"Me and the boy friend"

You know them, bless their hearts. A pair of youngsters, really, in spite of their self-reliant air and their fast-vanishing teens. The girlslim, clear-eyed, merry; the boy-flappent, a bit arrogant, full of secret, earnest plans for success.

They like each other. They go to the movies together, dance, quarrel a bit. They don't believe in early marriages. But her eyes shine when she speaks of him. "Me and the boy friend."

One of these days, suddenly, they'll be grown up. Man and wife, those fearless youngsters. A home to plan, life to face. A budget, a savings account, economics.

They'll make mistakes, but they'll learn quickly. She'll begin to be canny in the spending of money — to question prices and values. She'll begin to read about the things she plans to buy, to find out all she can about them. She Il become a regular reader of advertisements.

They'll help her to become the capable, wise housewife she wants so much to be. They'll tell her what clothes are best and what prices to pay for them. They'll tell her about the foods to buy, the electric appliances, the lineleums and desperies. They'll help her, as the advertisements in this newspaper can help you.

And she'll meet her responsibilities and fulfill her duties easily and well. She won't become a tired, flustered, inefficient drudge. Because her home will be modern, attractive, well-run, she'll keep young — through the speedy years she'll retain much of that shining eyed, merry freshness. She and the "boy friend."

Advertisements are wise counselors for housewives, young and old
