SEPTEMBER 9: A NEW COMMANDMENT I give unto you, That ye love one another: as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

DESIRABLES AND UNDESIRABLES: Bert Moses of this city, who contributes a department regularly to "Newspaperdom," a weekly publication for newspaper workers, has an article in the August 28th issue under the caption of "Environment," which embodies some wonderful lessons in nature study, as well as a lesson which every business man should consider.

The article, which centers around Mr. Moses' home in Ashland Creek Canyon, tells of the fear which birds and animals felt when he first went to the wilderness home and then continues:

"We put a stop to all shooting of firearms on the place. Then we cleared away the brush and logs and stumps and rocks, and made a great big fine lawn that was kept fresh and green by irrigation. We planted a vegetable garden and a flower garden, and put in strawberry plants and raspberry and blackberry bushes.

"First thing we knew we had a lot of birds come and make their home with us. At the start they were quite shy, but we never molested them, and now most of them are about as tame as chickens. We have robins, humming birds, chickadees, nuthatches, wood-peckers, purple finches, juncoes, hermit thrushes, orioles, quail, grouse, blue jays, whiskey jacks and others I am unable to identify.

"We feed the birds every day, and they come to their meals as regularly as a hired man. Of course, the quail and grouse are still timid, having been shot at so often, but they are gradually becoming acquainted with us, and some of these days I look for them to take their board with us like other species. The whiskey jacks are very bold and fearless, coming to my hand for food with no misgivings whatever.

"Then we have a salt lick for the deer. Every night they come and hold a jamboree over the treat. On moonlight nights we can watch them from the windows, and sometimes they stay around the lick until after daylight. Occasionally the beautiful creatures come near the cabin in open daylight, and often I see them as I go up and down the Canyon road.

"Being kind to animals has its disadvantages too, for there are certain creatures of the wild, just as there are certain human creatures, whose companionship is not wanted.

"Among these undesired creatures are porcupines. Just what they are good for and just why God thought it necessary to create them science has not yet explained.

"What attracts the porcupines to the cabin seems to be my flowers. I have them all around the cabin, bordered with the finest pansies that ever ran the riot of endless colors. I guess there must be at least 200 feet of these pansies around the buildings. And I have a particularly fine bed of pansies at the base of the big Douglas fir that lifts its head many feet into the air out in the front yard.

"I will not tell you the details about the toads, the lizards, the snakes, the gophers, the moles, the rats, and the mice that have taken advantage of the environment we have created, but we have them to contend with too. Toads and lizards and snakes are quite useful in destroying bugs, insects and other undesirable things, but the gophers, moles, rats and mice are to be classified with the porcupines as plain damn nuisances. We put them out of the way painlessly as we can. They are just about as smart as we are, and eliminating them calls for a lot of real intelligence.

"Now, then, we come to the moral of this little essay on 'Environment.' You can attract anything you want with the right environment. If you run a store or a factory or anything else where the service is pleasing, you will find more and more people coming to buy your goods. If your clerks are courteous, and if you run the place on the basis of always doing the right thing, why, bless me, you will have to add some more stories to the building and buy the property adjoining to take care of your increased trade. Success in everything is simply finding out what people want and giving it to them.

"Naturally you will attract some undesirable animals, but that is a part of the Divine Plan—the bad follows the good wherever it goes.

"To hold fast to the good and eliminate the bad—that is about all there is to this thing we call life."

The Oregon Journal in speaking of the decision to be handed down tomorrow by Judge Caverly brings out the fact the 10th of the month is the day when orderly business firms complete the settlements of their accounts. Many feel that Leopold and Loeb owe a debt to justice and possibly Judge Caverly will demand a settlement tomorrow.

The Daily Tidings is glad that the ministers of the city have approved the idea of Defense Day—which is generally recognized as a day of education more than a day to create any idea of fighting.

MILLER TO MEET BRYAN IN ASHLAND

PORTLAND, Sept. 8.—William Jennings Bryan, the commoner, is coming to Oregon to aid Milton A. Miller, Democratic nominee for United Senator.

Bryan, who is a brother of Charles Bryan, Democratic nominee for vice-president of the United States, will arrive in Ashland next Wednesday at 5:40 p. m. and leaves at 7:10. He will make a political speech there.

Thursday night Bryan lectures here at the public auditorium under auspices of Ellison & White. From Portland he will go to Seattle and Tacoma and will return later to Oregon for political speeches.

Miller has been a friend of the commoner since 1896, the year of the first Bryan campaign. Miller will meet Bryan in Ashland and travel north with him.

NEW HAVEN PLANS PATROL TO PROTECT WATERFRONT

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 8.—Times are changing, according to old-timers, who were amazed when Police Commissioners announced they planned a marine precinct to protect New Haven's eighteen miles of water front. The erstwhile harbor of windjammers that distributed New Haven products from Calais to Tampa is suffering as never before from bandits who operate in speedy motorboats, bootleggers that seem to have plenty of customers, and careless boat handlers. So police intend to patrol the harbor front and the slips, and maybe assist the Fire Department when fires occur near the docks.

THOUSAND U. S. TRACTORS ARE SHIPPER TO RUSSIA

NEW YORK, Sept. 9. — One thousand tractors and other agricultural implements aggregating over 5,000 tons and valued at about a million dollars have been ordered by the Soviet Government for distribution in those parts for Russia where the consequences of the recurring droughts are aggravated by primitive methods of tilling the soil.

This is one of the largest shipments of American tractors destined for Russia. The purchase was effected through the Amtorg Trading Corporation, the sole agent in this country of the Russian State Import and Export Bureau.

GRADUATE NURSE SAYS TANLAC HAS NO EQUAL

Mrs. Borden Has Used It For Years In Treating Patients.

"From my long experience as a professional nurse, I do not hesitate to say I consider Tanlac the most efficient and natural stomach medicine and tonic to be had. It is undoubtedly nature's most perfect remedy," is the far reaching statement given out for publication recently, by Mrs. I. A. Borden, 425 Pontius Avenue, Seattle, Wash., a graduate of the National Temperance Hospital Chicago.

"I have used Tanlac exclusively for several years in the treatment of my charity patients," said Mrs. Borden, "and my experience has been that for keeping the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels functioning properly, and for toning up the system in general, it has no equal."

"About a year ago I had a lady patient who could not keep a thing on her stomach fifteen minutes, not even water. I prevailed on her to try Tanlac and after the Sixth bottle she could eat absolutely anything she wanted without the slightest bad after-effects."

"I had another patient who simply could not eat. I got him started on Tanlac and by the time he finished three bottles he was eating ravenously and able to work."

"These two instances are typical of the wonderful merits of the medicine. My confidence in Tanlac is unlimited."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills, for constipation.
