DECEMBER 23, 1925
ASA'S PRAYER: — Lord, it is nothing with Thee to help, whether with many, or with them that have no power: help us, O Lord our God, for we rest on Thee, and in Thy name we go against this multitude. 2 Chronicles 14:11.

PRAYER:
"I could not do without Thee
O Saviour of the lost;
I have no strength or goodness,
No wisdom of my own."

A TRIBUTE TO INSURANCE

"Without the stability of our government rooted firmly in an unimpaired constitution," says G. E. Turner in The Insurance Field, "our present industrial and economic life is impossible. Without a wholesome and constantly developing industrial and economic life, government alone is impotent to sustain a nation of happy and contented people. Insurance finds its place in this general scheme of things because of the fact that without some such stabilizer as that provided by insurance, our economic structure would rock from its foundations."

"Insurance has a creditable record. It has met every test which has been placed upon it by the unprecedented industrial and economic development of this country. No business has been subjected to more severe tests. Time after time it has stepped so quickly and yet so quietly between industry and disaster that its presence has been scarcely noted and its accomplishment promptly forgotten."

"Without warning, revisions of the laws of the land have thrust great burdens upon it which it has shouldered without a stagger. Could Hamilton have looked forward to this day and have seen us as we are, there is no reason to suspect that he would have been disappointed with the contribution of insurance to the superstructure that has been erected upon the foundation of national credit which he laid. So efficiently yet so quietly has it functioned through the years, that the public has been and is now unaware of the great part it has played and is playing in the making and keeping of America."

FAST AGE; MORE YEARS

Reflecting on the fastness with which time flies, and particularly on the sunset slope of life, there has been plenty of comfort in the last few years in the reports of new marks in longevity. Centenarians have become comparatively common and men of 50 are spoken of as young. Now comes an officer of the American Insurance Union with the statement that the span of human life has been lengthened four years in the last quarter century, and that within another generation "the allotted three-score years and ten will be a thing of the past." And this in spite of the extra hazards which have come with twentieth century progress!

There need be no surprise in it. The fastness principally is in machinery; instead of suffering from the wear and tear of it, humanity, lolling in the parlor cars or floating palaces setting new speed marks, tends rather to indolence. Advances in the science of guarding health now effect rescues where death was regarded as certain. At no time did manhood ever show greater hardness than in the World War. An increase in longevity is to be expected naturally.

Besides, the people of the future may look back upon our age as slow just as we do upon the period of only half a century back.

CONSTRUCTIVE AMERICANISM

The newspapers are full of discussions of various ideas connected with the plan of a World Court. Generally speaking, the press of our country is inclined to favor any international policy that is of a constructive character.

There is little disposition to condemn movements like the World Court, a Disarmament Conference, and plans for stabilizing international, industrial and commercial conditions.

Few political leaders go to the extreme of advocating commercial isolation of our country. Press reports indicate that there is an underlying sentiment, possibly tinged with idealism, that favors our lending a hand in the economic restoration of any of the European countries.

One of the great byproducts of the World War is a lessening of racial prejudices and more of the helpful big brother feeling toward all foreign nations.
