CAMAS MILL BURNED WITH $100,000 LOSS

CAMAS, Wash., Sept. 19.—The mill and lumber yards of the Camas Lumber company were totally destroyed at 3:30 a. m. Wednesday by a fire supposed to have originated by spontaneous combustion in sawdust beneath the saw plant of the mill. The loss, which is estimated at $100,000, is offset by insurance of $50,000. A strong wind blew embers from the burning sawdust to many parts of the plant and was discovered by the night watchman, the entire property was burning. VISITOR WRITES OF VISIT TO ASHLAND (Continued from Page 1) is afforded the travelers, and many stop there every night. Yesterday a machine was registered from Indiana, my native state, and I was glad. This park will be improved each season. I judge so from the signs on the trees as "Trinity," "Eternity," etc. Evidently it will continue if eternity is one of the backer: of this institution. Yes, the town has a bakery and it is called "Lithia Bakery." Do not know if it has the "Trinity" sign or not. If it has it must be it uses soda, flour and lithia water. If I knew that this bakery used sulphur water in its bread, I would boycott the place. Ashland also has a store where the dollar has the most cents. The very first time I have a dollar I am going to take it to that store. Manhattan shirts, too, here onethird off. Of course, it is warm here, but had it been in New York city during the democratic convention it would have been no surprise to see Manhattan shirts all off!

Plan New Hotel
Ashland, like many other towns, is striving for something better. Just now efforts are concentrated on the building of a very fine hotel, one that would reflect great credit upon a town of 50,000 population. Aim high seems to be the slogan of this town that is a picture of beauty on the northern slope of the Siskiyou. Climatically, the town is favored. It is anti-malarial and anti-asthmatic. Any climate that is anti to that much is worth something. This must be true as the local paper, "The Daily Tidings," says so. This paper is a wide-awake visitor, though it does not visit the home until toward evening. It is considerate; it does not break in on one's work in the morning; it waits till the work is over and then gives the "up-to-the-minute" news. It is a substantial booster for its town.

Fall Fashions Are With Us

The opening of the new season finds Dame Fashion in one of her most charming and agreeable moods. That worthy personage smiles upon femininity, and is apparently willing to grant her every desire in the way of fashions and fabrics. She will lend a guiding hand, as is becoming her gracious self, but for the most part, clothes will be a matter of personal choice.

Whether, then, the fashionable woman goes dressed in bouffant manner, or whether she prefers the straight, slim outline, whether she will have a waist-line or not;—all this is a matter of individual taste. She may wear what is becoming, and know she is correctly costumed. And we are prepared to offer her just as wide a selection as will come within the limits of fashionable decree.
