OREGON HAVING 1ST GAME TODAY UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Sept. 27.—Oregon gets the first test of the 1924 football season today, at Salem against the Willamette Bearcats. The Oregon prospects have picked up with the return of several veterans and promising freshmen. Maddock will take about three squads to Salem and will give every man a chance if possible. The varsity mentor isn't underrating the strength of the Willamette eleven and is taking enough reserve material in case of injury. The Oregon schedule calls for a great deal of travel and eight games in a row, which means that "jacks" might let the varsity back. Maddock will not pick a tentative lineup until the game Saturday. It is likely that he will start the majority of his lettermen at the opening whistle. Three lettermen are eligible for backfield duty and six veterans on the line. LA FOLLETTE MAY LOSE OUT IN LA. BEFORE ELECTION NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 27.—The petition to place the name of La Follette on the ballot for the November elections will be refused unless the La Follette followers successfully obtain court action. The decision means that La Follette loses Louisiana even before the voters go to the polls. ILLINOIS AGAIN TO FRONT WITH A GIRL MURDERER MARION, Ill., Sept. 27.—Soldiers with fixed bayonets guard the Williamson county jail today as pretty young Ruby Hearingson Tate, confessed to the murder of her first husband, Joseph Hearingson, in order to marry Bob Tate, a star boarder at the Hearingson home. COYOTE HUNTERS ARE SENT TO JOSEPHINE PORTLAND, Sept. 27.—At the request of the Josephine county court, two government hunters have been sent to that district to wage war on coyotes, which are held responsible for an outbreak of rabies among dogs in the Dryden vicinity. The disease has caused some livestock loss, according to report to the United States bureau of biological survey in Portland.

UNUSUAL EVENTS COMMANDING YOUR INTEREST

JACKSONVILLE, Florida, Sept. 27.—Florida, whose chief "crop" is tourists, now is making preparations for the biggest harvest in its history. Already the "tin can" tourists are invading the land of "sunshine and freckles." A number of foreign automobile license tags have been observed on the streets of Jacksonville within the last few days. According to figures compiled by the Florida Development Board approximately 1,000,000 tourists invaded Florida during the fiscal year ending August 31. An increase of 10 to 15 per cent is anticipated by the Development Board during the ensuing year. Practically every resort city in Florida has constructed a new hotel or new apartment houses during the Summer months. Miami has boasted of a bigger building program than any other city in the State. During August Miami's building program totalled $3,578,980, which made a grand total of permits issued in that city since January 1 equal $16,418,911. Tampa, West Palm Beach, Daytona, Jacksonville and other Winter resort cities have trailed close on to Miami's record. Mrs. John Taylor is very ill at her home on B street.

GRIFFIN'S SHOW AT THE VINING

Sam Griffin's Original Premier Minstrel coming to the Vining theatre Monday night, are now making their third tour of the Pacific Coast. The Company is composed this year, of some of the most notable minstrel singers and comedians in the country today, and will be the best aggregation that has visited the Pacific Coast since Billy West's minstrels made their last tour fifteen years ago. Nearly all members of this company are from the big minstrel shows of the East and have spent their entire career in minstrelsy. Happy Benway, principal comedian of this company is one of America's foremost black face comedians and occupies a place in this profession almost exclusively his own. Mr. Benway was formerly one of the principal comedians with the Original Honey Boy Evans Minstrels, said to be one of the greatest minstrel shows ever produced in this country up to the time. He later made a tour of the Orpheum Circuit with seven of the Original Honey Boys. The seat sale is now on at the box office and from all appearances, the Minstrels are going to make a big hit in Ashland. There will be a parade and band concert Monday at noon.

TO HAUL LUMBER TO LOCAL PLANT

(Continued from Page 1) has a great significance. If it is a success a full fleet of Ford trucks and trailers will at once be put in commission night and day to get all of the lumber from the Field's mill before the snow flies.

ATTACK ON HARTMAN SYNDICATE IS MADE

(Continued from Page 1) tion commissioner until the stockholders have had an opportunity to meet and fully investigate the company's affairs and properties, is contained in a report filed with Governor Pierce today by Oswald West and George Black, appointed to investigate certain stock and bond sales in Oregon. Charges that the company was apparently organized for the purpose of creating a market for certain equipment used in the extraction of the oil from the rock, which equipment is manufactured by other concerns in which E. W. and H. W. Hartman are heavily interested and on the sale of which equipment they receive a royalty, and that they received $1,500,000 of the $3,000,000 capital stock of the Hartman syndicate as promoters, while the public was "expected to supply the capital and assume the risks," are set forth in the report. The syndicate was, according to the report, organized in May, 1923, with a capital stock of $3,000,000 divided into 30,000 shares with a par value of $10 each. For the purpose, apparently of circumventing our blue sky law, an attempt was first made to operate as a common law trust," says the report. "This action was forbidden by the corporation commissioner."

