SEPTEMBER 20, 1925
IT SURELY WILL: — Be sure your sin will find you out. Numbers 32 23.
PRAYER:—
Plenteous grace with Thee is found,
Grace to cover all my sin;
At the healing streams abound,
Take and keep me pure within.

TIMBER BEST MATERIAL FOR MINE SUPPORTS
Wood has, as no other materials does, the essential properties to meet varied conditions of service required in underground support," says the Bureau of Mines.

"It has great strength and stiffness in proportion to its weight and will compare favorably with good steel in bending strength on a weight-for-weight basis. Under excessive pressure steel lacks the tenacious resistance to failure shown by timber. Steel fails by buckling, which once started usually proceeds rapidly, whereas, a mine timber under pressure exceeding its strength, usually fails gradually. Concrete also fails rapidly when loaded beyond its strength. So far, no material has been found to equal timber in withstanding heavy pressures accompanied by earth movements, such as are encountered in some deep metal mines, or to give miners such satisfactory warning of approaching failure."

GOOD NEWS FOR THE WEST
Commenting upon copper situation, Evening Copper Journal of Hancock, Michigan, says:

"Conditions in 1924 showed steady improvement over previous years. American consumption exceeded production, reducing stocks to where there is now about one month's supply ahead. Unless production is unduly increased during the coming year, which lessons of the past should prevent, there is every indication that well managed companies will enjoy reasonable prosperity during the coming year.

"Basic conditions in the industry are sound. Stock held by producers is small. Stock held by consumers in this country is smaller than usual, and as to stock held by consumers in foreign countries, there is none.

"A tremendous vacuum in the world's copper requirements remains to be filled."
The current price of commercial silver has passed 72 cents, the highest mark since 1923, when U. S. Treasury ceased buying domestic silver at $1.00 an ounce as provided under Pittman act. The government is back in market for silver and is urged to purchase some 14,000,000 ounces to take place of silver alleged to have been bought from non-domestic producers under the act.

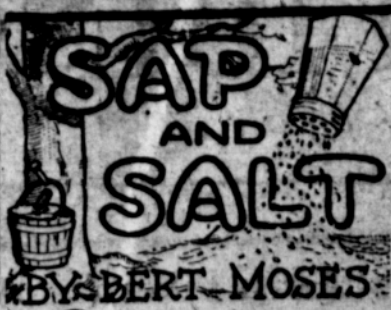

A COURAGEOUS RECORD
Of the $480,000,000 net earnings of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in the last five years, $114,000,000 was paid in taxes, $165,000,000 was paid in dividends and $201,000,000 was turned back into the property for improvements.

When taxes nearly equal dividends in a successful oil company, it is marvelous that the industry as a whole has the courage to go ahead in highly speculative undertakings involving great risk, in order to maintain the supply of gasoline and oil needed by this nation.

BY-PATHS OF LIVING

The careless or unobservant traveler is sometimes puzzled, in passing through the thronged center of a great city, to find within a few hundred feet, by streets and nooks into which no throb of the metropolis is to be found. Or, within a few hundred yards of the city itself, there may be seen rural nooks that seem entirely unaffected by the ebb and flow of urban life. Much the same thing is to be found in nations. There are spots on main world lines of traffic that are perhaps seen, but never felt. And then something happens to bring them to notice. They will have a vogue, for a few months or years, and then slip back into the unaccounted for. Corsica slips in and out of the current news. Similarly it slips in and out of the attention of travelers. Only among the Dry-As-Dust scholars and literary people is it a subject for recurrent attention.

There are many such spots. The South Sea Islands have been given intermittent attention by the "Great World" for a century. There are places like Crete, that scholarship may draw to the attention some time in this decade, politics, again, war again. It is only with some accident that will bring special commercial value that can really "place" an unnoted spot. An example of a locality that was once noted and now is almost entirely forgotten is St. Helena, in the midst of the South Atlantic. It was the home of Napoleon as an exile. It has other characteristics, but who knows them?

Every new law adds to the army of lawbreakers.

Passing the buck and passing more laws seems to be our national sport.

If you believe in anything, you are relieved of the hard work of thinking about it.

A good reputation can only be maintained by constantly taking care not to be caught.

Jazz music is something that can never get better, but must always get worse to be popular.

Whatever chewing is necessary should be done in the mouth, there being no teeth in the stomach.

Hez Heck says: "When laziness is a part of a man's constitution and bylaws, they's no hope for his getting over it."

Don't worry if this stuff fails to amuse you. New Jersey man broke his jaw laughing at a friend's joke.

Fullman porters say they don't want to be called George. We find they don't want to be called at all.

When a man is kicking about something he is usually kicking himself about.

Another evil of prohibition is it keeps the weather from being the world's most discussed subject.

"CIGARETTE TEST" FOR INTOXICATION

BELFAST, Ireland, Sept. 29—(U. P.)—The "cigarette test" in the latest of the schemes for determining the state of a man's sobriety—or lack of it. A Belfast saloon keeper was arraigned charged with permitting drunkenness in his saloon. The police stated that the man supplied with liquor was dazed and staggering.

Where upon the saloon keeper called as witness for his defense a physician who was in the saloon at the time. The doctor testified: "I gave the man a cigaret to smoke, which he did with deliberation and neatness. This would have been impossible in the case of a drunken man."

The jury returned a verdict of "Not Guilty."
