BIG PAY AND SET UPS SAY BOX FIGHTERS

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor) NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—(U. P.)—Two good lessons have been learned by the major league club owners in the late world series if they are interested in the future of baseball and want the game above criticism.

There is nothing seriously wrong with baseball if there is anything wrong at all. The game is being played well and administered well. There was no scandal during the 1925 season and the world's series was the best ever seen.

But there are dangers ahead that need safeguards and the most important of them is the commercial evil as it pertains particularly to the world's series.

As long as there are from 35,000 to 40,000 fans who are willing to pay more than $100,000 to see one game between the champions of the National and American Leagues and as many more who would attend if there was room for them, the owners of the champion clubs cannot be criticized for taking the money.

If the fans want to pay more than a million dollars to see a series for the world's championship, the magnates would be poor business men if they did not capitalize on the opportunity. But therein lies the danger.

Baseball is becoming too much of a business. It is becoming a game of getting the money, played both by the club owners and the players.

The close-set scrutiny did not disclose that there was any reasons for the seven games in the last series other than that neither the Pirates nor the Senators were able to win until the series had gone the limit.

Yet, you could hear fans around the hotels in Washington and in Pittsburgh expressing the opinion early in the series, when it looked like the Senators were a cinch to win in five games, that the series would go the limit of seven games.

How can they turn down more than $200,000 for two more games? It was asked. No one would dare say that the Senators did not try to win the series in straight games. The players are allowed to share in the receipts of only four games and it is quite certain that they were eager to get the thing over with as quickly as possible.

With a huge new plant depending partially at least on some revenue from boxing, Rickard planned to make the 1925-1926 indoor season a record breaker. He took only a small part in the past outdoor season, figuring that there were few cards big enough to fill the ball parks and results showed that he was right.

With a capacity of 35,000, he figured that he could offer the fighters attractive purses to work inside this winter, but he has been able to make very few good matches.

"When I opened the old Garden I had no trouble arranging cards and I think any of the big boxers at that time will be will-

Washington Solons Gather For a Special Session

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 9.—The Washington legislators convened here today at Governor Hartley's bidding for an extraordinary session. The leaders said the matters of organization would probably bring the Governor's opening address on Tuesday or even later.

Floyd Danskin of Spokane is slated for the office of speaker of the House, and E. J. Cleary of Whatcom county will probably be elected president pro tem of the Senate, but the real clash is anticipated over the chief clerkship of the House.

Two members were to be sworn in in the House this afternoon. They are: Thomas McCormick of Spokane, successor to Olaf L. Olson, and A. E. Clark of Grant county, succeeding E. I. Huffman, deceased.

STUDENTS FIND MANY METHODS TO EARN MONEY

For two laundry concerns in various dormitories. This gives her money to defray her other expenses.

Leon T. David is another student at Stanford who has no money except that which he can earn while attending school. He acts as custodian of the Men's Union there, reports university news for an out of town newspaper, sells second-hand books, acts as a chemistry assistant and serves as a recorder in the registrar's office.

There's a third student at Leland Stanford who has a novel way of getting through college. His name, oddly enough, is Leland Stanford, though he's no relation to the founder of the college, and he preaches every Sunday in the Methodist church at San Bruno. In his spare moments he studies law at the University.

College is no gay round of pleasure for these young people. It means lots of hard work. But they're getting something out of it besides a collection of dance programs and membership in a Greek letter fraternity.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT
James J. Crossley, Portland, Oregon, announces his candidacy for Republican Nomination as U. S. Senator at the May, 1926 Primaries.

procession, with representation by nearly every organization and business establishment in Medford. Many handsome prizes are offered by the Legion for the best floats and decorated cars, and competition will no doubt be keen in an endeavor to secure one of the silver cups or the cash prize.

After the parade there will be a few minutes rest—during the lunch hour, then promptly at 1:00 p. m., the fun will start again. Outdoor stunts will amuse the crowds until 1:30, when the scene of activities will shift to the Hotel Medford, where the Medford Fire Department will put on an interesting exhibition and fire drill. Wall-scaling, net-jumping, and other thrilling events will serve to show the townspeople how a modern fire-department functions, and the new Stutz "pumper" will also be called upon to show its efficiency.

At 2:00 p. m. the majority of the crowd will be found at the new High School Athletic Field, where the annual football battle between Medford and Ashland will take place. For those who do not care for this sport there will be vaudeville at the Craterian and motion pictures at the Rialto theatre. Following the game will come a new array of street entertainment free to all.
