108 YEAR OLD VET SPURNS MOTORS

DAYTON, O., Feb. 24.—More than 108 years old, Robert Brown native of Arkansas, enjoys the distinction of being the oldest inmate of the National Soldiers' Home here.

Brown believes in taking things as they come, but he has never accepted two of civilization's late inventions—the automobile and the airplane. Although offered countless auto rides and invitations to get a bird's eye view of Dayton and its environs from a flying plane, he consistently refuses, declaring that conveyances that were good enough for his boyhood and early manhood are good enough for him now.

On the occasion of his 108th birthday anniversary, William Bane, 104, called to congratulate his senior and wish him "many happy returns."

tory to their credit over the northern five, they are certain to be in for a battle Saturday night, and will have to show all their stuff to finish on top.

The following week the Ashland and Medford high fives will tangle in their final tussles of the year. Although the Medford five has already taken two tussles, the locals are confident they will be able to cop three in a row and grab off the Southern Oregon title. Should Ashland win the remaining games scheduled, a fifth game will be necessary. It will probably be played on a neutral court, at a date to be set later.

standpoint of business development which the Company has ever had, the gross earnings for the year showing an increase of $229,219.51 over the year 1923. The aggregate increase in connected load in the four divisions during the year, exclusive of wholesale deliveries, amounted to 8,450 kilowatts. Of this increase 4,182 kilowatts represent added domestic and lighting load, the balance consisting of increase in power load. The total number of electric consumers has increased from 13,395 to 14,521. Over 316 domestic electric ranges were added to the lines during the year. The outlook for business growth for the year 1925 is encouraging. A very considerable additional load has already been contracted for but not yet connected, and all indications point to a rate of growth during the coming year that will no doubt exceed that of 1924.

Hurricane Razes Crescent City, Damage $50,000

GRANTS PASS, Feb. 24.—A gale, which assumed the proportions of a hurricane, struck Crescent City, Calif., yesterday, razing a number of buildings, says word received here from the coast city. Details are lacking although it has ascertained that no lives were lost and no serious injuries were sustained.

The storm hit the city about 10 o'clock as near as can be judged. A message received shortly after that hour was to the effect that buildings were being blown down and that one woman had been injured. Rumors were circulated freely yesterday which were to the effect that a large number of people were killed and injured. These were proven to have no basis of fact.

For a time the hurricane appeared to threaten the whole city, but passed over after wrecking several business houses and dwellings and uprooted trees. It was estimated that the damage would amount to $50,000.

BUT THREE MEMBERS ARE OPPOSED TO MEASURE

Butler said that the bill was not a Southern Oregon proposition in any way, but was part of a state program for the betterment of the schools of the state.

Senator Moser, president of the senate said that the passing of the Ashland normal school bill, would, in his opinion, assist, rather than injure, the chances of Eastern Oregon to obtain a similar institution at the general election two years hence.

Senator Rittner of Pendleton, while declaring that he favored the opening of the Ashland normal, said that he thought the bill should go to the voters for their action, in the manner as the Eastern Oregon and Seaside measures were being handled.

Senator Zimmerman of Yamhill declared that it was unfair to authorize the appropriation of funds until the funds were available, while Senators Strayer and Taylor contended that the bill should go to the voters.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

The old superstition that divine revelation will enable a mother to care for her baby with uncaring wisdom has long since been passed into the discard. It is now well known that to trust to a mother's love and instinct, unless they are supplemented by knowledge, is to lean on a broken reed.

Even before the arrival of the child the mother-to-be should bear on the task of learning how to may assist Nature in perfecting the unborn, instead of going on blindly in the belief that Providence will help those who refuse to help themselves.

Oliver Wendell Holmes tells us that the education and training of a child should properly commence with its grandparents, if a child is to have the inheritance it has a right to demand of its progenitors.

Be this as it may, of one thing we are certain and that is that since this little bundle of responsibility has arrived, we must shoulder the burden with a fervor that will enable us to meet each phase of the situation as it presents itself with courage and joy.

At first the baby's physical needs and development demand all our care and attention, for the intellectual faculties are as yet inactive. Our aim in the beginning must be to assist Nature in building aright the body which is the temple of the budding soul.

The first essentials of life being air and warmth, let us give these due consideration. The baby's first demand upon the new world into which it has entered is oxygen. It can wait a while for its bath and still longer for food, but it must have air at once. The baby's first requirement, then, is a well ventilated, warm apartment.

If our babies are permitted to breathe a pure atmosphere from birth, by day as well as by night, and are given sun baths, they will grow and expand with all the strength and beauty of the things of the outdoor world, even though much of the time is spent indoors.

The needs of the infant are comparatively simple, when they are properly understood. All that is required is that you use good, common sense, eliminate non-essentials, and concentrate on the essentials.

"DIAMOND WAR" SEEN IN AFRICA

JOHANNESBURG, Feb. 23.—Possibility of "War" in the diamond world is seen in a statement issued by the powerful De Beers mining group.

Dealing with the position of the diamond industry under the adverse influence of uncontrolled competition from the alluvial diamond fields, the company points out that its present position has been attained by many years of hard work and large investments of capital.

"We have no desire to injure anybody in our struggle for existence," says the statement, "but to guard our interests we may have to put our foot down decidedly and firmly, self-preservation being the first law of nature."
