CHURCHMEN DISCUSS CHURCH PROBLEMS IN SMALL COMMUNITIES

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, July 21—The problem of the small church and the church in sparsely settled territory came in for intensive discussion on national missions day at the Presbyterian synod of Oregon in session here. "The small churches," said Rev. L. L. Boyd of Baker, "are hanging on in the face of scant support. The national board of missions grants money to promising fields rather than to needy ones." The plan of federating churches, through uniting on building and maintenance with kindred denominations, was urged by Rev. Dr. W. O. Forbes, of San Francisco, who is engaged in mission work. This plan, it was pointed out by Rev. John McDowell, of Philadelphia, secretary of the Board of National Missions, is encouraged by the Presbyterian general assembly.

Too Much Competition
"The problem," said Dr. McDowell, "is to prevent competition in these smaller fields. Competition may be the life of trade, but it may be the death of religion. The national representatives of the several churches agree on this policy of non-competition in sparsely settled fields, but somewhere along the line there comes opposition, and the competition goes on." Dr. Wallace H. Lee, of Albany, pointed regretfully to ten non-cooperating churches in the seven counties making up the Willamette presbytery. "It seems a crime not to have these churches operating," he said, "but we haven't the money to conduct the work." Speaking of work along the line of the railroad development between Eugene and Klamath Falls, he said: "Two of three communities along the way ought to be organized, but we haven't the money to do it. Is it right for us to let a community come into being with all the centers of vice, operating without our starting religious work simply because we haven't the funds?"

Rev. R. W. Achorn of Woodburn, expressed the opinion that "few of the small churches were adequately meeting the needs of the community as they ought to be met. Most of the churches need equipment; we can't meet community needs with a one-room church." Dr. A. E. Caswell, of the University of Oregon, an elder, expressed the opinion that with the great development in modern transportation, due to good roads and the automobile, a good bit of the need for the smaller churches had been done away with; he saw no need for the smaller church within easy reach of the larger body.

PRIMITIVE WATER SUPPLY SERVES CALIFORNIA TOWN

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—Engineers of the Hydraulic Division of the Railroad Commission recently discovered, during their inspections, the most primitive water supply system serving any community in California in the town of Chicaguita, Los Angeles County, which is entirely inhabited by Mexican families who are employed in the orange groves in the vicinity. Each family, or a group of two or three families, constructs an underground cistern that is usually built of cobbles, (which abound in that section) and lined with cement. Water is obtained from a pumping plant and ditch system which is operated once a week. The cisterns are filled with water and are of sufficient capacity to supply the consumers for a week's time. Water is dipped from the cistern by the old-fashioned method of a bucket at the end of a rope. There are 100 families in the neighborhood who obtain their domestic water supply in this manner.

SHASTA COUNTY WATER SUPPLY GETTING LOW

REDDING, Calif., July 21.—So dry is this season, creeks and ditches supplying water to the farmers under the Bee Creek Ditch and Water Company system, near One and Gas Point, are now carrying only one-eighth of the normal supply. The water master cuts down each landowner's supply accordingly. The Messelbeck reservoir that stores water for the Happy Valley Irrigation District is running low. It can supply the district with water only two weeks more, for there must be left enough water in the reservoir to keep alive the fish with which it was stocked.

HUCKLEBERRIES RIPE NOW, SAYS HAMAKER

That there will be a slightly better than average crop of huckleberries on Huckleberry Mountain this year, and that the crop is a month earlier than usual was the statement today of S. C. Hamaker. According to him, campers are already picking berries. "It is very unusual for berries to ripen in July," said Mr. Hamaker. "They are usually ready about a month from now."

FIVE CHILDREN ARE BURNED TO DEATH

GREENVILLE, Pa., July 21.—Five children of Fred Hedglin, all under nine years, were burned to death when a fire destroyed their home near here. Two other children escaped by jumping from the second story window. The father was away from home and the mother was working in the garden. The latter tried vainly to rescue the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Tuttle were among the many Ashland residents who witnessed the presentation of Robin Hood at the Fair grounds Saturday night and were the guests of A. S. Rosenbaum, of Medford.

Returned Saturday—

Mrs. Julius Koch, of Laurel street, returned to Ashland Saturday after a vacation of several weeks in eastern Oregon, where she formerly lived. She visited in the Mayville country.

MARSHALLING FORCES IN ORDER FOR COMING OF SEN. LA FOLLETTE

Organization of the LaFollette campaign in Oregon is proceeding with a rapidity never before equalled in political movements, according to A. M. Arnold, Chairman of the temporary LaFollette committee which consists of members from farmer, labor and other progressive groups.

Announcement of the organization of the temporary committee was followed immediately by a response from scores of persons who tendered their services in the coming campaign, says Mr. Arnold. He says interest is by no means confined to farmers and industrial labor, but is evident in as great a degree in professional and business circles.

Arnold says that old party organizations are cognizant of the LaFollette sentiment; he points out that each of the old parties is directing its attack, this early in the campaign, toward the LaFollette candidacy.

Speaking dates and other educational endeavors will not be arranged until the campaign committee is thoroughly organized and is in touch with LaFollette supporters throughout the state.

ALLEGED STEPBROTHER OF DEAUTREMONTS HELD

EUREKA, Calif., July 20.—Frank Case, 17, said by the authorities to be a step-brother of the De Autremont brothers, who are wanted for murder and train robbery committed in Jackson County was arrested here yesterday on a statutory charge. A letter addressed to his mother, Mrs. Paul De Autremont of Eugene, Ore., predicting his arrest, was found on his person.

