MAKING HASTE TO BE RICH: He that by usury and unjust gain increaseth his substance, he shall gather it for him that will pity the poor.—Proverbs 28:8.

DOGS ON AUTOMOBILES

Carrying dogs on the running-board of an automobile results in many dogs being killed by falling off or being thrown off, and killed or maimed, and many are lost on the highways.

It is called an act regulating and prohibiting carrying dogs on automobiles and provides that it shall be unlawful to carry a dog upon the hood, fender, running board or other external part of an automobile unless the same shall be protected by a frame work, carrier, or other device sufficient to keep any such animal from falling from the automobile.

There should be such a law enacted in every state and a copy of the proposed Oregon law can be secured by addressing Judge Benson, counsel for Oregon Humane Society, 1102 Spalding, Portland.

CRATER LAKE

Crater Lake National Park, in Oregon, with an increase of 24 per cent in visitors during the year just closing, has established itself definitely as one of the "major parks," says Secretary Work, of the department of the interior, in his annual report to President Coolidge.

Altogether 64,312 people visited the park. One factor responsible for the increased travel was the completion of two main approach roads. This, however, only served to emphasize the poor condition of the park roads and the need of their immediate improvement.

Now that Crater Lake has assumed such a high rank among the national parks, the addition of Diamond Lake to the north to round out the scenic attractions of the region is of prime importance.

The secretary comments that two tracts of land have been offered by the city of Medford, Oregon, as sites for a residence and office of the superintendent of the park and for a government warehouse.

MAN, AND THE HEAVENS

The plan to have an airplane race with the shadow of the sun's eclipse across the state of New York is one of the first attempts of man practically to compare himself with the scheme of the universe.

All other human efforts have been in no way comparable to celestial affairs. All other observations by men of heavenly facts have been merely spectators. We have been lookers on toward the heavens for many thousands of years, and at least for four or five thousand years our observations have been more than idly curious, they have been intelligent. But for all that, we have been just spectators.

In the last decade there have been proposals to make man, in his small way, "mingle with the universe." But these proposals have nearly all been fantastic, and so recognized even by those who have discussed them with apparent seriousness.

But this airplane flight, however, impossible a few days ago, is now more than a probability. It proposes that a man, in a machine, near the surface of the earth, shall run a race with the earth's motion.

It is a relatively small accomplishment. But it is something that makes a big mark in the relation of the genus homo to this, his terrestrial habitat.

PATRIOTIC PALATES

The New York Herald Tribune editorially calls upon the American people to remember the greatness of America's native foods, their abundance and diversity, and the glory of its past achievements in the culinary art, and states that the American people should arouse themselves and vindicate the honor of one of their great institutions.

Yet, as the Herald Tribune has correctly stated, the American betakes himself to a restaurant whose name he cannot read to order food from a perfectly unintelligible menu and takes the chance that the stuff will be fit to eat when he gets it, with never a thought of the good old American dishes, and few places where he could get them if he did think of them. Yet our grandmothers made such turkey and pumpkin pie, such apple turnovers and brown betties as sent a thrill of delight around the world and were justly famed at home and abroad.

Let Americans return to the foods of their fathers. Let them delight in a savory meat stew without calling it by some foreign name by which it would not recognize itself. Let them revel in deep dish puddings and brown betties and apple turnovers. The palates of men as great as any we have today have been delighted with these things and we should preserve them as a national heritage.

HURRY IS ON

Christmas shoppers beginning to hurry. Remaining time is short. Jerusalem cherry trees in the flower stores. The first poinsettias, too. All the shop windows look "Christmasy." Dolls and more-dolls. Toys for little boys. Tinsel and silver and gold "rain."

THE WEST IN THE POLITICAL SADDLE

The West certainly has no cause for complaint in the organization of Congressional affairs. With General Dawes of Chicago, presiding over the Senate, Mr. Borah of Idaho, heading Foreign Relations; Mr. Smoot of Utah, chairman of Finance; Mr. Warren of Wyoming, chairman of Appropriations; Mr. Johnson of California, chairman of Immigration; Mr. Norris of Nebraska, chairman of Agriculture, and Mr. Capper of Kansas, Mr. Stanfield of Oregon, Mr. Jones of Washington and half a dozen others in important chairmanships, the western country will be fairly in command of Senate proceedings.

In the House, with Ways and Means, Agriculture, Appropriations, Immigration, Military Affairs, Public Lands and Veterans' Legislation et al. in western hands, and Martin B. Madden of Illinois as speaker, it will be their own fault if things do not go as they want them.

Storing up bruises for Willie: "He is so strong willed we can't do a thing with him."

It is estimated that it will take 86,732 half wit campers to finish-burning our forests.

Horrible thought! Imagine being on a desert island with a cross word puzzle and no dictionary!

Freedom is gasping her last when people begin to think it ugly to criticize leaders.

In the old hospitable days the house would be full at times, but the company wouldn't.

Ashland Hi Notes

These notes are written for this paper by members of the journalism class at the local high school

Thursday evening was "Mother's Night" at the Hi Y, the meeting being called at 7:30 in Pioneer Hall. After a brief period devoted to business, Mr. Smith and Roland Parks, representing the boys, and Mrs. Joy and Mrs. Smith, speaking for the mothers, gave very interesting talks.

Thelma Perozzi, student body secretary and member of the Rogue staff, Vernon McGee, editor of the Rogue News, and Henry Homes, it's manager, departed Thursday morning for Eugene, where they will be the guests of the university at the annual Editors' Conference.

The regular monthly tests sent out by the various typewriting companies for awards were given Wednesday, November 26. The results of the speed tests have not been announced.

The Forensic Society, which meets next Tuesday evening, will study Roberts' Rules of Order. Reports will be given by Virginia Hopper, Lucille Boss, Lilly Landig, Dorothy Stevens, Edith Plummer, Elizabeth Stearns, Gordon MacCracken and Albie Beck.

Dorothy Reid and Waive Withrow are going to leave Ashland the middle of December for the South. Miss Reid is going to Stockton and perhaps to Los Angeles, while Miss Withrow plans to spend her vacation in San Francisco. The girls expect to return for the second semester of school.

Mrs. Elbert Farlowe gave a kitchen show for Mrs. Lloyd Smith, formerly Miss Iona Becktel of the Ashland High School, Friday evening at her home on Morton street. Fourteen of Mrs. Smith's girl friends were invited to attend, and a pleasant evening was enjoyed.

The Sophomores met Wednesday at noon to decide upon a suitable initiation for the Freshmen. Present plans are that the party will be held December 12.

The Anniversary Play, "The Charm School," was presented last Wednesday evening in the High School Auditorium and was pronounced one of the best ever given by the Ashland High School. Much credit is given Miss Wheeler, instructor in the English department, for the able manner in which she coached the play and for the excellent choice of characters. The members of the cast also did themselves proud.

HEAD OF $100,000,000 CORPORATION AT 43 TELLS OF SUCCESS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5. — Victor A. Cutter, new president of the United Fruit Company, at the age of forty-three, gives eight maxims which, he says, made for his success and "will make for the success of any enterprising young man who will follow them."

the tropical development program in both sugar and banana plantations and was closely associated with the late A. W. Preston, whom he succeeded. When asked whether or not a college education is necessary for success in business, Cutter replied:

"I do not believe a college education is necessary for success. I know many men who achieved genuine success in business who never went to college, but they helped educate themselves by reading. Education alone will not make a man. Education is a tool."

Cutter believes that the great potential markets for the United States are China and Central and South America. He said: "Europe is already well developed. China is remote, but Latin America is right at our door. We have been having a great in-
