BUSINESS MEN ARE GUESTS AT ELECTRIC SITE

Copco Site of Power Plant Inspected by Company of Ashland Business Men

TRIP VERY ENJOYABLE

California-Oregon Power Company Officials Hosts to Forty Residents of City

Forty Ashland Lithians, Kiwanians and members of the Chamber of Commerce were royally entertained at the copco plants Sunday, with General Manager and Vice President Paul McKee and Superintendent of Construction Carmack acting as the chief hosts in the inspection of the gigantic project which The California-Oregon Power company is constructing at the Copco sites in Northern California.

The delegation met at the Chamber of Commerce at 7 o'clock Sunday morning and in a few minutes 12 guest cars and several Copco cars were headed for Thrall, where the automobiles were parked and everybody boarded the observation cars on the railroad line which runs from Thrall to the Copco sites. The train was a powerful auto truck and observation trailer, in which the party was quickly taken to Copco No. 2, the site of the new electric generating plant which is being constructed.

The Lithian Octette was so persistent in singing "When do We Eat" that the mess hall attaches rushed their preparations for dinner and a little before 12 the "Chow" call sounded and everybody gathered in the mess hall, when Chef Charley and his assistants served a very enjoyable dinner.

PRISONER BEATEN DURING ARREST BY KLAMATH OFFICER

KLAMATH FALLS, Nov. 17.—Ray Gallagher, a former employe of the Pelican Lumber Co., is under arrest, charged with possession of liquor, resisting an officer and disturbing the peace, preferred by Patrolman Robert Jones. Gallagher was arrested at a local rendezvous on Commercial avenue, known as "Casey's," late Thursday night. In making the arrest Jones used the butt of his gun to such an extent that Gallagher was taken to a local hospital after incarceration, and 14 stitches had to be taken in his scalp. Gallagher claims to have made no resistance to the officer whatever, and says he only had "half a pint on him, which wasn't worth fighting over."

Following the arrest Jones left the prisoner in the city jail and returned to his beat. Meeting Officer Lee Craft he reported that he had been compelled to "sap" a man, and had locked him up. When Craft went off duty at midnight he looked in the cell to see how the prisoner was getting along. Finding Gallagher covered with blood and still bleeding from a severed artery in the head he at once called medical aid. Chief Humphrey appeared at about this time, and ordered the man removed to the hospital, and after his wounds were attended ordered him taken to a hotel room, deeming that his condition was such that it was a risk to again lock him in a cell.

RANGE HISTORY TO BE MADE IN DEER HERDING

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., Nov. 17.—The Kaibab deer drive across the Grand canyon of the Colorado river, regarded as one of the most stupendous herding tasks in western range history, will be undertaken December 1 by 60 experienced cowboys and 75 Navajo Indians, it was announced here today. George McCormick, veteran Coconino county cattlemen, has the state's contract to deliver between 5,000 and 8,000 deer across the great chasm as a humanitarian move to save the animals from starvation in the overstocked Kaibab forest. More than 30,000 deer, it is estimated, now roam the Kaibab lands.

WATER FIGHT IS AGAIN RAGING IN CALIFORNIA

Owens River Valley Ranchers Open Flood Gates in Giant L. A. Aqueduct

MILITIA IS REQUESTED

Armed Mob Standing Guard Over Gates. Thousands of Dollars in Water Is Escaping

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—The immediate use of the California National Guard, to be used in dispersing a mob of one hundred resident of Inyo county, who are standing watch over the opened flood gates in the giant Los Angeles aqueduct, from which water valued at thousands of dollars is escaping daily, was considered today by Governor Richardson.

With the receipt of a hurried appeal from Sheriff Collins of Inyo county for troops, the governor was expected to take the requested action toward the suppression of the latest gesture of the Owens River Valley residents in their quarrel with the city of Los Angeles over the water rights on the Owens River.

The mobs opened the gates in the aqueduct yesterday morning, after putting the guards to route, and diverted the water back into the Owens River Valley, in order that their farms could be irrigated.

This latest outbreak is simply a continuance of the feud between the ranchers of the once fertile Owens River Valley, which has been laid waste by the greed of Los Angeles in her grabbing of water rights, and the city of Los Angeles. Shooting scrapes, in which several members of both sides have been killed or seriously wounded, and the dynamiting of the Los Angeles aqueduct were episodes in the water war.

