NEWSPAPER SPORT WRITERS CHOOSE ALL COAST ELEVEN

nerups included Brix (W), Swan (S), Sargent (C), Poulson (S) and Bucklin (I).
Taylor (U.S.C.) and Carty (C) led the field for the guard positions. Each has had an excellent year with vigorous offensive and ground covering coupled with bulwark defense, responsible for their selection. Swan (S) and Herrell (U.S.C.) also were approved for first team guards.

Cravath of U. S. C. had a walkover to win the center post. His pivot work, passing and offensive have put him far ahead of anyone else in the conference, the writers agreed. Ostrom, Montana, was the only other player to win a vote for this position.

Kelly of Montana, renowned for his fast runs and elusive darts down the field, grabbed quarterback honors by a wide margin. Others looked on with favor were Carlson (C), Edwards (O.A.C.), Guttersen (W) and Drury, (U.S.C.), who also got one vote for this position.

But Drury's best work, the scribes agreed, is done at halfback and they picked him to play with the 100 per cent Wilson at this location. Schulmerich (O.A.C.) and Imlay, (C), also were given votes.

Nevers, as has been said, had small opposition for fullback. There is only one Ernie Nevers, in the opinion of Stanford fans, and this belief evidently also is held by sport scribes of the coast.

A few of the men named on the second team received votes for first team honors as well and falling to reach the major squad, were easy selections for the runnerup selections.

Two of the writers, George Bertz of the Portland Journal and Vic Klee of the San Francisco Illustrated Daily Herald, his most a perfect score in their selections, picking nine out of the eleven first string players. George Davis of the San Francisco Bulletin would have made it 10 hits out of the eleven had he not switched Kelly and Drury to half and quarterback respectively, when the rest of the writers held them best in the other places. Each of the other experts hit about 50 per cent in picking the outstanding squad.

LARGE CROWD HEARS SPEAKER FROM S. CAL.

He in which the cohorts of evil were to be arrayed against the forces of Christ in final conflict in which the church was to be victorious. He set forth the inevitable clashing of these forces upon American soil, out of which would come forth the glorious victory of the spiritual over the material, of ideals over materialism. His appeal was to men of America to become followers of the man of Galilee.

In the evening Mr. Myers led his hearers from one triumphant scene to another in the life of Jesus. His subject was "On the Mountain Tops with Jesus." It was an eloquent preachment of the triumphs of Jesus Christ which held his hearers' interest till the end. The sermons of both morning and evening were frequently broken into by the, applause of his hearers, an unusual but spontaneous outburst of feeling in a church gathering. The subject for tonight is: "The Greatest Man in Ashland." Mr. Myers announces that he will name the greatest man in Ashland and that his audience will agree with him unanimously. Mr. Myers served the churches of Christ in Dallas, Silverton, Tor and has returned for a brief visit to Oregon after ten years of service as pastor in Redlands and Anaheim, California. He is well known on the Pacific coast as a fearless advocate of Christianity of the militant variety. He will preach each night during a protracted meeting of three or four weeks. The public is invited to attend.
