Independent Service Station Owners Meet—Members of the Independent Service station owners of the Pacific coast met here Tuesday night at the Josephine hotel to discuss problems connected with their business. Fully 30 were present from Grants Pass, Medford and Ashland and intermediate points, which has a local organization. The members of the organization have adopted a checkered flag as their official emblem and these flags are placed on the service stations. Membership is limited to privately owned service stations, with the object of assurance to the motorist that these stations are owned by men of business who realize that their success depends solely upon the treatment accorded their customers.—Grant Pass Courier.

Geese at Klamath Lake—Nearly 500 geese, honkers, are now preparing to nest in the marshy islands at the northern end of upper Klamath lake, according to timbermen and others whose business carries them into that section. While geese have nested here in years past, the number is now greater than ever before, these observers declared. The greater number of the birds are now in the vicinity of Harriman lodge. Both the geese and a huge colony of Mallards spent the winter here and local sportsmen believe all will remain to nest, rather than make the long flight to the north.—Klamath Falls Herald.

Visiting at Phillips Home—Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Phillips, of Chico, are visiting at the home of Mr. Phillips mother, Mrs. L. A. Phillips on East Main street. Mrs. Chester Phillips was Miss Lola Kelley and formerly lived in Ashland. Mr. Phillips is in business in Chico. They will return home Sunday.

VANCOUVER FEARS EXTRA DRY SUMMER VANCOUVER, B. C., Canada, March 6—(U.P.)—There is no rose without its thorn, according to local citizens who point out that the exceptionally mild winter has its disadvantages. The light rainfall, and slight snowfall in the higher altitudes, may result in a dry summer, as the water in Coquiltiam Lake now is at an unusually low level, several feet below the spillway.

The First Message

MR. WATSON, come here! "I want you!" exclaimed Alexander Graham Bell on March 10, 1876, during an afternoon of experimentation, and over a wire connecting two rooms, the young assistant heard the words—the first spoken sentence to be so transmitted. Fifty years have passed. Today there are 17,000,000 telephones in the United States, giving voice to human need, as Bell's crude transmitter did then. Fire breaks out in the night, law-breakers invade a home, sickness strikes at a family circle. "Come here, I want you," is the summons, and the telephone speeds it on the way. Business of importance demands the decision of one who is on the far side of the continent. "Come here, I want you," is the summons again, and as if by magic, a personality is projected through space, questions are asked, answers given, problems solved—by telephone. Every telephone call is an echo of the first message. For whether it is the physical presence or the listening ear that is desired, the impulse that lifts the telephone receiver is "I want you."

Economy Argument Halts Army Plans

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 6—(U.P.)—The war department let it be known today that it will not insist upon its five-year program to triple the number of army airplanes. This action is being taken because of President Coolidge's economy objections.

PEKING, March 6—(U.P.)—Marshal Feng Yuh-clang today became supreme commander of the allied armies defending Peking area against the combined assault of Chang Tso-lin, Li Ching lin and Wu Pei-fu.
