PUTTING HEART INTO WORK

It is commonly remarked that if the people who are employed as wage-earners would work with the same earnestness as if they were in business for themselves, the production of the country would be largely increased, and everyone would be a great deal better off.

To this it is replied, that the reward for such enthusiasm seems so remote and uncertain, that many workers lack the incentive to throw themselves into labor in that way. They feel that if they did make such additional effort, they would not be at all sure of getting any reward for it.

What is needed then, say the economists, is some plan in industry by which the workers will feel sure they will get the result of any extra effort they may make. To meet this situation, many concerns have tried out forms of profit sharing, with more or less success. But many wage-earners do not feel much interested in such schemes. They would rather have the money in their pay envelopes and know each week what they were getting.

The employers say that the idea of partnership with their workers may be all right theoretically, but that if a true partnership is to exist, the wage-earners should share losses as well as profits and they are not willing to do so.

Here we have the greatest industrial problem of the times to induce the workers to show the same enthusiasm in their tasks that people used to manifest in the old days when most of them worked for themselves, or when employes were so closely under the eyes of their employer that they were pretty sure to be rewarded for special diligence. The concerns that make the most effort to solve that problem, and try to think out plans for promoting loyalty and enthusiasm among their workers, are likely to be the ones that will make the biggest gain in the coming years.

SPRING CLEAN-UP

Many towns come through the winter looking like the boy who comes to the table with his hair all tousled. Father tells him he must exercise the hair brush before he is allowed to sit down with the family. Or such towns might remind us of the man who hasn't had his hair cut for a couple of months nor shaved for a week.

Unightly spots are a problem in most towns. Public sentiment in Ashland and elsewhere clings to the idea that the individual shall have the right to manage his own property. But our patience is sorely tried if some neighbor allows his home to become disorderly or decadent. His carelessness costs the whole neighborhood something, perhaps the whole town. Such situations call for a remedy.

But as public spirit advances people come to see that it is good business to clean up disorderly spots, to trim the weekly whiskers off their land, and give their speedy looking buildings a Saturday night bath of clean paint. Towns that take hold of spring clean-up with enthusiasm feel afterward like the man who has paid the long deferred visit to the barber shop.

Apparently the only way to stop accidents at railroad crossings, is to put up signs directing the locomotive engineers to stop, look, and listen for automobiles.

An expedition is being organized to trace the origin of man, but considering how he often behaves it would seem more important to find out what he is coming to.

If baseball weather counts for anything, Ashland High school ought to have a championship team this year.

The "Wobblies" will quickly learn that there is no room for them in Ashland.

Happiness: A good man comes in marriage and the good man.
Happy: An unhappy man is not because you have a wife, but because others have a good one.

WOMEN
To the Republicans of Jackson county:

I am a candidate for State Senator for the 5th Senatorial District, and am asking for the endorsement of the Pre-Primary convention to be held in Medford tomorrow.

I have been your representative in the last two sessions of the Legislature. My ambition has been at all times to serve you faithfully and intelligently.

The location of the State Normal school at Ashland was a measure of importance to Jackson County and especially to the people of Ashland. I feel that I can claim a fair share of the credit for the passage of this bill, and there is much yet to be done to make the Normal a success.

The location of the National Guard encampment at Medford both from a financial and advertising standpoint is of great importance to this county. My connection with the National Guard enabled me to secure favorable consideration for the establishment of the camp at Medford.

It is a financial sacrifice for any man to represent Jackson County in a session of the Legislature as the total remuneration is only $200.00 for the forty day session and the actual expense is around $100 not including loss of time and money spent in making Primary and elective campaigns. I believe the Pre-Primary is the poor man's friend and I am therefore asking the Republicans of Jackson County for the pre-primary endorsement for State Senator.

I will greatly appreciate the endorsement of the Convention, however if you see fit to endorse another for State Senator I will accept your decision as final. I will pledge my support to your choice, and I will act as a candidate in the May Primary.

Respectfully yours,
RALPH COWGILL

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES F. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Gen. Libbott G. Andrews, Assistant Secretary of the treasury, especially in charge of prohibition enforcement, has been concentrating on Washington lately.

This is on the strength of representations to him, from vets and drys alike, that if he can clean up any place he ought to be able to dry up the capital, his own particular ballwick. Judging from the number of captures his men have made and the stills they've seized and the liquor and mash they've destroyed, it would seem as if he must be getting results.

The significant fact remains, however, that bootleg prices haven't advanced locally, which it seems as if they'd have done if Gen. Andrews had created a serious shortage.

The truth is, a considerable thinning out in the ranks of Washington bootleggers wouldn't be at all to the disadvantage of those who didn't happen to be included in the thinning out process.

There are more on the job now than can make a living. Assistant United States District Attorney David A. Hart, who specializes on prosecuting bootleg cases, estimated their number at 5,000.

As one bootlegging acquaintance of mine remarked to me, "This business is exactly like any other. A drygoods merchant has no trouble getting drygoods. He has trouble getting customers. Just so with a bootlegger."

Thus Gen. Andrews' activities aren't regarded altogether with disapproval even in bootleg circles—except, of course, by the bootleggers he catches. Indeed, he hasn't caught enough yet. As previously noted, prices are stationary.

Business Visitor—

D. W. Helman, representing McNeill, Libby Co., is a business visitor in Ashland and a guest of the Lithia Springs hotel.

New Residents—

Howard Graham, who has been in Ashland for some time, is moving his family to Ashland from Riverside, California, and they will make their home at 55 Pine street.

Oratory: Slipping over and standing ankle-deep in the mud.

Human Nature: An instinct that makes us see vices before we see virtues.

Idiosyncrasy: Failure of a boy to smoke cigarettes when he goes to college.

Sickness: The usual result of trying to get out of life more

An account in the child's own name impresses the idea upon them more forcibly than any other one thing.

Here's what "kilowatt-hour" means in dollars and cents

"Kilowatt-hour" sounds technical. But see how simple it really is.

Here is a 50-watt lamp. Use it one hour.

That makes 50 watts for one hour—the same as though you used one watt for fifty hours. Now let it burn for 20 hours—in 20 hours it will use one thousand watt-hours, or one kilowatt-hour.

KILO

"Kilo" is a Greek word that means thousand. A kilowatt is one thousand watts—so one hour's use of one thousand watts is called a "kilowatt-hour." People who know electrical things by their first names call it "K.W.H.," for short. It is the unit of measurement for your electricity.

You buy electricity by the kilowatt-hour, just as you buy potatoes by the bushel. A kilowatt-hour may cost ten cents—although it will be less than that if you have an electric range or other economical appliances.

Now see how cheap electricity is, by the penny's worth!

The 50-watt lamp that keeps your living room lighted while you're away at the movies uses 100 watt-hours in two hours' time.

That is just one-tenth of one of those mysterious kilowatt-hours—one cent, or even less, for two hours' service!

Electricity is the cheapest service you can buy.