Several months ago the feud broke out with new fury when representatives of Los Angeles were driven out of the valley by armed ranchers, who threatened them with death if they returned. Soon after this, the aqueduct was badly damaged by an explosion which was attributed to the ranchers, whose farms were worthless without the water which Los Angeles was taking from the Owens River.

LITHIAN'S OUTFIT EASILY WINS FROM ROSEBURG GRIDMEN

Showing a complete reversal of form over that which they displayed here a week ago, the Ashland Lithians' football team handed the Roseburg Elks a 27-0 spanking on the Roseburg gridiron. In the first tussle between these clubs, the Roseburg grid finished in front with a 6-0 score, after one of the fastest games ever staged on the local field.

The Roseburg outfit, outweighing the Ashland gang almost ten pounds to the man, started their line plunging game, the one which won them their opening contest here. The Ashland line, however, did it's stuff, and several times in the early periods of the game held the Roseburg outfit for downs. Finding their line plunging failed to gain, the Roseburg eleven opened up with an aerial attack, but the great defensive work of the Lithian's backs smeared most of the passes attempted.

Varying a line plunging game with forward passes, the Lithian's shoved the ball over the last Roseburg chalk mark four times. Three points were added by place kicks after three touchdowns, but the fourth attempt fell short.

The local outfit completed six out of ten passes tried, two of which resulted in touchdowns. Another touchdown was added by straight line plunging which carried the ball almost the length of the field, while the fourth came as the result of a forty yard run by an Ashland halfback who intercepted a Roseburg pass.

The Roseburg outfit is seeking a return game, and according to Jim Bowers, manager of the local outfit, they will be accommodated as soon as an agreement upon a date can be reached.

OVER MILLION WERE VISITORS TO OREGON FORESTS PAST YEAR

Substantial Increase Over 1923 Season Is Shown in Figures Compiled by Forester

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 17.—Visitors in the 22 national forests in Oregon and Washington numbered 2,181,532 in 1924, according to reports made here Saturday to George H. Cecil, district forester. The visitors increased 605,222 over 1923 and 1,151,560 over 1922.

In announcing the statistics, which showed that more people camped, hunted and picnicked in the national forests during the season just closed, Mr. Cecil pointed to the lower proportion of "man caused" forest fires. Although there were 1972 fires during the season, compilation recently showed that all but 236 resulted from natural or industrial causes.

Oregon showed 1,032,282 visitors to its 14 national forests for 1924, which was an increase of 388,661 over the 1923 number. On Oregon's national forests there were 128,872 campers, 43,263 summer hotel and resort guests, 739,092 transient motorists and 127,051 other miscellaneous visitors.

The Mount Hood national forest led all other national forests in Oregon in totals with 666,128. The Crater lake forest was next with 51,427 and the Deschutes third with 57,513.

The eight national forests in Washington drew 1,149,254 visitors in 1924 or 218,561 more than 1923 and 576,988 more than 1922. The Wenatchee forest showed the largest number, 681,970 with the Rainier forest second with 208,078 and the Snoqualmie third with 122,475. The totals for Washington showed 124,928 campers, 3290 summer homes visitors and guests 32,183 summer hotel guests, 132,077 picnicers and 856,776 transient motorists.

The figures did not include visitors to the Rainier and Crater lake national parks in the two states.

Word was received here yesterday of the death of Mrs. McCallen, mother of Andrew McCallen of this city, and former Ashland resident, died at her home in Berkeley yesterday morning. Her son left immediately for Berkeley and full particulars will be received later.

MAN IS FOUND MURDERED IN LOS ANGELES

Conditions Similar to Slaying of Katz, Wealthy Diamond Broker

POLICE INVESTIGATING

Albert Rosenblum, Real Estate Broker Is Found Dead in Street

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—Albert Rosenblum, a real estate operator of this city, was found murdered this morning, under circumstances almost identical with the sensational slaying of Harry Katz, wealthy musician and diamond broker, who was found dead in the doorway of his apartment several days ago.

Rosenblum's body was found in the street, in the center of the exclusive Wilshire district, not far from the spot where the body of Katz was found.

