40 PER CENT OF FRESHMEN FAIL IN ENGLISH TEST

all was used at Oregon. Dr. Howard R. Taylor, assistant professor of psychology, believes there will be a close correlation between the high school grades of the student and his intelligence rating. There will be a close correlation also between success in college and a good rating, in the opinion of Dr. Taylor. If a student who has made a good intelligence rating in the tests fails to make good grades in his college work, the scholarship committee has a right to assume the student is not giving his best efforts to his studies.
