Fraternal Brotherhood Entertain
 The Fraternal Brotherhood, their families and invited guests are to have an old fashioned dance Wednesday evening, March the third at 9:30 at the Moose hall.

Invitations are already out and it is expected there will be a large attendance to enjoy the old time dances, of which there is a revival just now. This is the first of a number of parties which they expect to have in the near future.

Community Club Have Usage Exhibit
 On March the ninth, the Upper Valley Community Club expect to hold its meeting at the home of Mrs. Mark True.

Miss Ada Brewster, county demonstration agent, will bring slides and a demonstration will be given of a modern kitchen. All the up-to-date kitchen improvements will be shown and keen interest is felt in this very helpful program for the next meeting of this wide awake club.

Social Meeting of the Brotherhood of American Yeomen
 "Members of the Ashland Homestead No. 4067, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Mathes Monday and spent a most enjoyable evening. Mr. and Mrs. Mathes are recent additions to the membership of the society.

The time was spent in visiting, and in listening to some delightful musical numbers by Miss Bertha La Blanc, who is also a new member. The following were present to enjoy the social hours and the delicious luncheon with which the evening closed: Mr. J. J. Welch of Medford, vice president of Southern Oregon; Mr. and Mrs. Fay Yaryan, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Arana, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. F. Wilkins, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver La Blanc, Miss Bertha La Blanc.

A short business session was held before bidding host and hostess' good night and expressing their appreciation of the pleasant hospitality.

Bridge Afternoon
 Mrs. F. G. Dean and Mrs. Karl P. Nims were hostesses at a delightful bridge afternoon Wednesday, February the twenty fourth, at the Lutha Springs hotel.

Eighty friends enjoyed their charming hospitality. Eighteen tables of bridge were played. Some brought their needlework. Mrs. Hugh Gillette was the fortunate one in securing high score, while Mrs. C. W. Haines was content with the consolation prize.

Spring blossoms, jonquils and freesees added their brightness and the dainty accessories at the card tables carried out spring's gay colors. Delicacies of refreshments were served at the attractively appointed tables at the close of the afternoon. There were a number of the guests from Medford.

Ashland Study Club
 The Ashland Study Club will meet Monday at the home of Mrs. H. O. Anderson, on the Boulevard.

The roll call for this meeting will be "Current Events." The selected topic will be presented by Mrs. W. M. Foley and the book review will be given by Mrs. F. D. Wagner.

It has been requested that those who have not returned the questionnaires which were distributed some time since for the "Home Survey" be brought in at this meeting. The vice president will probably have charge of the meeting as Mrs. Fell is not expected to return from California in time to be present.

An Explanation
 In the foreword, in calling attention to the poem written by Miss Winifred Watson, mention was made of a prize winning so-called poem, and a criticism of it by the book page editor of the Journal, who characterized it as veritable bunk.

One verse was given to show how infinitely superior was that written by Miss Watson.

For some reason the critic and the verse were left out, leaving readers somewhat in the dark as to what was meant by the paragraph printed. The whole is being printed today in order to make clear any misunderstanding that has been caused and to show the comparison and criticism of the two poems.

MORE BUNK WINS ANNUAL POETRY PRIZE
 The book page editor is using the following notice from The Nation regarding the winner of its latest poetry prize not because of any merit he is able to see in the crowded confusion, but more as a warning to others who are on the verge of poetic lunacy.

"Stephen Vincent Benet won the first Nation's poetry prize in 1923 with his 'King David.' That was ribald and unpoetic enough to suit the most advanced poetic anarchist. The subsequent two winners were a little less hasty, but just as unpoetic. 'The present winner, Babette Deutsch with her 'Thoughts at the Year's End,' also avoids the pornography of 'King David,' but in doing so she has run afoul of the most conglomeration mass of verbal bunk it has ever been this writer's misfortune to read. What would Keats or Tennyson, or even the living Edwin Markham, or the living Edwin Arlington Robinson, think of a line with such unmusical phrasing as this:

here's night, here's winter, here's year's end."

"Here is the notice as it came from The Nation's editorial room, fortunately inflicting only the first stanza on readers who chance to see it:
 "Babette Deutsch is the winner of The Nation's annual poetry prize of $100 for her poem 'Thoughts at the Year's End' which will be published in the midwinter book number of The Nation, dated February 10, Miss Deutsch is well known as one of the younger group of poets. She has published two volumes of verse, 'Banners' and 'Honey Out of the Rock.'"
 "A special second prize of $50 is awarded to Leonora Speyer, for her 'Ballad of Old Doc Higgins,' and honorable mention is made of poems by John Gould Fletcher, Genevieve Taggard and Laurence Jordan. More than 3000 poems were submitted in the contest.

"Hot Afternoons Have Been In Montana," by Eli Siegel, won the prize last year; "Jezebel" by Scudder Middleton in 1924; Stephen Vincent Benet's "King David" in 1923.

The first stanza of Miss Deutsch's poem follows:
 "Draw a clean breath of crisp and moonless air;
 Fix eyes upon the dark;
 Set ears to catch
 The knocking of the wind along
 The ground, Whereto no grass replies, being numb as wire.

The traveling clock you carry everywhere
 about with you, the jewel of your bones,
 ticks with too little sound,
 keeping the time no other soul
 may share,
 making you know
 here's night, here's winter, here's year's end
 to bear,
 once more,
 and without a god's help, now
 without a devil, and without desire."

IMPROVED CHEVROLET
 The generator is now driven by an endless V-Shaped, silent belt; the oil pump is located in the crankcase so as to insure positive, noiseless motor lubrication under all conditions. For convenient removal, the valve cover has been changed to a one-piece steel stamping.

 "For many months, President Wilson, simply because he had said, 'League of Nations' plainly and clearly, was the greatest man on earth."—H. G. Wells.

We like our Lincoln homespun, tested stuff.
 That suits our daily uses; brown and rough
 As work-stained hands, yet warm and kind as they.
 It yields such comfort as known, loved things may.

But fairy-fabrics, shot with gold o'dreams,
 We find unfit for common wear, it seems.
 Such textile, woven on the loom of thought
 By one who sat alone, aloof, was brought
 Once to our mart; we would have none of it
 Or him. Repulsed and shattered, bit by bit,
 He watched the fabric of his dreams decay;
 In sad disuse, it moldered, day by day.

Its patterned theme of Brotherhood, wrought fast
 Within its warp and woof, he found, aghast,
 Had grown a dim and faded thing, forgot
 By his own countrymen, "who knew him not."
 The shining folds of stuff which dazzled so,
 Because men's blood had washed it white as snow
