It would mean further concentration of medical interests. It would mean that other institutions of a kindred nature might spring up with such a precedent for stimulus. It would afford another of the much desired contacts with other states. In a comparatively isolated position geographically as both science and art go, the state can hope for a great deal in such undertakings, which are, of course, made possible by such donors as the Jacksons, and Dr. Noble Wiley Jones. For in the bequeathing of property, which benefits institutions, and the establishing of scholarships, which increase individual effectiveness, the state will materially profit both by a more efficient group of authorities on health and hygienic matters, and by a more informed citizenship.

The tremendous lack of specific scientific knowledge, particularly in the natural sciences, has proved an impetus for more extensive and comprehensive research throughout the state, and the west should not be left behind. Work such as that of Loeb and others in the biological field is an inspiration. What is lacking are the other rates in Jackson or Joseactual facilities and capital for such investigations.

Wth the growth of hospitals and special opportunities for research, men of broader knowledge and greater skill are more and more employed in the ordinary course of events. And the advantage of this is not alone in ad- $100,000 when finished. ding one specialist, but providing contact between specialists.

And beyond the state's larger knowledge in this field, your order at the Tidings Office. cially at the White House today. drug store. with its research into the causes and methods of preventing diseases and providing remedies for them, lies greater health for its citizens, and consequently greater prosperity and happiness. By a policy of conservation the state can be spared the expense, too, of caring for wasted man-power.

WHAT A PRICE TO PAY

What would happen to the taxpayer if the state were asked to spend the incredible millions that have been spent in private on exploration, in mineral prospecting or in developing industrial enterprises? The taxpayer would revolt.

Yet these explorations are made by private enterprise and after that, the business has to be developed by painstaking efficiency that is the only safeguard against bankruptcy and which is foreign to the whole spirit of officialdom.

The incessant clamour for lower taxes would not be made if the people believed they were getting value received for all public moneys expended.

History indicates that wastefulness in governmental affairs increases in geometrical progression with every increase in revenue. Every expansion of federal activities and payrolls means decreased efficiency. Everybody but organized railroad labor felt the strangle hold of the iron hand of officialism during the inglorious federal railroad regime. Government operation brought higher costs, poorer service, and utter, adamantine inelasticity to meet the national shipping needs. To double, or quadruple, or to increase by ten times the official payroll, means to build up a political officialism that has the public by the throat-whether in oil, mines, railroads, insurance, utilities or in anything that the state might do.

If workers could be enlisted or drafted into an industrial army at $30 a month, and made to serve or go to prison or be shot at sunrise, industry might be completely federalized at a profit. But what a price to pay in freedom and in the killing of individual initiative and amhition.

ENCOURAGING INCENDIARISM

In a western state two convicted and confessed firebugs have just been released on parole without seeing a day in prison, after receiving a sentence of 8 years each.

They were the owners and managers of a restaurant and conspired to commit a gross fraud on their creditors and the insurance companies and the sentence of the judge and jury was not too severe.

In the easy-going way in which justice is being administered, where the property and lives of others were

ASHLAND DAILY TIDINGS endangered, the judge on the bench and the jury joined in extenuating pleas for the release of the fire-bugs.

It is stated upon high authority by one of the most prominent officials in this western state that 50 per cent of the fires last year were incendiary and that the property consumed in flame and smoke, thereby, totaled $5,-000,000.

In the measure of criminality, deliberate incendiarism ranks with criminal assault, kidnapping and murder. In addition to causing loss of life to citizens and fire fighters, firebug criminals generally aim to secure funds with which to carry on further operations.

As a matter of record, men, women and children constantly lose their lives in blazes lighted by fire-bugs. The men in this case confessed to the crime of arson, touching a match to oil-soaked materials.

Liberating fire-bugs imperils lives and financial interests of property owners, whose insurance rates are higher on account of leniency to confessed criminals.

Such a phony sentence as ordering two confessed criminals to the penitentiary for eight years each and immediately paroling them brings our courts into marked disrespect.

AN UNSOUND STATE POLICY

You have a little grocery store, with a growing trade built up on service and good will. The state sets up a tent on the next lot, taxes you to raise its capital, puts in a mill will operate and keep the stock of goods and tells you you are out of business.

WINDMILLS KEEP GOLDFISH AND

FREEPORT, Ill., Jan. 15. Windmills are keeping miners and goldfish alive - the former by pumping water from mines and the latter by keeping ponds on goldfish farms supplied with sufficient fresh water.

This is the statement of George E. Steenrod, president of a local windmill manufacturing concern, discussing the varied uses to which the product is being put, Mr. Steenrod, however, says the original use of supplying water for livestock on farms continues to be most popular.
