BE SURE YOUR SIN WILL FIND YOU OUT.—Num. 32:23.

SCANDAL AS NEWS

A number of newspapers of the state have become quite hysterical over an obscure San Francisco girl, whose life is revealed as a career of immorality and who has apparently terminated this career by murdering her mother.

These newspapers are not satisfied with telling the simple story of her life. They must go into sordid details. They leave nothing out. Is it any wonder, then, that some newspapers are barred from respectable homes?

A good act is, in the minds of these newspapers, worth about a stick. An immoral act is worth all that the imagination of lurid writers can picture.

A defense is set up. It is that all this rotteness must be told in every detail because it carries a moral. Is it necessary to go into all these details to preach the doctrine that the wages of sin is death? It is not.

THE ROAR OF LIONS NOW BLEAT OF LAMBS

In a recent book, Emma Goldman, the anarchist agitator, deported to Russia in 1921, recorded the bitter story of her disillusionment.

Instead of finding the liberty there she thought denied her here, she found a despotism as cruel and as repressive as the old autocracy had ever been.

Even some who had helped to bring on the revolution in full the doctrines of the Bolsheviks were hunted down like common murderers.

And now she would be only too glad to return to this country.

Another who went to Russia with equally strong ideas as to the hell he was leaving behind and the Paradise to which he was going was Bill Haywood, under sentence to a term of imprisonment in Leavenworth because of his anti-war activities.

A short time ago, a ragged, starving individual walked into the refugee camp of the Near East Relief at Alexandropol, Armenia, begging food and drink and a shelter for the night. And who should it turn out to be but this same Bill Haywood. In a statement to the relief director, he said:

"I am hungry and homesick and if I cannot find work in Constantinople, I am going back to the United States. I would rather be in Leavenworth than live in Russia. I wish I had never run away."

MORE SYMPATHY FOR HART THAN HIS WIFE

Winifred Westover Hart, wife of William Hart, premier gunman of the screen, has been awarded the right to return to the silver screen under her full name; while at the same time retaining in full the $100,000 trust fund set aside for her by Hart, at the time of their separation, and also a similar fund for their infant child.

The court holds that when Hart insisted that in the agreement be written a provision that his wife should not do that which the court now says she may do, he did something which the law cannot recognize as binding. That may be true.

But, at the same time, there is such a thing among honorable men and honorable women as keeping a pledge and being loyal to a pact, even though it may not be legally binding.

And in this case, Hart cannot be charged with having treated either his wife or son ungenerously.

Most American mothers, with only one child to care for, would not find it excessively difficult to keep the wolf away from the door if they had the income from a fund of over $200,000.

This is especially true in view of the wife's admission on the witness stand that when she married Hart, she and her mother were practically destitute.

HUGHES' STATEMENT NOT WHOLLY REASSURING

Secretary of State Hughes has rushed precipitately into print to declare most solemnly that the recent agreement signed at Paris between those who expect to benefit from the German reparations payments under the Dawes plan commits the United States to nothing but accept $27,000,000 annually from her erstwhile allies after the expiration of two years.

Hughes should know what he is talking about. But the average American will not be entirely reassured by his pronouncement.

Who ever heard of any of these European powers agreeing to give up $1,000,000, not to speak of $27,000,000, without some definite and concrete advantage to themselves?

It is possible, but not more probable than a profit in growing bananas at the North Pole.

Moreover, the manner in which the administration has conducted the negotiations so that no submission of the agreement to the senate might be necessary argues its course has not been so unsophisticated as Hughes would make it appear.

It is well for the country that at Washington are a few vigilant public servants like Senator Hiram W. Johnson ever on guard against America being further worked by designing alien chancellors.

ALFONSO BRAGS OF SPANISH SHAME

Alfonso of Spain, safely within the confines of his kingdom, surrounded by his dictator and his army and his palace guards, and by the impotence of his people, makes faces at one Ibanez, adding insult to injury after having used international enemies to force the French to bring charges against the author.

