A GREAT NATION

The United States at the present time has the greatest industrial capacity in its history. There is much room for further expansion and there is a wide field for investment.

We are entitled to judge the future by the past, and the past twenty years in this country have given us machine production, electric power, the telephone, the automobile, the gas engine, chemical processes, the X-ray, the motion picture, the radio, and a thousand devices that have widened the opportunities of the people, absorbed the fruits of industry and employed capital in ways that were not seen in advance.

Like other industries which have contributed to na tional welfare for generations past, new industries are making of themselves a primary need. Luxuries of ten years ago are now necessities. Modes of life have changed completely with new modes of travel, new modes of thought and new mechanical inventions.

Opportunities of this country are so great that as Honesty is one of the time goes on, production is bound to increase while buy- arts that can be mastered withing power expands, lifting to higher levels the Standards out a college education. of our national life.

It is well to reflect that the winners of these sensational prizes usually gained them because they had learned to do some one thing surpassingly well. They put their whole energy into that one effort.

The average person can not achieve any sensational success. But that same determination to do some one thing surpassingly well, will give him a long boost ahead on that toilsome path.

The City of Gold is not the only place where people can find a happy home. Many who have gone there say it isn't so much after all. They claim there are as many troubles there as anywhere. Most of the fun was in getting there, but once they reached the town; they say it seemed to be a pretty dull old kind of a burg.

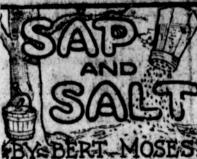

And they do say, that along the old rough path that looks so dusty to most of us, there are beautiful haunts of friendship and love, with sweet music and the laughter of children in the state of the
