FORGET NOT HIS BENEFITS—When your children shall say unto you, what mean ye by this service? Ye shall say, It is the sacrifice of the Lord's Passover. Who passed over the houses of the children of Israel, when He smote the Egyptians." Ex. 12 26-27.
PRAYER— "O God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget! Lest we forget!"

THE PROGRESS OF PRINTING
 Printing has been called "the art preservative." The saying is marvellously illustrated by recent discoveries in ancient history.

It was formerly thought, that up to a few centuries before the Christian era, the human races were people of the most primitive and caveman type. But recent excavations in centuries like Egypt and Babylonia, show very advanced civilizations to have existed 5000 years ago. In Egypt, for instance, their beautiful sculpture reached its perfection at that remote date in the dawn of history. The thinkers of the first days of written literature reveal a mentality equal to modern times. Put them in New York or Ashland today and they would feel at home.

But all these civilizations crumbled into dust, and the world forgot that some of them ever existed, until folks came along with shovels and dug up the relics they left in the sand. The trouble was they did not have the arts of writing and printing by which knowledge is preserved and passed on.

When writing on manuscript was discovered, learning was passed on to the best minds of the next generation, but it did not filter down much to the common people. That left an ignorant mass at the bottom, constituting an insecure foundation for a state, which went to pieces and those civilizations fell.

Then came the art of printing, and it became possible, not merely to pass knowledge on to the best minds, but to give some of it to the masses. The common people became able to improve their economic condition and to create better governments, which were able to withstand attack.

Thus printing enables each generation to pass on the new knowledge it has gained so that each succeeding generation stands on a higher level. Everyone who helps to write or print a useful newspaper, magazine, or book, assists in preserving and passing on the knowledge the race gains day by day, and contributes to the building of a still better civilization.

LET THE STEAM BLOW OFF
 Radical organizations are being invited to join with the National Bureau of Information and Education, in the publication of a monthly periodical to be called New Politics in the United States.

The new journal is to contain twenty-four pages, three or four of which are to be devoted to current news and the others to be used by economic, semi-political or reform organizations which agree to participate in the enterprise.

Ultra-conservatives in this and other nations too often object to the publications as well as oral utterance of radical individuals or organizations.

This is a mistaken attitude. Let the radical have the fullest freedom in expressing himself—his own statements will in nine cases out of ten defeat his aims, because they will not appeal to the rank and file of sober minded citizens.

The way to counteract radical expressions is not to clamp the lid down on boiling and seething ideas, thus causing an inevitable explosion later, but to negative such expressions by presenting sound and logical arguments against them.

Let the public hear both sides of a question, and the majority will arrive at sensible conclusions.

Many folks expect to win a big success during the coming season by just opening their mouths and allowing some juicy plum to drop into the same.

It is claimed that we should find joy in labor, and many of us at least have got to the point where we enjoy seeing someone else work.

The time when the nation is at the high tide of prosperity is frequently the one when speculators get in over their heads.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER
 BY CHARLES P. STEWART
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Having dug up some more evidence and a little money the redoubtable Colonel James A. Ownbey of Colorado, who tried to keep the Senate from confirming President Coolidge's appointment of Harlan F. Stone to the federal supreme bench, is back in Washington again, still very much on the warpath.

In fact, more so. At any rate, he's more formidable, being better heeled financially. He expects to increase the size of his wad, too. Every additional dollar he gets his hands on will be just that much more ammunition for him. "I'll be a millionaire again before I die," he assured me. The colonel's only 72.

Colonel Ownbey was so sore, when the Senate confirmed Stone that he declared he was going to quit the United States and renounce his citizenship and spend the rest of his life elsewhere.

But he soon realized that that wasn't what he really wanted to do. He really wanted to stop here and go on fighting.

He was broken, however, and warfare calls for money. So the colonel pitched in and in a year he cleaned up $15,000 as a mining expert, which isn't so bad for a man of his number of summers.

The colonel's hostility toward Stone is incidental to his sentiments concerning a litigation in which the present supreme justice's then firm of Satterlee, Cantfield & Stone appeared as counsel against him for the estate of the late J. P. Morgan, Sr.

No Vacation for O. A. C.

The usual spring vacation will not be granted this year at the O.A.C. because of increased facilities in the registrars' office, which will enable grades to be compiled in short order. The spring term will open Monday, March 29, with registration scheduled for one day only.—M. M. Tribune.

'INXED' VESSEL SAILS TO ORIENT

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20—(U.P.)—After many vicissitudes the "Inx" schooner Ecola was on route today somewhere on the Pacific ocean, bound for Shanghai.

With a new skipper and a crew, the Ecola left San Francisco carrying a cargo of lumber that was loaded on the Columbia River during January. Her owners, matter of fact business men, are still superstitious enough to hope that the vessel's new personnel will bring the hard-luck ship better fortune.

The Ecola, one of the most modern of the few remaining windjammers actively engaged in the Pacific trades, has had a string of troubles stretching from the day she was launched to her present voyage.

The Ecola was scarcely out of the Columbia river, which she left January 25, when she was caught in a terrific storm. Her cargo shifted and she was disabled and in danger of sinking when the tanker Los Alamos took her in tow 80 miles south of the Columbia river entrance. She broke loose and was lost during the night, but the next day the steamer Noyo approached and towed her. But the towing gear parted for the second time. Later the tanker Captain A. F. Lucas took up the tow. Although the line parted again the Lucas stood by and again a towline was made fast. The A. F. Lucas finally brought the Ecola into San Francisco bay, where her cargo was reloaded and repairs were made before she was again dispatched.

The Ecola's first mishap occurred when she was launched. She bumped and almost capsized. On November 16, 1921, the Ecola left San Francisco in tow of the tug Sea Eagle, bound for Coos bay. About a week later wreckage of the Sea Eagle was picked up and mariners believed the Ecola had sunk, dragging the tug with her. In about three weeks, however, the Ecola, only slightly damaged, drifted into Marshfield and reported the Sea Eagle lost with all on board.
