APPLEGROWERS WAITING FOR HIGHER PRICES

ASHLAND FRUIT AND PRODUCE ASSOCIATION TO HANDLE LOCAL MARKETING

PRICES WILL GO UP

Brommer Declares Apple Prices Bound to Increase in Near Future

Apple growers of this vicinity are refusing to sell their apples at the prices now offered, believing that prices will increase rapidly within the very near future, according to Carl Brommer, manager of the Ashland Fruit and Produce association, which organization will handle a large part of the apple shipments from Ashland this year.

One grower, D. H. Jackson, will sell 3,000 boxes of apples through the association, according to Brommer. Jackson is at present holding his apples for higher prices, acting upon the advice of the association officials.

Brommer stated that the association can sell all the apples they have on hand, and all that the growers bring in, at the prices now offered. However, they advise the growers to hold their apples for higher prices, which Brommer declares are bound to come.

A crew of packers are now working at the association warehouse, packing these apples. "We have a small crew, but they are the best packers in the county," Brommer declared this morning. The crew is in charge of Mrs. Edith Smith.

"We first confer with the grower, and if he desires to sell, we can unload his apples immediately," Brommer explained. "However, we advise him to wait, and if he cares to do so, we are confident that higher prices will result. We have turned down orders already, and can sell all the apples we can get at the present prices," Brommer went on.

Ten Children Are Examined at Baby Clinic

Ten children of pre-school age were given examinations at the baby clinic held yesterday afternoon at the civic club house by Dr. V. S. Geary, county health officer. In addition to the examination of the children, Dr. Geary gave suggestions and advice upon the care of the children. Dr. Geary was assisted in this work by Miss Leah Jennings and Miss Vera Board, county nurses.

The next clinic will be held on November 19, from 2 to 5 p. m., in the civic clubhouse. Parents who wish to have their children examined are asked to register them at the library with Miss Blanche Hicks.

These clinics are held once each month, and many parents are receiving valuable advice upon the care of their children's health.

Pacific Cooperative Wool Growers are to be organized in the United States, and large marketing organization in Oregon.

Plaster Bust of Character of Early Days Found

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 15.—Located accidentally in a Sacramento junk shop, a plaster of paris bust of Senator David C. Broderick, a noted character of California's early political history today was turned over to the state library by Albert Dresser, a San Francisco collector of historic relics.

The bust is declared to be an excellent likeness of Senator Broderick, who was killed in a duel with Justice of the state supreme court in 1855. It was made by F. J. Devino, a sculptor, in the year of Broderick's death and is in good condition.

PROSPECTIVE MEMBERS ARE CLUB GUESTS

Good Program Presented at Meeting of Kiwanis Organization

Today was guest day at the meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Lithia Springs hotel. The membership committee was in charge of the program, and about ten prospective members of the organization were guests.

The meeting opened with a song, led by J. H. Hardy, whom the members claim has been hiding his musical ability. Then followed the introduction of the guests.

G. A. Briscoe spoke on "Kiwanis and What It Means." He compared the Kiwanis club to the spiritual side of life, as the chamber of commerce is the material side, and he extended an invitation to the guests to join the organization. He declared that the prospective members had something to offer the club, and he hoped that they would join.

NATS LOSE MORE THAN GAME

The Washington Senators lost more than the game in the second contest of the world series. Ossie Bluege, their star third baseman, was knocked unconscious when one of Vic Aldridge's fast shoots struck him on the head, and his return to the series was doubtful. In the photo above Bluege is shown on the ground with Umpire Owens, Catcher Smith of the Pirates and Joe Judge of the Senators lifting him from the ground. Peck of the Senators is standing by.

Famous Trail Blazer Visits Ashland Store

"Outdoor" Franklin, famous scout and trail blazer, and Earl Wilson, executive from the Los Angeles office of the Western Auto Supply company were visitors in Ashland Wednesday, stopping for several hours at the local store.

Franklin and Wilson are on the home stretch of a 10,000 mile tour, which took them over almost every main road west of the Mississippi. During this tour they gathered information on roads, hunting and fishing grounds, camp grounds and other valuable data, which will be of interest to tourists.

This information will be on file at the home office in Los Angeles, and also at the Oakland, Calif., office of the company, where it will be available for any tourist, or anyone contemplating a motor trip.

SISKIYOU CAMP HAS PAINTINGS OF FINE ARTIST

William McCloskey is One of Foremost Painters of Country

HAS LARGE EXHIBIT

News of Local Man Write Article About McCloskey and His Works

One of the foremost portrait painters of the world spends a large part of his time at Siskiyou camp, at the summit of the Siskiyou, visiting with his daughter, Mrs. Robert Russell, one of the proprietors of the camp, according to an article appearing in the Morning Oregonian several days ago.

