"KIWANIS ACTIVITY"

In an age when associations of all kinds are a feae of the times, organized effort must be outstanding order to attract attention. Among the organizations hich are making an indelible impression upon the lives d characters of our people are the great service clubs, remost among which is Kiwanis International. Although ominently before the public at all times, it is attracting mal attention during the current week by reason of its servance of the eleventh anniversary of its birth.

Organized as a single club in the city of Detroit on muary 21, 1915 with no thought of extension efforts, has developed into an organization of more than 1450 ubs with a membership of more than 95,000. Confined policy to the two great nations of the North Amerin continent, these clubs are scattered through all the ates of the union and the provinces of Canada. This markable growth within the brief period of eleven ears finds its explanation in the fact that the organiation is founded on fairness to all and based on prinples most practical.

Just as its rapid development as teen due to the appeal its purposes make to public or inion, so its stabily is due to the unselfish type of its activities. Its tage of. jectives it fosters. Altruistic and ethical in character, undertakings appeal to the highest type of civic and taken care of, particularly repucial thought.

Among its outstanding activities may be mentioned work in behalf of under-privileged children including mentally, morally, financially, and physically underrivileged; its fostering of education toward a better derstanding of citizenship duties and the more univerwe of the franchise; its guidance and placement of has, the more likely he is to ose engaged in vocational training; its development a cooperative attitude between those residing in urban stricts; its appeal for honesty in business and profesonal life and fidelity to duty in public office; its cooper- big foresight steal them and stion with the efforts preventing and protecting lives grab off the profits. d property against fire losses.

RITCHIE CUTTING INTO SMITH

A report from eastern Democratic opinion expresses ciety about the renewed announcement of Al Smith t he is leaving politics and retiring from public life. It is no particular disrespect to Mr. Smith to be cal about his statement. "Retirement" of politicians always subject to change. Smith's statement could be derpreted in future, if necessary, to read retirement a state politics and interference in the destinies of

In fact, the "retirement" at this time sounds very h like a bit of stage management, to tease along a er urge from his friends and admirers to have him e efforts to win the Presidency.
