BERNARD MACFADDEN

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

In America to-day, it is estimated that fully seventy-five per cent of people have irregular teeth. At the Forensic Dental Infirmary it has been shown that fully ninety-five per cent of the children presenting themselves for treatment are thus affected. The difficulty of cleansing irregular teeth often results in decay.

Of 1,694 children examined by Dr. A. Freedman Foote, only eleven were found to possess normal teeth. Dr. Foote, in a report to the Second District Dental Society of New York, stated that "the sixth year molars of nearly every child examined were broken down, wholly or in part. In many instances these molars were decayed below the gum margins. So extensive and far advanced were the defects that corrective treatment, even if it were applied, would have been of little value."

Eighty-six per cent of the 10,500 school children examined by the British Dental Association were suffering from more or less pronounced defects of the teeth—the result of a diet lacking in the essential mineral elements upon which the bones and the teeth depend for their development, and of improper and timely dentistry.

Needless to say, the moral of all this is: First, that children should be supplied with plenty of material for building teeth; and next, that these members should receive the most scrupulous care. As soon as the child is old enough (three years, or even younger, is about the proper age), it should be taught the use of a little tooth-brush, or better yet, the more sanitary tooth polisher, or buffer, and encouraged to use this after each meal, if possible, particularly before going to bed.

Be especially careful to see that the child performs its mouth toilet before retiring at night, no matter how sleepy or indisposed to exert himself he may be. For the night is the "period of greatest decay." The busy little tongue and jaws are at rest, and the salivary secretions are not kept circulating as they are in the daytime. This hyperacidity in the salivary secretions, and the attack of these acids upon the vulnerable alkaline substance of the teeth.

CITIZENSHIP OF D. M. DUNN CHALLENGED

ing in this, there remains the other alternative of his coming into the federal court with a petition, urging that during all the past years he has been misinformed and petitioning the court to grant him citizenship under special provision of the naturalization law. This procedure would require a lapse of 90 days from the date the petition was filed with the court until it could be taken up for final consideration.

Dunne reiterated Wednesday his belief of years' standing that his father had been naturalized, and conferred with United States District Attorney Coke and naturalization officials relative to rectifying the situation in the event that he is unable to establish the fact by documentary evidence.

County Clerk Beveridge said that he would examine into the complaint outlined in Pantlo's letter.

To Grand Jury—
Elmer Peters, the young man arrested the first of the week by the sheriff, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Taylor this morning, on a forgery charge, and was bound over to the grand jury under $1000 bonds. Peters is a thoroughly disgusted young man and is alleged to have passed in the neighborhood of $150 in worthless checks on Medford and Ashland business houses.—Mail Tribune.

The Tidings' Ads Bring Results

Dance Hot Springs, Sat. nite. 277-2t

Our Mistake—
In the sweltering heat of yesterday afternoon, the Tidings proofreader let a typesetting error escape him that entirely changed the meaning of a paragraph of an article by C. R. D. Jones, taken from the Southern Pacific Bulletin. In writing, Mr. Jones said: "In other words, a desirable employee must have his head 'cut in' at all times." In the Tidings, the sentence read, "In other words, a desirable employee must have his head 'cut off' at all times." This sentence, indicating that a good employee deserved beheading, was due entirely to an oversight.

NOTICE—Bring your blackberries to the cannery before noon, Saturday. Bagley Canning Co. 277-2t

Indians Ask Aid—
Reports from Klamath Falls say that the Klamath Indians ask a fund of $15,000 to be taken from the reimbursing fund of $150,000 recently appropriated for the Indians. The request was due to a distressing drought and lack of hay on the Klamath Reservation, according to a resolution passed by the Klamath tribal council, and addressed to C. H. Burk, commissioner of Indian affairs for the Department of the Interior.

May Breath 10c and 25c—McNair Bros.

To Crater Lake—
A man who drove from Gridley, California, just to see Crater Lake and the kindred attractions of the West's playground is W. A. Walden, who came in to Ashland yesterday to register his California car. He read of the registration law at the state line, and drove in here for a permit before going to the lake by way of Klamath Falls. He intends to return over the Medford route, he said, the trip having been recommended to him by the registrant of out-of-state machines.

HULL RUN WATER SUPPLY IS LOW

PORTLAND, July 25.—Copious rains will save Portland from a serious water shortage, but unless such rains come along quite soon it will be necessary to impose further restrictions upon sprinkling or draw upon the 50-day reserve supply of water at Bull Run lake.

The actual situation is that the Bull Run river and its tributaries are dwindling at an alarming rate. On Monday there was 1-20 of a foot of water flowing over the dam at the Bull Run headworks. Yesterday there was not a drop of water going over the dam. In fact, the water was more than a foot below the dam. A greater fall than this was declared certain unless rains should fall or the reserve waters of Bull Run lake be turned into the river.

REPORTS INDICATE MEDFORD WATER BAD

Health Official Advises Boiling Drinking Water; Arthur Perry Comments

"What are they doing?" That question is often asked when Ashland residents see groups of people clustered around public fountains, filling jugs and bottles, not with Lithia water, but with plain old city water. Some of those getting water are unquestionably tourists, but others look suspiciously like "substantial citizens." Occasionally, one is recognized as one of Medford's "substantial citizens." A few have said that while in the city, they take advantage of the opportunity to get some water that is thin enough to swallow without chewing.

On the front page of yesterday's Mail Tribune appeared the following:

Dr. E. B. Pickle, city health official, announced today that he advised all Medford people to boil their drinking water, until further notice. This action is regarded as a necessary measure of precaution.

On the editorial page, Arthur Perry, Medford humorist, was moved to comment as follows:

"Blood is thicker than water", and contains no vegetable matter. The local aqua pura is enough to drive the masses to peruna.