It is easy for Alfonso. Perhaps Ibanez ought to be a hero, and get shot. As have numerous Spanish patriots, at various times in the last generation.

But what Ibanez and men like him are trying to do is not to unhorse Alfonso—that would be of little moment—but to create among their fellow countrymen of Spain a realization of their own political shame and misery. And it is some job, a job not to be helped by being a martyr. Educators are what is needed.

It may be that the educational effect of Ibanez' writings and his spectacular efforts to distribute them among the Spanish people will have its effect, even if Alfonso makes the best "copy" in speeches at Madrid.

FRANCE FEARS CHEAP MONEY

Clementel of France promises that there shall be no inflation. In other words, he avers that France will not, in order to meet its pressing needs, tax every one who possess French money by watering that money by further issues of new and valueless money.

That he should make this promise is either an indication that the guardians of the present money, the bankers, are strong enough to coerce him, or that he realizes the danger to the French nation of the repudiation which inflation would lead to.

As it happens, the interest of the bankers and of the whole people in this matter coincide. They do not always.

And even the finance minister of a socialist government knows that it is bad politics and bad finance to rob a whole people even for the sake of paying their just debts. Some other way of getting something for nothing must be devised.

The army and navy may need many things, but politics isn't one of them.

The cross word puzzle is doomed. The best minds are beginning to call it "helpful."

TOTAL ECLIPSE ON JANUARY 24 FIRST IN U S IN 100 YEARS

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 22.—All traffic squads, attention! On the twenty-fourth of January there will occur in the skies something that you probably will never see again—a total eclipse of the sun, in some places, and a partial eclipse over the greater part of the United States. Caution all drivers to go slowly.

If you live in a belt 100 miles wide and 5000 miles long and flung from northern Minnesota across northern Wisconsin and Michigan, over the Great Lakes to New York, Long Island, Connecticut and Rhode Island, parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Massachusetts you will see the flaming sun blotted out on the morning of the twenty-fourth.

Those who live near this path across the country—a path that ends at sunset near the north of Scotland—will see the sun shadowed in part.

Moon the Cause. For the first time in more than a hundred years the moon will pass between the earth and the sun, throwing its shadow on our sphere. It is the first total eclipse of the sun visible in this section of the country since 1806.

This eclipse will be total in Duluth, Buffalo, New York City, New Haven and many other large cities in this part of the country. The partial eclipse will be very large, nearly total, in some of the largest cities in the United States, including Boston, Providence, Albany, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Chicago. Even as far south as New Orleans, and as far north as St. Louis and Omaha, the partial eclipse will be large.

The total eclipse in New York City will take place about 9-10 a. m., and the time of the greatest eclipse for most of the cities in the East that keep Eastern standard time will vary but a few minutes from this time. The partial eclipse will begin about eight o'clock in the same section and the eclipse will be over about half-past ten.

The brighter stars and planets, and also the beautiful solar corona that the astronomer is so anxious to study, appear. This is a magnificent halo of pearly light extending to a great distance from the sun, and different in shape and appearance at every eclipse. It is never visible except during a total solar eclipse and can be studied only at that time.

Those who find themselves within the path of total eclipse should look for the shadow bands—wavy bands of light and shade that flit over the landscape and buildings just before and after the total eclipse. Also, they should look out for the interesting phenomenon known as "Baily's Beads," which are seen as the thin thread-like solar crescent breaks up into beads of light as the total eclipse is about to begin, and which are seen again just as it ends.

Look, also, for the scarlet solar prominences during the total eclipse, which are flames of glowing gases of hydrogen and helium rising from the hidden surface of the moon to heights of thousands of miles and visible beyond the edge of the moon in queer forms and shapes.

SAYS RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS PAINS IN A FEW MINUTES

"Rheumatism, lumbago, neuritis, backache, stiff neck, sore muscles, strains, sprains, aching joints. When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into pain and congestion, relief comes at once.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat. In three minutes the sore spot is warmed through and through and the torture is gone.

Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, costs little at any drug store. Get a jar at once. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on every package.

Banker's Wife Advises Ashland People

"I had stomach trouble so bad everything I ate soured and formed gas. Was miserable until I tried Adlerika. This helped the first day." Adlerika helps any case gas on the stomach unless due to deep-seated causes. The QUICK action will surprise you. Because Adlerika is such an excellent intestinal evacuant it is wonderful for constipation—it often works in one hour and never grips. J. K. Bolton.

The brighter stars and planets appear during the total eclipse and even a little before and after it. The three planets, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter, should be seen in a close group some distance to the southwest of the sun.

Although the event of this one day dwarfs all others by comparison in the January skies, it must be remembered that in midwinter the evening skies are at their best, the American Nature Association points out. There are more brilliant stars in view than at any other time of the year.

Strange to say, many people fail to notice how greatly the stars differ in color. Nearly everyone is aware that the planet Mars is decidedly red, but how many know the colors of the first-magnitude stars? Over in the southeast this month one will have a good study in star colors. Take the constellation of Orion alone. There is Rigel, blue-white in color, a perfect "diamond in the sky"; and Betelgeuse, in the same constellation, is a deep red—a ruby, rather than a diamond, of the sky. There is Aldebaran, the "eye of the bull," another deep red star in the Hyades, a little to the northwest of Orion, in Taurus.

As an example of a perfectly white star there is Beta Tauri, which is at the tip of one of the horns of Taurus and directly south of Auriga and north of Orion Procyon, in Canis Minor, the Lesser Dog, is yellowish-white; and Sirius, in Canis Major, the Greater Dog, following close on the heels of Orion, is white in color.

STRAHORN INTEREST TO FIGHT KLAMATH

PORTLAND, Jan. 21.—Representatives of the Oregon Trunk Railway, owned jointly by the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific will appear at the next session of the Klamath Falls city council to insist on the issuance of a franchise to the Strahorn Rail line under the common user provision of the city charter of that city.

UNIVERSITIES MAY OPEN COURSES FOR JEWEL SALESMEN

BERKELEY, Cal., Jan. 22.—University courses for jewelry salesmen may be the next step in modern education.

Although it is the co-eds who show a profound interest in diamonds, it is the men students who attend the classes in the study of precious stones, given by Professor A. S. Eakle, of the mineralogy department at the University of California.

"The courses in mineralogy and precious stones lay the foundation for further study in the jewelry trade," says Professor Eakle. "Rocks that appear common and ordinary to most people assume a different aspect to the student of mineralogy. He can determine the physical and chemical properties of rocks and can recognize such minerals as quartz, feldspar and olivine, all of which are used in the development of gem stones. The fundamental value of these courses is the acquiring of a keen power of observation by the student."

The students study under the microscope the various formations of the stones, and also learn their occurrence in the earth. Occasional field trips reveal that the earth is rich in an unlimited supply of minerals that can be developed into beautiful gems.

In Beacon Hall, on the university campus, there is a collection of minerals and precious stones obtained from practically every country in the world. Gold, silver, iron ores, quartz, gypsum, bronite and tourmalines, beryls and garnets are properly labeled and placed on exhibition for the convenience of the students and to add them in their study. There is also a collection of rocks obtained after the eruption in January, 1914, of the Volcano Sakurajima, in Japan, that are unique in their formations.

Some of the students take these courses as prerequisites to mining, while others are preparing to enter the gem world. Jewelry making is an old trade dating back into medieval and ancient times, and its different branches open up vast possibilities to the student, including work in appraising, stone setting and engraving.

Holds Up Jeweler and Picks Out Gems

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Jan. 22.—An unmasked bandit robbed the jewelry store of I. Potch of about $20,000 worth of gems and $46 in money, after holding up Potch with two revolvers and compelling him to unlock the safe.

After making a careful selection from the stock jewelry, the gunman warned the proprietor against making any outcry and backed out a rear door, while he kept Potch covered with the revolvers.
