SALVATION FROM GOD—"I have waited for thy salvation, O Lord." Gen. 49:18.

PRAYER—"Therefore, O Lord, we also would wait on Thee, to be of good courage, and receive heart strength from Thee."

SUCCESS TO LITHIANS

The Lithia Park campground needs improved cabins to properly house the modern tourists who are not satisfied with merely a place in which to park their automobile and pitch their tent. This has been a conclusion in which all have agreed for sometime.

The rub has been in finding some organization, individual or parties who would put the necessary work back of a plan to make it possible to finance the building of these cabins. It was suggested once that a certain number of business houses in town each finance the construction of one cabin and take their reimbursement from the proceeds of the rentals. However, this plan did not materialize.

A live organization, the Lithians, is adopting the problem and at a meeting tonight expects to work out a plan whereby it can procure the necessary finances for the cabins. The Tidings realizes this is an important task and confidentially feels that the Lithians will prove successful in their efforts to give the city campground the cabins which will be necessary to compete with the up-to-date privately owned campgrounds, where the comfort of the tourist is capitalized more than the park board has been able to do in the city campground.

WILL HELP JACKSON

It is to be hoped that Senator Stanfield will meet with success in his efforts to have congress appropriate the sum of $756,000 for Jackson county, which was lost to this county when the old Oregon and California land grant lands reverted to the government.

It was a blow to this county and several other counties of western Oregon when this valued property was taken from the tax rolls, and it is no more than right that the government should reimburse the counties which have suffered this financial loss.

Senator Stanfield has promised to wage a determined fight for this bill, but he calls attention to the fact that it will take united support of the citizens of Oregon if the bill is to win approval.

County officials of all affected counties recently voted to lend whatever possible aid they could in recovering this money. It might not be amiss for the chambers of commerce and other organizations to this follow this movement which means much to those who pay the taxes.

MAGNANIMOUS KLAMATH

Klamath Falls has turned a deaf ear to the plea of the Ashland chamber of commerce, which sought to dissuade Klamath from establishing a tourist information bureau at the junction of the Pacific and Ashland-Klamath highways.

But in a spirit of magnanimity, the Klamath folks agreed to permit Ashland to help finance the project; to give this city a chance to put up part of the money which will be used in diverting auto tourist traffic from the Pacific highway through Ashland to Klamath county.

We are overwhelmed by this spirit of good fellowship and cooperation. It reminds us of the wife who had her husband buy a quantity of strychnine and then put it in his soup.

If the Lithians decide to get busy, we're willing to bet they'll get those cottages built in the auto park before the first of June.

There's one way Ashland can trim Klamath. Just leave it to the high school basketball squad tomorrow night.

This is the sort of weather that makes dad think of fightin' and mother plan her spring house cleaning.

Don't forget the big American Legion show to be held here on March 8 and 9.

They'll soon be selling "Fore" at the Ashland golf club, south of the city.

Growing Omnious

Reed's director is one of the Mellon banks. He's a first-class lawyer also. He pointed out that the tax called for a "consolidated return" from financial institutions hooked up like that trio. They did it the way they had to, legally.

But Reed committed the tactical error of saying Norris got his dogs from D. F. Hickey, "a discharged treasury employe."

According to Hickey, the three banks did make a "consolidated return," as Reed so clearly demonstrated the law demanded.

Later, however, their counsel, the firm of Reed, Shaw, Smith and McCray—of which Senator Reed's a member—discovered that they'd have saved $91,472.37 if they'd made their returns separately.

Consequently they raised heck at the internal revenue bureau until it allowed them to do it that way, and returned their $91,472.37.

MAN-KILLS RAT IN DEATH PACT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 25—Robert Buckley, 66, died at his home here today. He did not want to die alone. His favorite pet, a white rat, had been his constant companion. His wife found Buckley's body with the rat's nearby, the life or both stilling out by strangling gas. "I am sorry for my rat, but so one would feed him after I am gone," Buckley wrote in his death note.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON—Norris, Reed and the Three Mellon Banks! Good title for a story, what? Well, there is one.

To begin with: There are three Mellon banks in Pittsburgh. The Mellon National, the Union Savings and the Union Trust company. Some time ago they had occasion to file income tax returns. Instead of doing it separately—a return for each institution—they did it in one chunk. What's known as a "consolidated return."

Senator Norris criticized this. He didn't say it was crooked, but he did say it saved the three outfits $91,472.37. His point was that it was a big saving—worth investigation. But there's no way of investigating it, because of so much secrecy about the internal revenue bureau.

Up rose Senator Reed and made mincemeat of him.