The coincidence which has excited the suspicion of the police, making them believe Rosenblum's death is connected with the Katz slaying is the fact that both men were shot with a .32 calibre automatic pistol. From all indications, Rosenblum was slain after returning from an automobile ride with his wife. He had apparently been shot while seated in his car, and his body then was thrown into the street.

The car was found a few blocks from where Rosenblum's body was picked up, streaked with blood. A bullet hole in the windshield indicated that the killers had approached Rosenblum from the front, and since Rosenblum's body was in a natural position, it is believed they fired upon him without warning.

An investigation has been started by the local police department in order to determine if Katz and Rosenblum were business associates or friends, in order to still further tighten the evidence now in their possession that the same parties committed both killings.

KLAMATH VOTERS PLACE APPROVAL ON NEW SCHOOLS

KLAMATH FALLS, Nov. 17.—At the special school bond election Thursday Klamath voters expressed a decisive approval of the $150,000 expenditure necessary to provide a new Central school building on the High street property recently purchased by the school board. The final vote showed 155 favorable and 34 against.

The new building will provide ample facilities for the growing school population here, which has already taxed the capacity of the old Central school and likewise being responsible for sending an overflow of students to the Riverside school. According to Principal J. P. Wells the Klamath school population has increased nearly 50 per cent in the past two years, and the dangerous traffic situation at Ninth and Main street has become a serious menace to the safety of the children attending the old Central school.

It has been pointed out that the old school property has acquired a substantially increased valuation from a business property standpoint and preliminary steps have already been made to put the block on the market and whatever sum is realized from this sale will lower the outlay necessary for the new building as authorized in yesterday's election.

"Aw, not so much," was Eric's bashful reply when asked whether he was thrilled by the prospect. "I've shot an alligator in Florida. Of course we don't consider alligators very terrible, but I should think a snarling lion or a real mad tiger would make a chap's knees shake."

Eric will spend his eleventh birthday in the jungle a few hundred miles from Nairobi.

BANDITS SLAY GUEST IN RAID ON ROAD HOUSE

Member of Highway Gang Killed and Guard Seriously Hurt in Fight

"KIDNAPPED" PARTY

Seven Members of Gang Make Good Escape After Leaving One Bandit Dead

GRANITE CITY, Ill., Nov. 17.—Two men were shot and killed while a third man was probably fatally injured last night, when eight members of a bandit gang, which was believed to have "kidnapped" an entire dancing party at a road house several days ago, sought to repeat their performance at another road house near here.

Melville Norville, a guest at the house was killed, while an unidentified bandit, a member of the gang, was so seriously injured that he died before the arrival of medical attention.

"Chicken" Ridge, a guard at the road house, was seriously wounded when he attempted to battle the bandits.

The gang entered the road house and ordered the members to get ready to leave. Ridge opened fire on the gang, and Norville obtained a gun from his coat and went to Ridge's aid. The bandit gang, after the handit had been shot, returned the fire, and at the first volley, Ridge and Norville went down. Additional guards who had been stationed about the house, in preparation for just such an attack, arrived upon the scene, but the seven remaining members of the gang made their escape in a waiting automobile.

PIERCE ATTEMPTING TO SAVE CLEAVER IN POLITICAL BATTLE

PORTLAND, Nov. 17.—By complaining that the big newspapers of the state are unfriendly to the Cleaver, state prohibition commissioner, Governor Pierce is attempting to arouse support among the church people to prevent the legislature from ham-stringing Cleaver when the session opens in January.

Governor Pierce, democrat, is confronted by a legislature almost exclusively republican. The governor has filed about every office within his gift with democrats, and now he is assuring the audiences which he addresses in church buildings that parties are obsolete; that they are things of the past and should not be considered. The governor is presenting this argument in the hope that the church people, ostensibly unfamiliar with politics and government by political parties, will come to his aid when he has his 40-day battle with the republican lawmakers under the bronze dome of the capital building at Salem. To his church audiences, since the election wherein everything and everyone that the governor advocated was defeated, Mr. Pierce is making no mention of the probability of much of his patronage being taken from him. The burden of his song is the great loss the state will suffer if Cleaver is kicked out of office by a bunch of unregenerate republicans.

After listening to one of the governor's political talks in the churches the audience is supposed to go home with the impression that only Governor Pierce's "yes-man," Cleaver, prevents the demon rum from drowning every living being in Oregon and saves the home and fireside from being swept away by a flood of liquor.
