SHENANDOAH IS TO FLY WESTWARD TO COAST

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The navy department officially announced this afternoon that the giant dirigible U. S. S. Shenandoah would fly to the West coast during a series of maneuvers to be conducted with the Atlantic fleet during August and September. The date of its departure for the Pacific was not decided.

RUNAWAY GIRLS ARE LOCATED IN OREGON

MARYSVILLE, Calif., July 19.—A message to Sheriff McCoy from Grants Pass, Ore., last night conveyed the news that Floris Evans, 16, and Bessie Thornton, 14, runaway Yuba City girls, who left home last Saturday in an automobile belonging to the stepfather of the Evans girl, were apprehended at that place late yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Hosking, mother of the Evans girl, left for Grants Pass this morning to return with the girls.

The officers of Grants Pass the girls declare that no person accompanied them to Oregon. With them, however, were two Oregon young men, the authorities at Grants Pass report.

KILLS 25 WILD ANIMALS IN ONE MONTH

KLAMATH FALLS, July, 19.—High point man among the 24 predatory animal hunters who operated in Oregon was H. H. Cusher of Klamath County, according to word received here today from Stanley G. Jewell, predatory animal inspector of the United States bureau of biological survey.

In the thirty days of June, Cusher accounted for twenty-five animals. He killed four bobcats, twenty adult coyotes and one pup coyote.

PHRENOLOGY AND HANDWRITING NOT CHARACTER INDEX

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, July 17.—Phrenology and the study of handwriting are not accurate keys to a person's character in the opinion of Dr. Bernard C. Ewer, professor of psychology in Pomona college, California, and instructor in the University of Oregon summer session in Portland. Dr. Ewer expressed the view that the surest test of character was in the reaction of the individual to his surroundings and his ability to fit into his environment, and not in outward signs such as are used by phrenologists and handwriting experts in their "character reading."

"Phrenologists have attempted to read character by the protuberances over the ears and projections on the back of the head," said Dr. Ewer, "overlooking the fact that these prominences are due to physical development and in the case of the back of centers of motor activity that have nothing to do with intellectual qualities."

"Many specimens of penmanship have been studied without proving any index to character," he stated, "unless we consider one who habitually fails to dot 'i's and cross 't's as careless in habit. Recently, however, a California teacher found that by increasing and decreasing the speed of writing and the size of letters in a given time and by producing marked deviations from the natural handwriting of the subject, it was possible to determine certain traits of character."
