DO YOU DRINK WATER ON THE TRAIN?

Have you ever stopped to think, when you are traveling on a steam or electric train, where the drinking water used on it comes from? You probably have never given it a thought. You take it for granted that there must be some drinking water on the train, and when you become thirsty you lurch over to the tank and drink until your thirst is quenched. What assurance have you that the water may not be badly contaminated? You say that the water is clear and sparkling! True enough; but a water may be loaded with death-dealing typhoid germs and yet be clear and sparkling to the naked eye.

The water that you drink on the train is free from disease germs and so you may quench your thirst with impunity. Uncle Sam, through his Public Health Service, aided by the Boards of Health of the various states, sees to it that you are furnished with a perfectly safe drinking water while you are a passenger of a railroad.

At least once a year every railroad engaged in interstate commerce must furnish the Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service a list of all sources of water supplies used for drinking purposes. A list of such sources is also sent to the health officer of the respective state wherein they are located. He or his representative, usually the state sanitary engineer inspects the water shed of every supply, and submits samples of the water to the state laboratory for sanitary analysis. If both the sanitary survey and the laboratory tests show the water to be in a sanitary condition the State Health Officer recommends to the Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service that a certificate of approval be issued. A questionable or contaminated supply receives no certificate of approval, and such a supply may not be used for drinking purposes.

In Oregon a few of the water supplies come from wells owned by the railroads. The vast majority of the water supplies come from the drinking water of the cities and towns through which the railroads pass. You may be certain that if a train takes on drinking water at your town, and if that water is from your public water supply, then your town has a supply which has been approved by your State Board of Health and certified by your Government.

FUTURE LUMBER SUPPLY

Supplying the American people with timber products for future building material has become a great national issue.

Not only is this a vital factor in the industrial development of Western states, but reforestation is a vital necessity in the East and the South.

"Keep the Green Mountains Green," is the slogan adopted by the Vermont Forestry Association, in making a plea for conservation of the forests of the state.

Practically the same plea is being made by the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests, but it has not yet indicated that "Keep the White Mountains Green" will be its slogan.

The lumber industry in magnitude of pay rolls and its importance as universal building material, ranks among the five greatest industries of our country.

Lumbering is also unique in giving employment to classes of labor throughout the year — payrolls met by no other national source of employment.

THE CITY MANAGER'S REPORT

The monthly report of the city manager is printed in today's issue of The Tidings for the benefit of taxpayers and the public generally. The city council, in adopting the city manager plan of government, specified that a summarized monthly report should be published.

This is a wise provision. It gives the people an opportunity to learn month by month just what is being done in municipal affairs and gives them an opportunity of seeing just where and how their money is being spent.

A Tough Baby

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON—Folk who "want their rights" are the curse of Washington. The town's full of them, trying to get things out of the government—money generally—that they think they have legitimately coming to them.

They clutter up the departments. They persecute senators and representatives. They try to see the president. They nag the life half out of anybody and everybody they can get to listen to them.

Unmitigated pests, that's what they are.

The worst of it is that a lot of these unfortunates have real grievances. It isn't imagination on their part. They've suffered actual injustice.

Official promises they've had made to them have been broken. They can't get their pay for public services they've performed. They've been deprived of property without due process of law. They've been thimberjugged out of patent or copyright interests. Departmental rulings have been unfair to them. Oh, there are plenty of ways of being run over and trampled on by the government, or its factotums, but when it comes to getting any notice taken of the injuries you've sustained, you're up against an awful proposition.

Of course all this is assuming that the kicker is comparatively unimportant. Barrels of money or a strong political pull get prompt attention even in some rather dubious cases. Folk with money and a pull, however, aren't included among the nuisances. They're waited on and go off about their business.

The onese who hang around the capital and pester everybody are the ones with poorly-lined pocketbooks and no votes to deliver.

Fourteen major sawmills and box factories of Klamath County are cutting 50,000,000 feet a month, and employ 4500 men. 10 more mills will be opened this month.

