POLITICS

To The Editor Ashland Tidings:

Six years ago the United States outlawed the traffic in liquor by Constitutional amendment. It was the greatest experiment in summary legislation ever attempted by a free people. About fifty years of discussion had convinced a large majority that the licensed liquor business was not only a prodigious waste of human values, but that it was the clearest menace through which all the vices and weaknesses of humanity were commercialized. Centuries of effort to make the liquor business decent by regulation had entirely failed. The only course left open to a self-respecting people was to decree its extinction by law. This they attempted to do by the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Every dry legislator who imagined that the battle was won and John Barleycorn knocked out for keeps is due for a rude awakening. The fact is that the last phase of this half century campaign is just now getting under way. It might be well for the enemies of the commercialized liquor traffic in Jackson County to take stock at this time—to consider and reflect for a moment.

Who are the men who have helped to write prohibition into the laws of Oregon and into the National statutes, and can these men be depended upon to strengthen and uphold the law in the future?

Robert N. Stanfield was elected Senator from Oregon in 1920. On the record he has made a senator his friends are asking that he be renominated for a second term of six years. There are few men in the history of the United States Senate who have attained the positions of power and influence in their first term that Senator Stanfield has. He is Chairman of the Public Lands Committee; to this powerful committee the people of the eleven Western public land states are looking for relief from burdensome taxation imposed by Federal withdrawal from the tax rolls of vast areas of our public domain.

Senator Stanfield is a member of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads; he is an influential member of the Senate Finance Committee, probably the most powerful committee in the National Congress. Of this Committee Senator Aldrich said he would rather be the chairman than to be the President of the United States. It was a red letter day when the growing, developing State of Oregon exchanged a likeable, convivial democratic lawyer for a big-brained, clear-thinking business organizer. The headwinds in the state since this change are becoming more apparent each day, and why should the people of this great farming, fruit-growing and grazing state be asked to support Senator Stanfield, a farmer and stock man of tested ability, for another lawyer on whom we would have to expend $75,000 in salary and franking privileges before he becomes of real value to the State?

Are the people of Jackson County, who as a whole are opposed to the return of the liquor traffic in any form, going to vote to retire from public life Senator Stanfield, when the records show that as speaker of the Lower House of the Oregon legislature when our own dry law was passed, and as Senator of the United States, he has never failed in the most practical and positive way to support every measure that had for its object the control and ultimate extinction of the liquor business? Of course I do not expect the practical and progressive drys to vote for Senator Stanfield, for they must have a sniff at a man's breath before consenting to vote for him. Their votes usually go to some glib demagogue who betrays them at the first opportunity, but I do believe that the practical common sense prohibitionists who constitute three-fourths of the voting strength of the republican party in Jackson County, will express their con-

Railroad Reform Worked In Italy

ROME, March 22.—(U.P.)—A deficit of 60 million dollars on the operation of the Italian State railroads has been turned into a profit of 10 million under the Mussolini regime. Nine railroad employees per mile was the rule in 1922; now it is six. The amount of freight handled was 20 million tons in 1922. This increased to 63 million tons in 1932. These are some of the figures which show the revolution worked in railroad methods under the present government. Before the present regime, the railroad system of Italy boasted the major "red" union of the country. Though there was a nominal eight hour day, the railroad employees, when by counting the time men spent in counting and going from their work, succeeded in reducing the effective working hours to about six and some times even less. Among the guests at the Lithia Springs Hotel are: Miss J. H. O'Ghirle, Bedford, N. Y.; C. R. Cott, Chicago; William E. Williamson, and wife, Portland; W. J. Deane and wife, Portland; C. A. Patchett, Portland; Miss D. W. May, Portland; N. E. J. P. O'Brien and wife, Los Angeles; W. S. Hill, and wife, Nelson, B. ## Just what is BLEND BRAND FLOUR

Fisher's Blend Brand is positively a uniform, reliable flour. We make it that way, and guarantee it.

Fisher's Blend Brand Flour is not milled by rule of thumb; we make it with scientific accuracy. We can, and do, mill flour to any specification, exactly. We mill Fisher's Blend Brand to the specification of more than 180,000 housewives. We know that it is right.

What is the world's most important grain; it gives most of benefit to mankind. As with apple, one meets it in a variety of kind. All wheats are composed of the same elements, but Nature combines these elements in varying proportions, hence many kinds of wheat, each having some-what different characteristics.

We know the elements of wheat. We know what each contributes to good flour, and to good baking. We no longer buy wheat; we buy the flour elements wheat contains.

A perfect wheat for a perfect modern flour would have its elements combined in a certain specific proportion; an ideal formula. No one kind of wheat can be relied on always to give us this composition—but we have the formula.

So we don't mill wheat; we mill the elements of the best wheat. To get these we blend different kinds of wheat until the proportion of their combined elements is exactly ideal. That is why our product is called BLEND flour.

And that is why Fisher's Blend Brand Flour is the same today, as last month, as ten years ago.