The report sets out that E. W. Hartman claimed to be the inventor of certain patented equipment and processes for the extraction of oil from shale rock, and "these patents were transferred to corporations organized by said Hartman in other states and having millions of paper capital. He appears to have been given stock control in these companies in exchange for his patents."

It was from one of these companies that the Hartman syndicate purchased its equipment. Representations made to stock purchasers in the syndicate that it owned three thousand acres of shale lands in southern Oregon are false, the report charges, asserting that the company owns but 600 acres of such land purchased with "money we understand was advanced to H. H. Hartman by local people who expected a certain amount of promotion stock in return."

The investigators find a balance still due on a tract of 120 acres purchased from the state. Commenting upon charges that have been made that the funds of the company have not been carefully expended and that there has been waste and extravagance and without attempting to pass upon the merits of the patents and processes, or the value of the lands, the reports says: "Regardless of the value of the deposits, your committee feels that the promoters of this undertaking should not be permitted to exact the $1,500,000 in promotion stock which we understand is held in escrow. Those who have in good faith bought stock in this company have a right to a fair share of any profits which may accrue." "This committee," says the report, "is not in position to pass upon the merits of the Hartman patents and processes, nor is it in position to pass upon the quality or quantity of the shale in question, nor the possibility of the undertaking becoming a commercial success. It is hoped that the undertaking will turn out as represented and that the city of Ashland and the stockholders of the company will profit greatly thereby. The subject seems to be covered by a report published in bulletin No. 1, Vol. 3 of The Mineral Resources of Oregon, published by the Oregon bureau of mines and geology."

THE CHEMISIER RETAINS ITS PLACE IN THE MODE

THE success of the chemise type of frock this summer has given rise to a delightful adaptation of the chemise idea for the more sedate months of autumn, as evidenced in this afternoon frock, which strikes a happy compromise between sportiveness and dignity. The dress is made of black Frost-krepe, a substantial crepe with a slight rib which is so much in evidence in Fall fashions, and is combined with wide Scotch plaid ribbon. The skirt is made in three tiers of the plaid, bordered with the Frostkrepe. The plaid appears again in the chic chemise front which gives the dress its pliancy, and in the bands on the long "skin-tight" sleeves which also mark the new mode. And, by the way, this dress, deceptively unsophisticated as it seems, reflects many of the newest ideas in the late Paris openings, for instance, the insertion of trimming motives into the sleeves. Premet, according to a cable received by Henri Creange, Director of the Cheney Style Service, sponsors "all sleeves straight, narrow, and long, with decorative motives at the wrist matching trimmings of dress." Jenny plays with the idea of bright colored yokes, and repeats this theme in sleeves. Says this cable, direct from her opening, "Often square chiffon yokes, sewn either in front or at back and prolonged in a scarf turning round neck and knotted at side. These effects are nearly always in some vivid color such as pink, orange, green, on black, navy blue or brown dress. Little knots, bands or cuffs of same chiffon posed rather high on sleeves, which are long and tight."

Building Experts Urge Year 'Round Activity of Construction Industries

For most types of construction it is now possible to build the year round in all parts of the United States. This is the conclusion reached by a committee on Seasonal Operation in the Construction Industries, appointed by Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, which has just completed what is described as "the first national effort to examine the causes of the seasonal ups and downs in a group of industries employing millions of men, the value of whose products is more than five billion dollars a year." The committee points out that it is not reasonable to crowd all the year's building into the five or six months of spring and summer. Carpenters, masons, painters, plasterers, electricians, plumbers and other artisans who are engaged in the building trades have to live the year round although they are ordinarily out of work three months in the average year. "Construction costs are high in part," the committee found, "because of the seasonal hazard which affects each step of the construction process from felling timber, quarrying rock, manufacturing brick, cement, tile, plaster and other commodities, transporting these materials by railway, waterway and highway, distributing them through retail supply dealers, clearing of site and excavating, to the completion and furnishing of the finished building. Idle time represents waste and direct loss to the construction industries, the workers and the public." Custom, not climate, is mainly responsible for seasonal idleness in the building trades. The committee's survey shows that seasonal slumps are not confined to regions where climate is severe. Cities in the South and on the Pacific Coast are affected much like those on the Canadian border. As an argument for building in the "off-season," the committee's report says: "The man who builds a home for himself wants to get the best possible house for his money. He is more vitally concerned in having his work performed economically than any other class of owners, but in all too many cases he follows the crowd and not only pays extra for the privilege but has to put up with a slower and less satisfactory job. The man who builds a house serves his own and the public interest best by starting work at the right time. The right time usually means when other customers are not rushing into the field."
