Spoils His Own Wake
By Appearing in Person
VICTORIA, Texas — While relatives and friends were gathering in an undertaking establishment here recently, making preparations for the burial of a man supposed to be Mateo Basques, Basques walked into their midst.
 He identified the dead man as a friend to whom he had loaned a pair of shoes. It was the shoes, identified as those of Basques, that had caused the mistaken identity of the dead man, whose body was horribly mangled by a train.

FIGHTING THROUGH
 (By Grace E. Hall)
 I have probed for meanings deeply
 In the common daily things,
 Have restrained my fancy that I might
 Know life and what it brings
 To the little sphere that each of us
 May live; in counted hours,
 The accomplishments a man may have
 With ordinary powers . . .
 One gains and still another falls
 In striving just to live,
 In the selfsame undertakings,
 Though their best the two may give;
 And the only actual difference
 In the goals thus won or lost
 Is that one man yields, and one fights on
 Regardless of the cost . . .

Reception —
 Madame Tracey Young, an Ashland noted pianist, entertained most delightfully at an informal reception Thursday evening at the Siskiyou Lodge in honor of the world renowned portrait painter, Mr. McCloskey, and Madame Tracey's guests, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D'Angelo, of Long Beach.
 The many friends of Madame Tracey Young thoroughly enjoyed an evening of dancing, music, and interesting conversation on the travels and paintings by Mr. McCloskey.

Money Control

MONEY CONTROL
IN EUROPE VEERS
TO U. S. BANKERS

LONDON. — American financial penetration goes on apace in Europe, with little or no comment being made upon its progress in European newspapers and with European public totally oblivious to the control which American finance is gaining.
 Students of economy and finance realize the changing position, as evidenced by an article by Hugh Quigley in the Manchester Guardian Commercial. Quigley says:
 "The United States is now carrying out that system of financial penetration which has been suggested by some of their leading economists at the conclusion of the war, and this system, if scientifically carried out, may ultimately deprive both Germany and Britain of a great part of the trade which might otherwise go to them."
 American bankers advanced the loans that checked the fall of the franc. What the eventual result of that loan will be remains to be seen, but many in Britain believe that it gives the United States a powerful stick to wield in influencing French policies.
 American banks advanced credits to facilitate the return of Great Britain to the gold standard. The results of this advance are still indeterminate, but Lord Beaverbrook's "Daily Express" declares that this advance in credits will cost the British taxpayers nearly $2,000,000 in two years, and furthermore it charges that the return to the gold standard is playing into the hands of American finance, and it points out that during the first six months of the year deposits in the five big banks of England decreased by $200,000,000, the bank rate has increased whereas in 1924 England advanced $200,000,000 in loans to foreign powers, in 1925 not a single loan has been made.
 American bankers have floated a loan of $75,000,000 for Australia.
 A Danish loan of $30,000,000 has also been floated in the United States.
 The great German electrical concerns have secured advances from New York bankers.
 Plans are now under way

Brazil is Busy

BRAZIL IS BUSY
WITH BIG BOOM
IN CRUDE RUBBER

WASHINGTON — Operations of the British rubber monopoly, which have driven crude rubber prices skyward in the United States has brought about a state of considerable activity in the Brazilian producing areas, according to advices to the Department of Commerce from Rio de Janeiro.
 While officials decline to discuss the report that American financiers are becoming more and more interested in the backing of South American plantations, it is the understanding that agents of foreign capitalists have gone South to look over the situation.
 It is felt officially that the chief hope of the big rubber consumers of the United States lies in the financing of foreign plantations. South America, according to reports, offers the best prospects.
 American capitalists already have millions of dollars invested in South America which is having the effect not only of increasing the interchange of trade between the two continents, but bringing about a better commercial relationship.
 Little progress has been made in the effort to discover a rubber producing plant which will grow in continental United States, although the project has been studied by the Department of Agriculture. Some hope is held out for Philippine rubber plantations.
 Sales from the Brazilian rubber market are well above normal, the Department of Commerce learned. In May, the last available figures, total shipments of rubber were 2,629 metric tons, of which 1,868 tons came to the United States. May marked the first month since Feb., that the United States had taken more rubber from South America than Europe.
 Shipments for the first five months of the year showed an increase of about 25 per cent over last year, consignments to United States having increased 4.5 per cent and to Europe 48.7 per cent.
 "Price gains on the Brazilian market during May were so great in spite of the unusually high levels ruling at the beginning of the month, that for some days sales were at prices larger in terms of Brazilian currency than any that have ruled since 1910," the department was informed.
 "In spite of the fact that operations of rubber gatherers have been extended steadily for some months the rapid price gains of May brought fresh enthusiasm and greater activity."
 "Estates that have lain abandoned for years are being brought into production daily. Advertisements have appeared in local newspapers for as many as one hundred rubber gatherers on a single plantation. Each river steamer that calls up the Amazon from Para carries new men and quantities of supplies."
 Linnton—West Oregon Lumber Co., to build new $20,000 plant. Newport to construct new $25,000 city hall, auditorium and fire station.
 Eugene building permits for August were $286,750.

U. S. SHOULD PROVIDE MONEY FOR FORESTS

U. S. SHOULD PROVIDE MONEY FOR FORESTS
PORTLAND, Sept. 9.—(U. P.) — The government should provide funds for fighting forest fires in timber lands adjacent to national forests, E. G. Allen, head of the Western Forestry and Conservation commission told members of the senate public lands committee here yesterday. Senators Stanfield of Oregon and Cameron of Arizona opened the public lands hearing here yesterday. Allen was the first witness. Colonel W. B. Greeley, chief forester of the United States, was introduced as a spectator.

Hungary's Boy Scouts

Hungary's Boy Scouts
Guard Danube River
VIENNA—Hungary has found a new use for its Boy Scouts. They are being engaged to patrol the banks of the Danube to keep a watch on property and the proprietaries when mixed bathing parties or dancing parties in bathing suits are held in the Danube bathing resorts.
 The Boy Scouts as policemen, were at first jokingly welcomed by the public, but now complaints are being made that the "policemen" have taken so seriously their duties of keeping up good manners and clothing regulations that their zealous watchfulness has become a nuisance to bathers and dancers.

London Vies With N. Y. in Accidental Deaths

LONDON—London would seem to be running a race with New York for the doubtful honor of being the city with the highest accident death-roll.
 Recent statistics show that for the first three months of 1925 there were 25,342 street accidents in the twenty-four square-mile area of this city. Of this number 226 proved fatal. Privately owned vehicles such as automobiles and motor trucks were responsible for the largest number of fatal accidents.

Russian Explorer Finds Art Treasures

MOSCOW—Roy Chapman Andrews' sole competitor in digging for archaeological treasures in the sands of the Gobi Desert, P. Kozloff, famous Russian explorer has turned in his first report of work done by his expedition in the region near that occupied by Andrews' expedition of the American Museum of Natural History. Kozloff, who is noted as the discoverer of the buried city of Hara-Khoto, has uncovered a hill containing a treasury of 500 ancient objects of art, estimated to be 2,000 years old.