PERSIAN GOVERNMENT MAKES FORMAL APOLOGY

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The Persian government has presented formal regrets to the American state department over the slaying of Major Imonie, American vice-council, by a finitinal mob at Tehran, in that country. The Persian government offered to undertake any diplomatic action with reason to placate this government.

WEATHER FORECAST

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—The outlook is for continued fair weather in California, except for considerable cloudiness near the coast, and for mostly cloudy weather with probably local rains in Washington and Oregon. Temperatures will continue near normal. The outlook for the fire weather situation in Washington and Oregon favors a relatively low hazard.

Daily Fashion Hint

EFFECTIVE IN PRINTED CREPE

This unusually clever frock accents the vogue of printed silks. The kimono waist dress under the left arm and has a cape which is included in the neck and shoulder seams. Attached to the blouse is a three-piece skirt of the wrap-around type, draped up and closed at the left side. Medium size requires 4 1/2 yards of 36-inch silk. Pictorial Review Dress No. 2256. Sizes, 34 to 44 inches bust. Price, 35 cents.

SMART AND YOUTHFUL

No one will question the youthful grace and smartness of this frock of check silk in Scotch colorings. A collar of plain satin bound with the material of the dress finishes the V-shaped neck, and this idea is repeated on the short sleeves. The jabot frill at the left side is also of satin. Below the jabot dark buttons strike a sharp note of contrast in the decorative scheme. Medium size requires 4 yards 96-inch check and 1/2 yard plain material. Pictorial Review Dress No. 2257. Sizes, 34 to 46 inches bust and 19 to 20 years. Price, 35 cents.

Clean Seed Wheat

By BERT BALL (National Crop Improvement Service.) WHILE a vast improvement has been shown in all farming operations, somehow the fanning mill is not holding its own in popularity. Seed selection has been neglected, and while there is no doubt that the variety best adapted to soil and climate, who fan it until it is clean and plump; who test it for germination after having treated it with formaldehyde or copper carbonate for smut, always have a better yield of better quality and consequently a better price. There are evils which the farmer can cure for himself, and these items are cheap and easy and will bring great returns.

Swim to Health

[Water Safety Council of America.] THERE is no harder strain on the human constitution than inactivity. To sit in an office half your lifetime is a far greater strain on the vitality than a trip through Africa, or to the North pole. To offset the evils of a sedentary life there is no better exercise than swimming, as it brings into activity every muscle of the body without any undue strain. The muscles of enthusiastic swimmers show an even, proportionate development. Swimming keeps the muscles supple, enlarges the diaphragm and the thorax, straightens the spinal column, and corrects evils that arise from the use of improper clothing. "Swim to health" should be the motto in hospitals, schools, sanitariums, asylums, and every children's playground should be provided with a large, shallow pool. No man can keep his mind on his business while enjoying a swim, and thus does swimming help to preserve mental balance as well as muscular symmetry. The necessity of being able to swim is rightfully apparent to the drowning person, and the thousands needlessly drowned have a poor educational system to thank for their fate. Someone has said there is no such thing as a free lunch. Strange stories could be told of persons who have had a chance to learn to swim and who refused and shortly afterward were drowned. Nature is very busy exterminating the stupid. "If it is hard it is wrong," is an old Chinese saying, and applies more to the art of swimming than to any other art. Where a number of persons are gathered together to enjoy this sport, there is only one line to be drawn—the water level; and the heads above water. Everyone has a right to learn to swim, and also to a sanitary pool. If you are interested in swimming or in your source of water supply, please write the Water Safety Council of America (Chicago) for information and ask for pamphlet, "How to Swim."

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

Backache is a common symptom of many diseases. Very frequently it is very necessary to know this cause before successful treatment can be given. By this term backache is usually meant a lumbar pain beginning in the region of the first lumbar vertebra and extending down the spine. The pain may be in the center of the back, along the spine, or on either one or both sides of the spine. The largest number of backaches are due to strain, fatigue, and lack of balance. Strain may result from unnatural posture, a poor muscular balance, or abnormal abdominal conditions such as enlarged or prolapsed organs, obesity etc. The fatigue may be produced by constant attitude in some occupation, such as stooping or bending, or by lifting heavy objects. In many cases the muscular balance becomes abnormal through fallen or broken arches of the feet, or by the use of poorly fitting shoes. The pain in these cases is apt to extend upward from the lower extremity to the back. In some instances the backache has been so constant or frequent that a neurotic patient will develop a condition of the mind that allows concentration on the back with the result that the pain will be present without any other cause. Such a spine is known as "hysterical spine." Treatment, in such cases, may be mainly general and should be directed toward relieving and curing the neurotic tendency. That is, the entire nervous system must be built up as much as possible. Local treatments, however, will be of value and should include electric light, heat, massage, vibration, etc. Some backaches are due to an inflammation of the nerves, and these cases include simple neuritis or part of a multiple neuritis from alcoholism, lead, or diabetes. The alcohol and lead must be removed from the system, and the diabetes must be properly treated. A large number of backaches result from points of infection elsewhere. Such infections may be acute tonsillitis, tooth infection, pneumonia or influenza. In addition to backache, there are usually symptoms pointing to the causative condition.

Brisco and all members of the efficient corps of instructors. The visitor also expressed satisfaction with the rapid growth in attendance at the local school. Pres. Landers will leave this evening on his return to Monmouth.
