STUDENT BOOSTER ISSUE

This issue of The Daily Tidings was published by students of the Ashland High School. Its purpose is to show the people of Ashland how high school journalists can manage a city daily, and to prove, if possible, their ability as future writers. The directing and writing staff was picked at large from the student body, most of whom were members of the class of journalism, which was responsible for much of the work and deserve a good deal of credit for their help. Actual experience has been given to many who otherwise would have been unable to get it. This is the first year the high school has ever edited The Daily Tidings, but, we hope, not the last.

A NEW SCHOOL BUILDING

One of the most serious problems before the city of Ashland today, is the need of a new grade school. Although the fact has not yet been made public, those who are familiar with the cramped conditions of Ashland schools realize its urgency.

At the present time every school in the city is crowded far over its limit. Hawthorne and Junior High schools especially have over their quota of pupils. Several of the rooms that were made for not over 30 or 35 pupils, now have more than 50! Last year, with the annex of the old church on the Boulevard, the seating problems of the Hawthorne were for a time solved. With a new influx of pupils, however, conditions have again become critical, and unless something definite is done the schools will be unable to handle an increase. The over crowded buildings are hard to handle and dangerous, and are becoming more and more of a burden to the school board. It is impossible for a teacher to instruct a group of fifty school children thoroughly. Personal attention to the students is also greatly lowered.

The seating conditions of the high school is almost as bad. With a load of new students promised for the first of next week, and a building that is already filled to its capacity, prospects are rather gloomy. Unlike some of the larger schools there is no mid-year graduating class to make room for these new students. They must be crowded in with the rest, somehow.

The proposed plan is a good one, and has been proved successful in other communities where it has been employed. This would call for the construction of a new grade school by a plan known as the "6-3-3." By this plan, Hawthorne pupils would be removed and placed in a new grade building which would be erected in the east section of town. The seventh and eighth grades of Junior High would be placed in the vacant building, together with the freshmen of the high school, making it a seventh, eighth and ninth grade building, inclusive.

This would allow an abundance of room in all of the buildings, and is the best plan yet formed. If Ashland is to grow, there must be more schools to accommodate the increasing demand for education. There is no better time than the present to think of this, and action should be taken on it.

SUPPORTING SCHOOL ACTIVITIES

As boosters, the merchants of Ashland are an invaluable asset to the high school. Whenever a project is put before them, they willingly back it, either with money or by personal support. Never yet have they failed as a body, to "come across," when the school asked them for help or backing.

There are always a few, however, who do not "come across." They feel, because of personal or financial interests, that they cannot afford to give the time or money required. This is not unusual, or is it not to be expected. Every merchant has similar experiences each year, and to many it may seem that he is right in so acting. Perhaps he is. Seldom, however, is there one who is continually in such straits. With few exceptions he can meet the small things that will be asked of him at least a part of the time. He need not consider the greater things that are given him in return. As Cyrus Curtis says, "No amount of money spent on improvements is an expenditure; it is an investment." So it is with the very few who are loath to back student enterprises; the money they spend is an investment.

The high school brings to Ashland as much advertising, as many new families, and as much trade as any other organization. Boost it. When you are asked to help, do not think of the expenditure, but of the investment. The more backing a school has, the better its product, and the better its product, greater is its returns.

TRY ASHLAND FIRST

One of the big aims of the Oregon Booster Clubs is to keep Oregon trade in Oregon.

The same should be applied in Ashland. The "trade at home" slogan is a good one to follow. Ashland money should be kept in Ashland. It is the best way to help the city prosper. The habitual out-of-town trader puts his money in the hands of rival cities, and then sits back and watches them grow. The chances are that this same customer is extremely patriotic and wishes to see his city get ahead of its rival. He does not realize that by giving his money to another town, that he is helping it grow instead of his own. The business men of a town form a nucleus around which the rest of the town gathers for support. Without them, it could not long hold together. For the same reason, the business men need the support of the town.

Any person is justified to go elsewhere occasionally to do his shopping, if he can profit by it. First, however, it is his duty to try his own community. One who shops out of town without first trying the local establishments, may be cheating himself as well as his town. The same article might be found at home. It is rather unfair to the town as a civic center to habitually spend savings on outside products that can as well be bought at local business houses.

THE MAN WHO SLANDERS OREGON

A Portland man recently wrote to a California town asking for literature and information on the city, stating that "Oregon climate is not fit for a dog to live in." The same town wrote back and told the dissatisfied gentleman that Oregon was a great state. It further added that her magnificent stands of timber and other resources and attractions which cause it to be recognized as one of the most productive and wealthy states of the Union, was a direct result of those discouraging rains against which he was so rebelling. The letter praised Oregon rains, and stated that Oregon climate is a paradise compared to that of Atlantic and mid-western regions.

