WOMAN DIRECTOR HEADS GIRLS' WORK OF PRESBYTERIANS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 28—The Presbyterian Church has gone to Hollywood, California, for its national Director of Girls' Work. Deborah A. Clark, who for over a year has been Director of Christian Education in the First Presbyterian Church of Hollywood, has become head of all the girls' work of the denomination under the direction of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education. Her headquarters will be in the Witherspoon Building here.

The Presbyterians have had a Director of Boys' Work for a number of years, and the search for a competent person to fill a corresponding position for girls has been prosecuted vigorously by Dr. Harold M. Robinson, secretary of the division in charge of this phase of the Board's work.

The Presbyterians have a large church in Hollywood, and the responsibility of Miss Clark there has been heavy.

Miss Clark has spent most of her life on the Pacific Coast, having been graduated from the University of California in 1922. She has been director of a high school girls' club in Los Angeles, a teacher in all departments of Sunday School, and active in Christian Endeavor work.

She has paid special attention to vocational guidance, and has done much research in Christian work for girls and in courses of study of adolescent psychology in seminaries and teacher training courses of various denominations.

She has been an assistant in the First Presbyterian Church of Berkeley, California, and has had active part in Christian work among prisoners, and has helped conduct shop meetings in Los Angeles.

MEN AND WOMEN IN NEWS SPOTLIGHT

Beverly Bayne, star of the screen, has started Hollywood, Cal., motion picture people by the announcement that she and Francis K. Bushman, movie star, have decided to part, and that divorce proceedings would follow. District Attorney Jacob H. Banton has ordered criminal investigation into the baseball scandal in which Jimmy O'Connell and Cozy Dolan of the New York Giants, are said to have attempted to bribe Heinie Sand of Philadelphia to throw a close game in the pennant race. Ten ball players are sought as witnesses. Miss S. Pearl Tinsler, who reigned only a short time ago as California's queen of the swimming pool and dance floor, has now returned to San Francisco as a full-fledged member of the bar, a doctor of jurisprudence, barrister and patent attorney.

en Gate lost one of its most picturesque and lovable characters. Hjul was the owner of a coffee house—one of those truly delightful gathering places, gay with cosmopolitan life and teeming with color and amusement that are only to be found in New Orleans and San Francisco.

And furthermore Hjul was a true patron of honesty, a firm believer in the policy that all the world is honest.

Not only did Hjul believe in this policy of an honest mankind, but he practiced it, and practiced it with a devotion that is rare to find.

For thirty years anyone could go into H. H. Hjul's coffee house, count up what he owed, pay it and Hjul would take his word for it. No checks were ever given by the waiters in Hjul's restaurant.

Before the great earthquake and fire of 1906 Hjul's restaurant was located on Sacramento street, between Kearney and Montgomery. After 1906 he moved to Montgomery street, where his establishment came to be regarded as a landmark. Both places were in the heart of the financial district.

Hjul was the first man to open a coffee house for girls in the financial district of San Francisco. It was a rendezvous of famous characters for over a quarter of a century. David Warfield, among others, was a familiar figure there whenever he came to town.

A man could eat a dollar dinner at Hjul's and pay a quarter for it, and the proprietor would ask no questions. Many a time a man would come in to pay for a meal a week after he had eaten it.

Apparently Hjul's idea that all men were honest was a paying proposition, for his business was always prosperous, according to his son, James H. Hjul. Hjul came to the United States from Denmark when he was a young man. He was born at Halk, in Schleswig-Holstein, in 1850. He opened his first coffee house in San Francisco in 1876, six years after his arrival in this city.

Fish Shoveled from River During Run

KELSO, Wash., Jan. 28—Smelt started running into the Cowlitz River from the Columbia recently. Catching these miniature fish is the event of the winter, farmers shoveling them up by the scoopful, filling barrels and boxes; women using lace curtain nets at the ends of portiere poles; boys and girls with father's auto cover for a sieve, and the professional fisherman with his linen-thread nets.

These fish, about seven to nine inches long, run in schools, often filling the river from bank to bank. They are enroute upstream to spawn, after which the smelt return to the ocean and, like the fur seal, spend a long time far from human eyes.

The food value of the smelt is what is so attractive, being preserved in glass jars, pickled in spices, salted and dried.
