POLITICAL MACHINE ATTACKS ALDERSON

Attempt to control education in Oregon by a loosely organized, but far-reaching political machine, was revealed Monday by an investigation conducted by a News reporter. The machine, which has introduced political propaganda into the city's public schools, has for its primary object the defeat of W. C. Alderson as state school superintendent, and control of that office through a man of the machine's own choosing.
Principals and teachers have been organized, to an unknown extent, political subjects have been discussed with school children and political propaganda spread among them.
Numerous complaints from teachers and parents sent the News reporter out on the machine's trail.
The machine is out to beat Alderson in any way possible. The only objection to the candidate is that he is a "politician." This is the only outspoken objection, but underneath, the machine is out to "get" Alderson because he refused to "play ball" with it or submit to its dictations.
Teachers, upon entering their school rooms, have found opposition propaganda, petitions and other such political material on their desks. Many of these teachers signed the petitions and distributed the propaganda because they were advised that their positions were "political" and unless they "played ball" trouble would ensue.
School supply houses have been approached by machine solicitors seeking campaign funds in behalf of the school machine candidate.
One of the most active supporters of the school machine candidate is a traveling agent for a Portland engraving company which manufactures cuts to be used in illustrating high school annuals.
Frantic letters have been sent out by the machine committee soliciting the endorsements of business men for their candidate.
Alderson has consistently defeated the school machine candidates and it is partly due to his success in the past to do so that the machine is making such an effort during the present campaign to defeat him.

Chorines Go to High School

Commits Suicide By Eating Tacks

BUDAPEST, (UP)—A suicide by eating tacks was consummated recently in the Slovakian village of Bunsian, according to reports received here.
Ernst Zadjl after failing to win the affections of a village girl bought a box of tacks.
Lying in bed, Zadjl swallowed the whole box one at a time. Within a few moments he began to call for help.
A physician who was called could do nothing to save the young man. In a post mortem examination the coroner found 247 tacks in Zadjl's stomach.

WHERE THE WOMAN PAYS —AND PAYS AND PAYS

YOLOGDA, (UP)—A new version of the old theme "The Woman Pays" can be found in the peasant villages of this out-of-the-way province in Northern Russia.
When a peasant lad begins to court a girl he establishes a proprietary right over her by treating her to sweets and cakes, according to peasant laws. Should the girl wish to break the engagement she is obliged, on pain of receiving a sound thrashing from her disillusioned lover, to pay him a full indemnity, not only for the sweets and cakes he has bought, but for the time he has lost in courting her, for the shoes and clothes he has worn out and for the "samogon," which he has drunk in the raptures of his young love.

BOY WAR VETERAN DIES AFTER FORTY OPERATIONS

SYDNEY, (UP)—Forty operations in eight years failed to save the life of Bernard Haynes, wounded war veteran. Because he enlisted in the Australian Imperial Force at the age of 14 and with him, and he bore the brunt of a brutal, close-quarters fight, he won him the love of nurses, and the praise of doctors and to suffering.
