The realtor is different. He is unlike the "real estate agent" that was.

This was accentuated at a big dinner given by Portland realtors in honor of H. R. Ennis, president of the National Association of Realty Board, who was a Portland visitor last week.

Selling real estate for others has become a near profession. It is governed by a strict code of ethics, at least among those who are members of the Realty Boards. It is an exacting code which requires agents to protect the or surgeon strives to protect the health of his patients.

The "real estate agent" used to have his client set a price on his property. If that price was $5000 and the agent sold the property for $7000, he pocketed the profit. That was looked upon as legitimate practice then. But it is banned practice now by the realty boards. A sale is made on a fixed commission and the realtor relies solely on the commission for his profit, doing all in his power to forward the client's interests in any and all trans-

Nor is this the whole of the change that has come. The realty board and its membership are a fórmidable factor in pushing the claims and achievements of the community. The Enuis dinner was largely devoted to the presentation of statistics showing the progress, the resources and the future outlook of Portland and Oregon. GET RICH QUICK SCHEMES

There is considerable agitation in this state today about get rich quick stock sales, although it seems that the law which is on the statute book for the protection of the Oregon investors against such danger has not worked very satisfactorily.

A Cleveland trust company, wanting to educate the people of that city against doubtful stock company investments, adopted the idea of an advertisement in their window showing a fictitious investment company. The advertisement was of a cat and rat ranch, in which the perpetual motion idea was used. The rats were to be fed to the cats; the cats killed for their furs and the bodies of the murdered cats to be fed to the rats, thus getting

Soon after the advertisement was displayed the people started streaming into the trust company's building, all anxiously inquiring the address of the company which had such a wonderful future and which offered such a Editor splendid opportunity for large profits.

The people did not see the idea embodied in the .. Telephone 39 scheme of the trust company, which was forced to withdraw the advertisement from the window.

Such instances make one wonder if the people really want protection from shady investment companies.

At the end of the Boulevard, foundations are being laid for a new structure, which reports say will be another greenhouse.

It is a fact well known to students of municipal soeiology that cities, like humans, move. There is scarcely an old established city in the country that has not wit nessed such a movemen. Buildings once in the heart of New York are now on the outskirts of the business district. In Portland, the retail district has moved in the past 25 years, and wholesale businesses occupy the former retail center. The same is true of Seattle.

Now, it seems that Ashland is on the move. Fourth county, will be started at once by street was once the business district of the city. Then the River Logging & Lumber comcame the park and highway, and the Plaza became the business center. When it became necessary to establish new businesses, East Main residences were torn down and commercial structures erected. Partly because there is no room elsewhere, and partly because the live-wire merchant wants to be the first one seen by the thousands of incoming California tourists, the district is to be built up even more. In a few years, the old residences between interests of their clients as conscientiously as a physician present commercial houses will be gone, and structures of the latest demand will have taken their places.
