3,000,000 MAY BENEFIT BY INCOME CUTS

Discuss Proposal to Remove Taxes on Incomes Under $5,000

COMMITTEE IS SPLIT

Ways and Means Hearing to be Rushed Through in Ten Days

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—Already split on the proposal to wipe out the income taxes on incomes under $5,000 per year, the house ways and means committee met today to begin framing the new revenue bill.

Opening hearings on the bill which is to be pushed through in the early weeks of the convening December congress, Chairman Green called to the stand treasury department officials and tax experts to hear their views on how best to distribute some $350,000,000 available for the new cut.

The committee intends to conclude work on the new bill before congress convenes and it may be reported to the House within the first week for the session. Unless unforeseen difficulties arise, Chairman Green promises to have the measure finally adopted by his branch before the holidays.

The senate finance committee then will take up controversial features of the measure and thresh them out. Chairman Smoot estimates the bill should be reported to the senate shortly after the holidays.

Even the unlimited debate rules of the senate cannot delay the measure more than a month, Green and Smoot believe. They feel that the new law will be sent down to the White House for the signature of President Coolidge by the first of February.

The reduction is expected to be about 25 percent all along the line and the committees will consider the advisability of making it retroactive as was done last year.

LOCAL ELEVEN PLAYS TIE WITH GRANTS PASS

Showing flashes of real football class, but still displaying their greenness and inexperience, the Ashland high school football team Saturday staged an uphill battle, and finally emerged from their tussle with the Grants Pass eleven, deadlocked in a 7-7 tie.

Throughout the first quarter, the locals showed several flashes of what could be termed real football, but whenever they got into a tight hole, where nothing but experience could pull them out, they blew up, and allowed their opportunity to slip away.

Coach Hughes must have told his boys a few things which were far from complimentary, for they came out fighting mad, and had the northerners on the defense throughout the half.

The local outfit was woefully weak in their passing game, many of their attempts failing, while the Grants Pass outfit passed almost at will.

COMMITTEE TO MEET HERE ON NORMAL PLANS

Believe Definite Action Will Be Taken At Meeting Wednesday

PLANS NOT YET READY

Architect Declares Plans "Will Be in Hands of Regents By November 5"

After more than three months of dilly-dallying about during which time no definite action was taken toward starting construction on the Southern Oregon Normal school, despite the efforts of J. H. Fuller of this city, a member of the building committee, a meeting of that committee has finally been called for this city, according to Fuller.

According to J. A. Churchill, president of the normal, and at present occupying the position of head of the state educational department, the architect has not as yet completed the plans for the structure to be erected here.

Fuller has been working with Churchill for several weeks, in an effort to obtain some action, and their work has been successful, as is shown in the calling of the meeting for Wednesday.

The members of the committee who will gather here are Frank J. Miller of Albany, C. L. Starr of Portland and J. M. Fuller of this city. These men will meet with Superintendent Churchill.

Louis Dodge Fails as Bear Hunter, Party Breaks up

Louis Dodge, prominent local furniture dealer, weather prophet, hotel builder, or what have you, is gaining quite a reputation as a bear hunter. In fact, Louis is becoming so ardent a follower of the sport that he is now hunting them with a lantern.

A few nights ago, Louis and Dick Price, owner of the Lithia Springs hotel, made a trip to Crater Lake. Arriving after dark, they warmed themselves before the roaring fire which John Mabin, caretaker at the lodge had prepared.

Then Price suggested that the party go out and take a look at the bears. Mabin secured a lantern, and the trio started out. Within a few minutes, they heard the bear, but could not see him.

Finally, the two leaders heard a voice, away back in the distance. It was Louis, and he shouted: "Way I want you fellows to understand I haven't lost any bear, I'm going back to the lodge."
