GOVERNOR VETOES TEXT BOOK BILL

SALEM, Feb. 9. — Governor Pierce today vetoed the bill regulating the adoption of the text book plan in public schools, insisting the bill is in the interest of book concerns and not the taxpayers. The bill would extend the contract for books to a text book company for two additional years without opening bids on a competitive basis. The Garland bill, providing for the reading of portions of the Bible in public schools was passed by the senate with only the negative votes of Senators Corner, Clark, Davis, Ritter and Strayer. The bill provides for the appointment of a commission of nine members, by the Governor, to include the superintendent of public instruction, a Catholic, a Jew, a Christian Science and five Protestants, no two of whom shall be of the same denomination, to select the portions of the Bible suitable for the view of avoiding sectarian teachings.

Mixed Farming Is Urged in Canada

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 9.—Universal adoption of mixed farming will insure continued prosperity for Western Canada, according to Hon. John Bracken, "Farmer Premier" of Manitoba, in an address here. "Increasing development of dairying and livestock raising throughout the prairie provinces," said Mr. Bracken, "is placing agriculture on a sounder basis. Grain growing will continue to be the main industry of Western Canada and will continue to create an immense amount of wealth. But diversified farming will bring about an agricultural development in the next ten years even greater than the grain growing has in the last two decades."

Lorane — J. H. Chambers of Cottage Grove, to build 100,000 foot mill on 5,000 acre timber tract in upper Siuslaw. 10 miles of railroad to be built.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

Catarrh is a general term applied to acute or chronic inflammation of the mucous membrane, the distinguishing feature of which is a discharge of mucus ranging from a watery, innocuous condition to one of purulency and excessive decomposition. Practically any portion of the mucous membrane is liable to suffer from this disorder. Catarrh may attack any portion of the body where mucous membrane exists. In fact the disease usually attacks the organ or portion of the body offering the most favorable outlet. The upper portions of the respiratory apparatus of the body are found for the most part structures coated with delicate and sensitive membranes and it is at this point that catarrh usually makes its appearance. Catarrh of the throat is usually an outcome or complication of nasal catarrh. The discharges fall to escape through the nostrils and are frequently expelled, apparently from the throat. Chronic catarrh of any part of the body is treated in a very similar manner, as far as constitutional measures are concerned. The treatment of catarrh to effect a cure depends upon the elimination from the blood stream and tissues of the poisons, toxins and excess waste, which are the real causes of this particular complaint. One of the most prominent causes of catarrh is the excessive clothing that is worn by civilized people, which half paralyzes the functions of the skin; consequently the pores are not capable of properly performing their duties. They do not do their share of the work of elimination. One rarely finds catarrh of any kind among savage tribes, or among those who wear little clothing. This would indicate that to a large extent it is caused by the clothing habit. The body wastes that are ordinarily eliminated through the pores are thrown back into the circulation, and must find some other means of outlet. The ordinary purifying channels seem to be unable to eliminate them completely, consequently we find these poisons discharged from the mucus membrane of various parts of the body. The blood-purifying process that must be the most prominent part of the treatment of catarrh should begin with a fast.
