CLOVERSEED CROP SMALLEST EVER

CHICAGO, Dec. 16. — A shortage of cloverseed is facing America. The greatest shortage in history is looming, according to the Blue Valley Creamery Institute, of Chicago. The crop last year is the smallest crop on record, and the production of seed is now only 74 per cent of last year's crop, according to Government figures.

The institute is advocating the growing of alfalfa wherever practicable, instead of competing for high-priced cloverseed. This, it contends will be more economical. In its statement on the cloverseed shortage the institute says: "The crop report just issued shows that the total production this year is estimated at 817,000 bushels, as compared with 1,100,000 last year and a five-year average of 1,610,000. Last year approximately 24,000,000 pounds of cloverseed were imported to make up deficiencies in America, but Europe has a shortage this year also, and probably will have little seed for the United States. "Red cloverseed prices already are high and are likely to go higher. Fortunately, both alfalfa and sweet clover have produced larger crops than usual this season, alfalfa being one-third larger, so farmers of the nation are urged to seed with alfalfa. It will be more economical than to practice thin seeding, which is so frequently done when cloverseed is as scarce as it is now."

Editor Tidings:
As this is especially a time to do good and be cheerful givers where most needed, I desire to call attention to the needs of G. W. Finell, 363 Upper Iowa street, who is helplessly ill and needs immediate financial assistance, and Mrs. Finell should have some help strong enough to move him up and down as he is partially paralyzed.
Remember God loves cheerful givers and charity begins at home.
