ENFORCE OUR SPEED LAWS

The highway north of Ashland was the scene of what might have been a very serious accident a few days ago, when a light truck was crashed into by a heavy car traveling along the highway at a high rate of speed. That the driver of the light truck was not killed, or at least seriously injured was a miracle, for the truck was badly damaged by the crash.

The driver of the heavy car, not content with paying for the damage done by the crash, insisted that he was not at fault, and it was only when he knew a police officer was on his way to the scene of the accident that he decided to move. Then he left without settling for his share of the damage. He was arrested in Medford, and upon expressing his willingness to pay for the damage, was re-

Although the driver of the truck may be satisfied with the outcome, his satisfaction will not save other drivers from the speed maniac who is certain to use the highways for a speedway if he is allowed to "get away" with this sort of thing. Jail sentences, or stiff fines should be meted out to these drivers who insist upon breaking speed records on the highways. In the case of the driver mentioned, there were many witnesses who were willing habit the hutches of Pell and to testify that he was exceeding the speed limit, but he Doyer and Mott streets have not lighted, mysterious streets. Alert was released following his acceptance of the demands made upon him by the injured party. If this sort of thing keeps up, can we hope to enforce our speed laws?

Joseph Conrad and Anatole France, recognized by leading authorities to have been the greatest writers developed during the past fifty years have both been called within the year.

Although classed as the two greatest writers, the works of these men were as different as night from day. France, the romanticist, the conjurer with things mysterious to the ordinary man, achieved his recognition and his greatest fame among the people of the romance states, Italy, Spain, France Although his works were widely read and appreci ted in the English speaking countries, since they suffered no loss through translation, they still hold their greatest popularity in those countries. His "Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard, "At the Sign of the Reine Peduque," "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," the "Revolti of the Angels" and the "Opinions of Jerome Coignard" are masterpieces in delicately handled subjects, which appeal to a romance loving people.

Conrad, the virile, the powerful, attained his greatest popularity among the readers of good literature in the English speaking countries. Born in Poland, at an early age a rover, Conrad was recognized as the greatest writer of the English language living, during his last few years on earth. With the appeal of a Jack London novel, 12. but with infinitely better subjects, more beautifully 15. handled, Conrad late in life reached the peak striven for by every writer, a recognized leader in the literary world. His "The Rover," and the "Nigger of the Narcissus" will go down in history with Emerson and Dickens as masterpieces in literature of the English language.

If Maine is an index, the campaign has already had some effect. The vote in that state in . September was greater by 45,000, or 25 per cent, than in 1922. But that gain, if general throughout the country, would still leave 27. Time certificates of deposit outstanding 26 per cent of the qualified voters unaccounted for, and the Boy Scouts are now getting after them .

Getting out the vote should be valuable not only as a cure for absenteeism but as a cureforoneofitschiefcauses cure for absenteeism but as a cure for one of its chief causes-the blanket ballot. No doubt many people stay away from the polls because they are required to choose STATE OF OREGON, County of Jackson ss. among many candidates, of whom they know little or nothing, for many minor offices. Being unable to choose and belief. with judgment, they let the whole business go by the board by not voting at all.

THIS "SOUL MATE" BUNK

"Soul mates" is a detestable term. Why must it al-

ASHLAND DAILY TIDINGS ways be applied to persons who seem to have less spiritual decency than those about them? Doubtless there were minor infelicities in the married lives of the two who have just obtained divorce that they may wed each other. Doubtless there were minor regrets, minor heartaches. Editor But what we most desire to know is whether the marriage deserters were certain about their grievances.- It is a proved fact that temperament is often mistaken for acute indigestion, and vice versa. The same selfish cruelty that inflicted pain upon the first mate, will inflict pain upon the next. These fools cry for the moon, and the moon is quite as unattainable as when the first cat squalled. At best they have but the sordid semblance of a romance, whose character they can never quite forget, and usually they live to be tearfully sorry for themselves. Lust has many guises-and of them all its favorite is divorce.

LONDON, Oct. 17. - Unem ployment is again increasing in England by leaps and bounds. Though an increase in unemployment is generally expected during the early autumn months the increase this year is so rapid that it has occasioned considerable surprise and not a little worry. Political circles, opposed to the government, have made the most of this increase and it has been made the basis of pessimistic predictions on the future of British trade. Politicians blame the increased unemployment on everything from the Dawes plan to the abolition of the tariff upon auto

In the face of a letter stating that 20,000.00 the California-Oregon Power com-2.550.00 pany would refuse to cooperate 4.500.37 in furnishing power and extending lines to farm pumping projects if its candidates were defeat ed, voters of the Klamath irriga tion district Tuesday cast out the present board of directors. By 70,738.53 a decisive margin they placed in office R, E. Bradbury and Joseph 3,660.98 Jacob, pledged to investigate alleged collusion between officials of the U.S. reclamation service and the power company in the matter of water purchase at less rates than charged farmers.

A bitter fight developed just before the election. Bradbury and 34,014.15 Jacob were opposed by Hans Nylander, incumbent, and Joseph Micka, both openly in favor of the old regime. Land-owners to the number of 244, holding ap proximately 50,000 acres of ir rigated land in the Merrill-Malin district, cast their votes.

> The new directors are pledged to investigate the circumstances under which the Keno and Al keny canals were acquired by the California-Oregon Power company and to determine why water was sold to the power company for 20 cents per acre foot while ranchers were charged $1 per acre foot.