If the meaning of the letter can be correctly interpreted, we may discern that even California is not anxious to import one who so slanders his community and state. In future time he may slander California, and so wherever he goes.

NORMAL ISSUE GOOD

There are now 750 students enrolled in the Normal School at Monmouth. The number used each year in Oregon is about 1500, and of these nearly 1000 are imported by the state. The proposals of Senators Dennis, Taylor and Dunn at the state legislature for the erection of normal schools is a wise action. Since no one can take a teacher's exam without 36 weeks teacher's training, and since this training will be discontinued after this year in the high school, normal schools situated in Eastern and Southern Oregon will allow a great many, who are now unable, to become teachers. There is no necessity to import so many instructors, when plenty could be found in Oregon if there were more facilities to allow for their training.

The action of Senator Dunn should go far towards bringing a normal to Ashland. Although the senators who are fighting for the new normal schools are disagreed as to where the building shall be placed, Southern and Eastern Oregon are the favored districts.

A MISREPRESENTATION

Many people thought the problem of States' Rights was settled at the close of the Civil War. However, the problem still exists. It is the leading issue in the Child Labor Amendment now before the state legislature.

This amendment has been widely misunderstood. As many believe, it does not prohibit everyone under eighteen years of age from working. Neither will it materially change our Child Labor Laws. It will give congress the right to do so.

Congress has invariably proved itself to be more competent in legislature than the state body. Why refuse them this right?

FUNNY PLACE FOR A HEART

Dave Pence suffered a relapse of heart failure last Sunday, due to overeating. He has recovered and his leg is getting stronger every day.—(Medford Mail Tribune).

The only thing that keeps most people from going on the stage is the manager.

GIRL WHO MURDERED MOTHER RETAINS HER NERVE IN JAIL CELL

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 16.—Still the whole "life of the party" sixteen year old Dorothy Ellingson, who yesterday confessed to the murder of her mother, Mrs. Annie Ellingson, today continued to get the same "big kick" out of life that characterized her jazz path to a prison cell in the San Francisco City and County Jail.

After twelve hours of questioning and posing, the girl was ready to continue late last night when police orders shut off all further interviewers. Only when her father and her older brother visited her in her cell did she forget to pose. Immediately upon their entrance, she became the supplicating daughter.

Her brother refused to let her touch him when she sought to throw herself in his arms. The father and brother both continued to insist that they would not aid the girl in her trouble. "She brought it on her self, in spite of all I could do to prevent it" the father declared. "And she must hang for the crime." "It will be better that way, for then we will know she is out of this danger and this life," the brother stated to interviewers.

The girl was born in Minneapolis. The family later moved to Boise, Idaho, and then to Portland, later again moving to Boise. From there they came to San Francisco, and have resided in this city for three years, according to the father.

HOOVER LEADING NATIONAL DRIVE TO CUT ACCIDENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The support of the Governor of every State in the United States has been solicited by Secretary of Commerce Hoover in the campaign to reduce the heavy annual loss of life in traffic accident.

Machinery has been set in motion looking to general application of recommendations adopted at the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, aimed at putting traffic on a sane basis. Backed by the endorsement of President Coolidge, the conference arranged to make available to every State and community information and suggestions for cutting down traffic accidents.

Secretary Hoover has addressed to all Governors letters transmitting a copy of the final report of the conference and suggesting that it be called to the attention of State Legislatures in the event that new motor-vehicle and highway legislation is contemplated. Secretary Hoover has also sent the recommendations to Mayors of cities, local Chambers of Commerce, motor clubs and safety councils, urging co-operation of these bodies in permanently effecting better traffic conditions.

The Department of Commerce said that already "the letters pouring into the offices of the Safety Conference indicate that hundreds of delegates have started, with the assistance of newspapers of the country, to wage a more intensive drive for safety education and safety practice."

"It is also indicated," officials declared, "that railway officials, motor clubs, Chambers of Commerce, safety councils and other bodies are being brought into closer contact with the work undertaken by other groups. The support of all these groups will be given wholeheartedly to programs which may be undertaken by officials in the various States." Recommendations adopted by the conference will be made available for official and non-official organizations throughout the country.

It was announced that pledges of co-operation have been received from the American Legion, with 17,000 posts and auxiliaries, and also, from the National Association of Commissioners for uniform laws.

"The former will mean," the Department said, "that several million members of the Legion will, through their local branches, lend their efforts to the promotion of street and highway safety programs."

"The latter will add a considerable force in the attempt to bring about legislation which will reduce the existing confusion of traffic laws, between neighboring States."

Grants Pass — State highway commission calls for bids on first section of Redwood highway. Believed whole project will be included in 1925 budget.

SOUR STOMACH IS CAUSED BY ACIDS

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually setting in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste and to stimulate the kidneys, thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.
