Edwards then went to Klamath Falls where he was arrested, charged with a crime of a similar nature. He spent twenty-two days in jail at Klamath Falls and when released he was held by authorities for Sheriff Jennings.

Jennings brought him to Jackson county and he was taken to the local Justice Court where he claimed he was not the man wanted. He was then taken to Jacksonville pending a grand jury session.

MEN AND WOMEN IN NEWS OF THE DAY.

Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes & Mary Garden. Below: Charles A. Stoneham & Mrs. Irene Schoellkopf.

Mrs. Irene Schoellkopf, wife of a former Buffalo, N. Y., brewer, C. P. Hugh Schoellkopf, has received from the New York police $225,000 worth of the $300,000 jewels torn from her neck during a New Year's party in New York City in 1923. Mrs. W. E. D. Stokes will go to Chicago with her Denver home to prosecute conspiracy charges against her husband, W. E. D. Stokes, New York millionaire, who is charged with having sought testimony there to damage her reputation in his unsuccessful divorce suit. Charles A. Stoneham, owner of the New York Globe, on trial in New York on charge of using the mails to defraud, is back in court, his effort to have the Federal Court set aside a new jury, which permits the Judge, and not the attorneys, to question prospective jurors. Mary Garden, famous opera star, has been suddenly stricken ill in Chicago and been compelled to cancel all her engagements. Last Summer she caused much comment by taking sun baths for her health in Europe.

CHEAPER UPKEEP IS 1925 PLAN FOR HIGH-PRICED CARS NEW YORK, Jan. 24. — America must have its luxury and insistently demands its comfort. Yet the man who is willing to spend anywhere from $1,500 to $15,000 for luxury and comfort is at the same time concerned about his "overhead" expense. Such was the reaction of a layman after a visit to the National Automobile Show now on here. An automobile "layman" is anybody who has had a minimum of three cars. While it may sound paradoxical, automobiles are to be cheaper and more expensive than ever this year. But the most of maintenance, the "overhead," will be radically less than in former years. Cars won't use so much gas, there will be less oil consumption, tires will last longer and the surfacing of cars has been almost revolutionized.

There is a steady and determined trend toward closed cars. In American homes the "We are going to have a closed car next," has become almost a household word, in many homes the final and last word. So the women are going to have their way again, with the aid of the auto manufacturers. Prices have been reduced to a point where it is, in several instances, as cheap to buy a closed car as a "hurricane box."

Never before has there been such regal elegance in the construction and fitting of closed cars. Those on display are a distinct departure from the significant mournfulness of a hearse, for the sombre black has given way to more brilliant colors. Some cars have the luxurious appearance of French enamelled jewel cases.

The "stingy" roadster is becoming passe, if the exhibits are to be believed. The new sport models in their infinite variety hold three persons and usually have a fold-away or "rumble" seat. "Economy of operation" is the big message of the auto show this year. The demonstrator alongside the most expensive car emphasizes the "cost of upkeep" as though it were a vital point in the point in the sales argument.

What is of cheering interest to the man of modest means is that he need no longer drive a car which puts him within a few months in the class of the "shabby gentee." The new finishes are impervious to hot and cold water, gasoline, oil and grease. A few defiant demonstrators even pour strong acid on the finish of their cars and ask a less daring competitor to "laugh that off."

WORKING WOMEN REFUSE TO WORK IN BALKANS NOW SOFIA, Jan. 23. — The Balkans, too, have a servant problem.

There are still families in Southeastern Europe rich enough to employ servants, but it is almost impossible to find servants, and when found the mistresses are unable to keep them pleased. The old situation, when willing servant girls begged haughty mistresses to give them employment, and the mistresses in turn treated the girls as slaves, has been reversed. Now, when the mistresses are lucky enough to find applicants for "positions" they practise all their wiles to induce the girls to join their households, usually unsuccessfully.

In Bulgaria, at least, servant girls are scarce. The few still willing to perform menial work are insisting upon treatment and wages which the pre-war servants would not have dared to suggest. "Your day is gone, mam," one girl told a prospective mistress. "You high-toned folk have abused and trampled upon us long enough."

"Go your way, you bourgeois man," declared another. "I wouldn't come to work for you if you were the King's daughter."

The insolent attitude is attributed to the Bolshevik experiment in Russia, by which the working girl believes she has gained the ascendancy over the bourgeois class.

Throngs of girls seeking house work formerly flocked the squares in Sofia. They were to be had for the asking and the mistress had only to make her choice.

The Sofia Servant Poshtad is usually deserted now. One lone girl seen lurking in a corner is quickly surrounded by eager and amiable housewives, who resort to all sorts of arguments and tricks to persuade the girl to go home with them.

Salary is never mentioned. The girl sets her own price and she goes with the mistress who is most amiable and who can tell the best story of the infinitesimal amount of work to be done.

OREGON STATE SHOULD HAVE TWO MORE NOMALS

and other towns at some distance from Monmouth in order to partially supply students for practice teaching. The school at Monmouth will continue to grow fast enough without holding back any longer the establishment of additional schools. The two additional normals will provide many more teachers and these teachers will be available for the schools of Eastern and Southern Oregon.

For many years Washington has maintained three state normal schools located in different parts of the state and the president of the Bellingham Normal School, the largest of the three, said several years ago that a fourth school can be established in Washington and would not materially affect the attendance of those already at work. California has twelve normal schools located at various places so as to best serve the young people of that state. This policy of having several normal schools has proven of distinct advantage in both Washington and California because of this greater efficiency and the larger number of trained teachers available for the public schools. Some people think that normal school work should be centralized the same as with the University and Agricultural College, but this has not proven true in other states. Oregon, with its great territory, is a state which demands the severest normal school system. Universities need expensive equipment, large libraries, well equipped laboratories, etc., but in a state normal school these are not so necessary. On the other hand it is very essential and almost imperative that adequate training school facilities should be available to a normal school; a several normal school system has much more opportunity to give practice teaching than the one school located at Monmouth, because of the larger practice teaching opportunities.

claims of Southern Oregon before the legislature and not allow the teacher training situation to go uncorrected for at this session. Southern Oregon has nothing but good will for the Eastern Oregon people, who also want a normal school for their part of the state.

Universities need expensive equipment, large libraries, well equipped laboratories, etc., but in a state normal school these are not so necessary. Southern Oregon has taken the lead in this matter not with any idea of shutting out Eastern Oregon but simply because this section felt compelled to press the is as unnecessary as it would be for the printer to go out of Ashland to buy his groceries, dry goods and other necessities of life.

If the printer wanted to order a car-load of these necessities, it might be that he could save sufficient to go to a wholesale house and order them out of Ashland; but very few printers need car-load lots of necessities, just as very few business houses need sufficiently large orders of printing to justify them to spend their money with printing houses out of Ashland.

and we will call and talk over your printing needs. We feel sure we can handle your order.