William McCloskey is the man around whom the story is written. Many Ashland people who have visited Siskiyou camp have viewed the many wonderful paintings which Mr. McCloskey has produced, and which are on exhibition there.

Alice M. Van Natta of Portland, a niece of G. O. Van Natta of this city, is the writer of the article.

Miss Van Natta has the following to say of Mr. McCloskey: "A community house in southern Oregon is not exactly the setting in which one would expect to find an exhibit of paintings done by one of the foremost portrait artists in this country. But it was in such a building at Siskiyou camp, on the summit of the Siskiyou range that the work of William McCloskey, known widely for his work as an artist, were found on display recently. Visitors there were surprised to find the walls of the main room almost hidden by large oil paintings. The writer was one of the group."

"I do not feel that I can qualify as an art critic, but I have taken a keen interest in the various exhibits at the Portland museum for so long that I was certain of one thing at once. The work was not that of an amateur."

"Who painted these?" I asked a bystander, and not wishing to appear at a disadvantage he answered that it was a forest ranger.

"That ranger has missed his calling," I retorted, "the forests can get along without him."

DEPUTY PLEADS GUILTY, IS TO QUIT NOV. 1

L. D. Fornerook to Resign Local Youth Gets Year On Burglary Count

L. D. Fornerook, deputy sheriff, indicted by the last grand jury, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging "failure to serve a warrant," and the felony charge, alleging the obstruction of justice was dismissed. Fornerook was given a fine of $50, and upon the recommendation of the district attorney's office was suspended, and no jail sentence given. It is understood that Fornerook will resign November 1, to accept a more lucrative position.

The demurrers filed against the indictments, were overruled by the court before the pleading.

Fornerook was charged with failure to serve a warrant upon Walter Williams, a Gold Hill youth charged with a statutory offense. Fornerook claimed that because of the youth of Williams, he accepted the promise of the parents of the boy, who is 16 years old, to bring him to Jacksonville. The boy ran away in the meantime. Fornerook said that the reason for this course was because he did not want to put the boy in the county jail among hardened men, a course he said was followed by officers generally in juvenile cases.

C. A. Ramsey, charged with grand larceny from the Rigdon residence in Ashland, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. He was accused of stealing household goods.

There are two Scout Troops connected with the Y. M. C. A. in Ashland. The other one has as Scout Master, John Higg.

Following the talks Mr. Galey called for the reports on the drive. These showed that splendid work had been done. The men reported a good response and were encouraged by the final showing.

TOURTELLOTT IS SPEAKING Y. M. C. A.

Portland Architect Will Do Work Done by Y. M. C. A. Organization

DRIVE IS UNDERWAY

Effort Being Made to Cut Budget by Tourist Working

J. E. Tourtelotte, Portland architect, spoke before Y. M. C. A. workers at their meeting last night at the Flannery factory.

H. C. Galey, the president of the Y. M. C. A., called upon A. E. Tourtelotte to introduce Mr. Tourtelotte. Mr. Tourtelotte spoke of the first time he met Tourtelotte in Boise, some years ago and how Tourtelotte showed him some boys through two buildings he had built. One was the State Capitol; the other the modern Y. M. C. A. building. He also told of Mr. Tourtelotte's active work with the Portland Association since taking up his residence in Portland.

In responding, Mr. Tourtelotte spoke of his appreciation of the Y. M. C. A. and of his long and active connection with it, having joined the Association in Boise in 1898 shortly after it was organized. He said he had been a member continuously during the twenty-seven years since. He emphasized the work of the Association, stating that these were the most valuable things in the world. The Association educates boys to ideas. He said there were many organizations operated for profit, but the Association was not carried on for profit but for its character returns. The Association trains boys to be good for something. He said the Association builds for physical life which means success and failure. The Association helps a boy to plan his life, it helps him to establish right habits of life and living and thinking. In closing he said: "I am a builder, but consider the money and time I have given to the Association for the making of men the best money and time I have ever invested anywhere. I have two boys of my own and part of their success now is due to the Young Men's Christian Association."

Mr. Onley called upon Homer Billings who responded by introducing Scout Earl Linsager. Earl told of the work of the Boy Scouts and of what they stood for. He told of their physical and mental work in keeping fit, and as an illustration told of their experience in the camp this summer where several of the boys climbed Mount Pitt.

Loyal Rooters Welcome Senators in Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The distinguished Washington baseball team returned home early today, beaten but not broken. A crowd of three hundred loyal rooters met them at the station. The team was greeted at the entrance of the train.

"I gave them the best I had," Walter Johnson said. "Moore, Carey and Gandy are the best hitters I have ever met," he declared.