Klamath Falls — Meyerhauser Timber Co., pays almost 10 per cent of all Klamath County taxes.

THE FORUM

Articles of timely interest are welcomed under this head. Communications must bear the signature of the author.

Those that have Easter Lilies in bloom at the present time will no doubt be glad to know that the beauty of the Lily and the pleasure it gives can be preserved and prolonged with a little care. In May, last year, the writer was given some Easter Lily bulbs that were in bloom at Easter time that had been turned out of the pots with parts of the stems adhering.

These bulbs were planted in a partially shaded location, in the belief that they would not grow until the next spring when the shade would be removed. Imagine my surprise and delight when in July new sprouts appeared. With their rapid growth my pleasure increased until in October I was enabled to share my pleasure with others by displaying the two that had gotten enough sunshine to enable them to bloom in McGee's new store window where many enjoyed them and marveled at their blooming at that time of the year.

If you haven't any ground space in which you can preserve your Lily bulbs, no doubt you have a friend who has space and who would be glad to take care of the bulbs.

Information on the care and culture of these bulbs can be had by sending to the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture for bulletin No. 943.

The lives of tulips, hyacinths, and narcissus bulbs that have been forced in pots may be prolonged and increased by drying them off in the pots until the foliage has yellowed, taking the bulbs out of the soil, keeping in a dry place, and planted out of doors in the fall.

NEW TYPE OF FILM SHEET MAKING HIS APPEARANCE

By LINCOLN QUARBERG
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 10 —(U.P.)—A new brand of cheik—the intellectual lover—is supplanting the Latin or physical type on the screen, in the opinion of Marlon Fairfax, foremost woman motion-picture producer.

The Valentino mold of heart-crusher, as personified by Rudolph himself, and scores of imitators, of Latin or Spanish origin, is gradually being pushed into the realm of the discarded screen heroes, according to the feminine movie-maker.

"Look over the array of male stars who are in the ascendant today," said Miss Fairfax, in an interview today, "and you will find the mental type now dominating."

"Outstanding examples are Lewis Stone, Ronald Colman and John Gilbert."

The screen hero with sheer "sex-appeal" is losing favor with the fans, contends the woman producer.

"It all goes to prove that, after all, women love the same thing—strength," she continued. "And of strength, mental virility is the strongest, because it dominates all other forms. "Many women worship physical strength in a man. She may fear him, and at times hate him, yet she loves him."

"The girls and women who have been responsible for the popularity of the conventional film sheik love physical strength because of its aesthetic quality, which in the movies we call sex appeal."

"There is, too, a rarer type which loves the man for the sense of strength or rather protection, implied by his wealth or his willingness to provide for her. Psychologists ascribe this to infantile causes."

"But the strongest of the strong is the mental type—the man with the strength of mind. He is the man who commands the world and commands the hearts of the majority of women."

"He is a quiet, reserved man, but in his face is written a firmness and power that carries the conviction of ability to rise above storms and stripes."

"He may have a fiery spirit—a spirited temperament belongs as much to the mental lover as the one whose fore-runner goes back to the days when men wooed with clubs."

Many Settlers To Come This Summer

PORTLAND, Ore., April 10—(U.P.)—Oregon agricultural opportunities are interesting a vast number of persons, according to W. H. Lee, manager of the land settlement department of the chamber of commerce.

He reported that 10,000 requests for information concerning farming resources of Oregon have reached him in recent months. The flood of mail from prospective settlers came as a result of a campaign to advertise the Pacific northwest.

Lakeview To Get Dude Ranch Soon

LAKEVIEW, Ore., April 10—(U.P.)—The scene of an historic cattle outfit of pioneer days, the Bar HC ranch, near Goose Lake, is to become a dude ranch.

Plans are now under way to convert this place—one of the last stands of old-time cattlemen—into a tourist resort.

A group of Sacramento, Cal., business men have taken an option on the property and plan to erect lodges and to increase the herd of middle horses to more than 100. A stream will be dammed, creating an artificial lake which will be stocked with bass and trout.
